A Woman people like and trust

A kindly character, bright and optimistic in outlook, and humorous and tolerant in spirit; with a well-stocked mind, a firm will, hidden by tact and persuasiveness, a fund of insight and instinctive wisdom, musical and literary tastes, and the power of good judgment and common-sense. Not very ambitious, but faces life with confidence and courage, and is the type of woman people like and trust.

The above is a Delineation of a reader's character from her handwriting. See others in the PLANTS FOR HEDGES.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

To make a good evergreen hedge, there is nothing equal in appearance to green holly, nor is there anything that makes a more impervious one, when it gets sufficiently large and thick. Yew also makes a splendid hedge when well clipped, but it will not thrive where the soil is wet and stagnant. To form a yew hedge quickly, the ground must be thoroughly well drained, and if of sandy nature, it will be all the better. Cupressus macrocarpa is frequently, and C. Lawsoniana, sometimes, used as hedge plants, both being amenable to the shears, but in our opinion neither can equal the yew in appearance, and do not look so well when clipped. Cupressus macrocarpa is, however, a strong and rapid growing plant, and may be used where the yew does not suit the soil. Probably the most perfect yew hedges in this country are those in the gardens at St. Anne's, Clontarf, Dublin. Privet, with whitethorns interspersed to give the necessary strength to the hedge, is very useful and quick growing, and the same may be said of the now ubiquitous Lonicera nitida. When appearance is not studied, the old-fashioned whitethorn hedge cannot be beaten, but it is as well to mention that this plant does not make satisfactory progress if the soil is very poor and sandy. In loamy or moderately stiff ground, this is certainly the most reliable hedge plant we possess.

AUTUMN HATCHING.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Everyone engaged in commercial egg production has realised the importance of early hatching, but as yet only the more enterprising and up-to-date have experienced the advantages of making the autumn months the main hatching season rather than the early spring. From results obtained, this practice is to be recommended, and it deserves to have more adherents. Its chief advantage is that it is possible in this way to secure a more even production of eggs throughout the year, thus avoiding very scarce or very plentiful and cheap periods. The ideal to aim for in egg production is an even distribution of output at all seasons. This is impossible if the hatching period is confined only to one or two months in spring. Apart from other disadvantages, "intensive" hatching during the normal season, February to April, is usually less profitable than at other times.

GRAPE FRUIT FROM CEYLON

FOR BRITISH BREAKFAST TABLE

Ceylon may contribute to the British breakfast table for other commodities besides tea. The initial consignments of the Island's grape fruit have proved satisfactory and there is every possibility, according to Covent Garden authorities, of Ceylon's product putting up a strong competition with grape fruit from foreign countries.

"The opinion expressed by Covent Garden is all the more welcome," said Dr. P. Pieris, the Ceylon Trade Commissioner in London, "in that the consignment which reached this country last month was not a special consignment of special fruits. It consisted of seventeen ordinary packages containing seventeen hundred fruits. I wonder if our Pummelo will not find equal acceptance with the British public?"

DECLINE IN INFANT MORTALITY

Returns published in Leningrad show that mortality among children has decreased by 30 per cent. as compared with that of pre-war days. The decline in attributed to improved institutional facilities for mother and child. Creche accommodation, which before the war was sufficient for only 198 babies, is now provided for 8,800, and it was proposed to increased this year to provide for 1,345 further children.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

A RENT CASE

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Mrs. Julia Adye-Curran sought an order against Mrs. Amy Kelly for possession of the premises, 1 Esker Villas, Upper Rathmines, in respect of which a certain amount of rent was due to the applicant.

The defendant pleaded that she was protected under the provisions of the Increase of Rent Acts, and sought to have the standard rent fixed and reduced from 15s. a week to 9s. 6d.

Evidence was given that the late Surgeon Adye-Curran, husband of the applicant, had converted an old disused stable and coachhouse into residences in the year 1932, and that, consequently, they did not come under the purview of the Rent Acts.

The judge gave a decree for possession, with a stay of execution for six weeks provided that the defendant paid the current rent of 15s. a week in advance during that period. He dismissed the defendant's application to have a standard rent fixed.

Mr. M. Lennon (instructed by Mr. F. J. Mangan) appeared for the applicant.

Mr. T. Forbes (instructed by Mr. D. P. Morris) appeared for the defendant.

INJURED WORKER'S APPLICATION

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Mr. Ashley Powell (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) applied for a review of a case under the Workmen's Compensation Act concerning John Finlay, 5 Grenville street, Dublin, who was injured in 1931 in the course of his employment with Messrs. Alex. Malcolm and Co., plastering contractors, Mespil road.

Mr. Powell said that the award to Finlay had varied from 35s. to one penny per week, and that an appeal in the High Court in January, 1934, fixed it at 8s. 4d., at which figure it still remained. The applicant, he said, was unable to do any work, as he was compelled to use a stick continuously when on his feet.

Dr. W. S. Haughton gave evidence in support of counsel's statement.

Finlay gave evidence as to his condition at present.

For the defence, Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Good and Murray) examined Dr. Charles McDonagh, a radiographer, and Surgeon J. F. Keegan, both of whom gave it as their opinion that Finlay was capable of doing certain work.

The judge reserved his decision.

COMPENSATION FOR INJURIES

Michael Waters, labourer, Palmerston place, Broadstone, applied for compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Acts in respect of an injury sustained by him while in the employment of the Dublin Tramways Company.

Mr. Ashley Powell (instructed by Mr. Boyle), for the applicant, said that Waters suffered from hernia as a result of being struck by an iron pole and thrown to the ground in September, 1933. He was paid 35s. a week for two weeks, and subsequently received his full wage of £2 12s. for light work until January last, when he returned to hospital owing to the impossibility of carrying on work. He was later dismissed.

Dr. M. D. Kavanagh told the Court that, owing to his condition as a result of the hernia, Waters was unfit to do any manual work.

Surgeon Chance and Dr. Boucher Hayes, for the respondents, stated that Waters was unfit for work, not on account of hernia, but on account of kidney trouble.

The Judge held that the applicant was partially incapacitated and was entitled to compensation at the rate of £1 per week.

Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.) appeared for the Tramways Company.

LOSS OF THUMB

An application under the Workmen's Compensation Acts was made by Messrs. Richard Gough, builders, Sandymount, to vary an order of the Court for compensation awarded to Thomas Murtagh, Portland lane, Belvedere avenue.

Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Peeble, Knox and Pigott), for the applicants, said that the respondent was a bricklayer, and that while working for Messrs. Gough lost the top of the thumb of his right hand. The last order for compensation awarded him 35s. a week until such time as he was given light work. He was taken back on two occasions, but his services were dispensed with because his work was not satisfactory. The applicants' contention was that Murtagh was quite capable of doing his ordinary work as a bricklayer, and their application was for an order stopping the compensation.

Dr. C. Robinson and Surgeon Morrin gave evidence that, in their opinion, there was no reason whatever why Murtagh should not resume work as a bricklayer. There was, they said, a certain wasting of the thumb, but this was from disuse.

For the respondent Dr. J. Owens was examined by Mr. McLaughlin (instructed by Messrs. James J. O'Connor and Co.), and stated that, owing to the tenderness of his thumb, Murtagh would find it difficult to use tools. He was of opinion that he might be able to do the full work of a bricklayer in three months from now.

Murtagh, in evidence, said that he was unable to use the thumb. He had not applied for a job, as he would not be employed by any builder except as a competent tradesman capable of starting and finishing a job. On the two occasions that he had been brought back to Messrs. Gough he made an honest attempt to work, but had to give it up.

The Judge, dismissing the application of Messrs. Gough, with costs, suggested that the respondent should make some attempt to improve the thumb. [illegible] than living on the £1 15s. that he was getting every week.

CLUB FINED £25

(BEFORE MR. G. P. CUSSEN.)

A fine of £25 was imposed on the British Legion Club, Bachelor's Walk, Dublin, for supplying for consumption on the premises and for permitting consumption of drink on the premises at 11.45 p.m.

Inspector Doody said that he found ten men at the bar and two men behind the bar with their coats off.

The secretary of the club (Mr. McLean) said that the bar was closed that night at 9 o'clock, but when a game of billiards concluded about 11.30 he was asked by the men for a drink and he opened the bar.

Mr. T. Clark (Free State Solicitor's Department) prosecuted, and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Mr. A. Clarke) defended.

CHARGE OF STEALING CAR

Thomas O'Shaughnessy, 62 Dartmouth square, and Edmond Leamy, 18 Annavilla, Ranelagh, Dublin, described as clerks, were remanded until Monday next on a charge of stealing a Morris Cowley motor car, the property of Mr. Albert Conneff, St. Helen's road, Monkstown.

There were other charges against them of having the car in their possession, driving the car on the public highway without being vehicle-insurers or guarantors.

Sergeant Fenton said that he saw a motor car outside 16 Connaught place, and seated in the car were the two defendants, partly asleep. He charged them with stealing the car and had them brought to Donnybrook station, where, on the charge being repeated, they said they had merely being sitting in the car out of the rain.

Bail was allowed.

THE GATE RE-OPENS

A PLAY ABOUT ST. FRANCIS

The Marriage of St. Francis. By Henri Ghéon. Translated by Father Martindale, S.J.

Francis Bernadone ....Micheal MacLiammoir
Father Leo ....Robert Hennessy
Brother Illuminato ....Roy Irving
The Unknown ....Coralie Carmichael

"The Marriage of St. Francis," with which the Gate Theatre opened its winter season last night, is the nearest approach to the old Miracle Play which we are likely to see on a modern stage. It tells a sacred story—in this case the life of St. Francis of Assisi—almost without comment, and with a simplicity which allows the author to bring not only angels before the audience, but to embody such abstract ideas as Poverty, Chastity and Obedience. The simplicity merges strangely, but not unnaturally, with the depth of the play itself and the elaborate way in which it has been produced; there is something else at fault, and it is very hard to say what that may be. Perhaps it is because the author has not moulded the life of the saint into a dramatic story, or perhaps in his portrayal of Francis the saint he has forgotten Francis the man.

Francis is a very human character in the opening scenes, and his meeting with "Lady Poverty" in the first act is probably the highest point reached in the play. The picture of the rich young nobleman, anxious to espouse saintly poverty and suddenly made to realise that poverty is not picturesque, but ugly and miserable, could not have been much better conceived. The real extent of the sacrifice is shown us in a few words and with great force. The next act, too—in which Francis is found struggling to fulfil his task in face of the ignorance and irreligion of the people around him—is vivid and alive.

It was the man becoming a saint in which one's interest had been aroused, but only the saint remains after the first two acts. The spiritual development of Francis, his physical austerities and the progress of his ministry are shown to us, but a rather cold perfection has taken the place of the flesh and blood, and the figure of Francis tends to become almost as abstract as that of Lady Poverty. Now and again there is a glimpse of the human being—as in the scene after his ecstasy on the mountain—but it is only a passing glimpse.

Under these limitations Micheal MacLiammoir acted his part extremely well and with an unfailing dignity of speech and gesture. All the attention was focussed on this character—perhaps, indeed, the author might have improved the play if he had drawn some of his other characters in more detail—and it speaks well for Mr. MacLiammoir that the attention seldom wavered. Among the other members of a very large cast Coralie Carmichael was very good, and there was some good acting also by Robert Hennessy, Roy Irving, Art O'Murnaghan, Meriel Moore, and Betty Chancellor.

One of the features of the production was the excellence of the settings, which were all very striking and imaginative. The best, perhaps, was the mountain scene in the fourth act, but the others were scarcely below it. The music, specially composed by Adolphe Gébler, was also very good.

SECRETS OF THE HERBS

CEYLON SAVES THEM FROM OBLIVION

The old controversy over the value of medicinal herbs is being raised again through the successes of herbal exponents in Ceylon.

One of them has cured of many ills a Russian lady who once led a Cossack regiment, was wounded five times, and decorated again and again by the Tsarist Government. She is Madam Gardo, author, painter, traveller and linguist — she sings in thirty-nine languages—who has been travelling the world in search of health.

Some years ago she fell ill. Specialists failed to cure her. Then in Ceylon she was introduced to a well-known Colombo physician, who, she asserts, diagnosed her ailments and cured her with herbal remedies in a few days. Now she is to "tell the world" of her miraculous recovery.

Dr. Paul Pieris, Trade Commissioner for Ceylon in London, said recently: "I have no information about this particular case, but I have known many instances where our native doctors have been successful when Western science could provide no remedy. With secret herbal medicines, which have been handed down from father to son for generations, they can accomplish a great deal. The only drawback is that they jealously guard their knowledge, and if a doctor dies without an heir his secrets are often lost.

"It seems not unrasonable that the people of the tropics should, with the experience of centuries, have discovered remedies for tropical ailments. I am glad to say we in Ceylon are awakening to a realisation of the importance of saving the knowledge still available from exinction."

FISH BY THE MILLION

MAKING SURE OF A GOOD CATCH

The Provincial Government of Alberta and the Federal Government of Canada have been co-operating in a mass-migration scheme for the benefit of fishermen. The lakes and streams of the Province, which for years have attracted sportsmen from all parts of the North American Continent, were, during the past season, restocked through the various hatcheries with an impressive array of fingerlings and fry. This year the process is being repeated on a larger scale, the eggs including 800,000 speckled trout, 1,450,000 rainbow trout and 875,000 cut-throat trout.

The restocking, however, has more than a purely sporting value. The export of fish is a considerable industry in Canada. During the first half of this year fish and fish products were sent to sixty-six countries, their total value running to £2,000,000. For the whole of 1934 Canada's fishery exports were valued at roughly £4,500,000.

MARBLES, NOT COUNTERFOILS

RHODESIA'S FIRST SWEEPSTAKE

Only Rhodesian residents are allowed to take part in the first Rhodesian sweepstake, the draw for which will take place in Salisbury on 20th December. Children and natives of the Colony are barred.

So ends a long and heated controversy and begins a new experiment in State-regulated flutters. Last year the Government put the question to the country in the form of a referendum, and the decision was a considerable majority in favour of a State controlled sweep. The Rhodesian Parliament then passed the necessary regulations, and now only minor details remain to be settled.

There will be no pageantry about the draw, no girls in musical comedy costumes, no elephants in the streets, or similar waste of the punters' money. The machinery ordered consists of five electrically revolved drums. No counterfoils are put into these, instead marbles marked with separate digits will be inserted in four with letters of the alphabet in the other. Thus the serial letter and the units, tens, hundreds and thousands will be drawn independently.

The drums will be kept revolving continuously, and a turn of the handle will release one marble at a time.

The draw will take place in a large hall, open to the public, and the Minister of Finance will preside. The present suggestion is that an unemployed man shall operate the fateful handle.

"CALLING UP" IN CHINATOWN

BY NAME INSTEAD OF NUMBER

One of the world's queerest telephone exchanges is situated in the Chinatown district of San Francisco. It serves the Chinese population of the city, of whom over 2,500 are on the telephone. The building which houses the exchange is shaped like a three-tiered Pagoda. Its gaily-decorated roof and balconies are painted in green, red, and black.

Three generations of the same Chinese family have acted as telephone operators at the exchange. Thirty-four years ago pig-tailed Chan Yung Lai was one of the first men operators. To-day his bob-haired grand-daughter, Elizabeth Lee, sits at the modern switchboard of the exchange. Chan's daughter, mother of Elizabeth Lee, has just retired after 25 years' service at the exchange. She had the longest record of the Chinese women operators, who replaced the men 28 years ago.

There are nineteen operators in the exchange to-day. They all have to know the name of every one of the 2,500 subscribers on the exchange, for the Chinese insist on calling by name instead of by number.

The Chinese telephone directory published in San Francisco is the only one of its kind in the world, outside China. It is distributed to many other parts of America, as the Chinese are frequent users of the trunk services. The entries in the directory are placed alphabetically under the names of streets. The street with the most 'phone subscribers comes first.

SCOTS PINE AND DOUGLAS FIR

WITHSTAND TWO YEARS' IMMERSION

Scotland and Canada have survived with flying colours one of the most rigorous tests ever applied to timber.

With a view to discovering which woods, of the requisite strength and resilience, were the best for harbour work, the Southern Railway, two years ago, commenced extensive tests by which fourteen types were subjected, in Dover Harbour, to the attack of marine organisms. The woods included:—Greenheart, pyinkado, teak, karri, jerrah, ekki, blue gum, turpentine, creosoted Douglas fir and creosoted Scots pine.

Inspections have from time to time been made in the presence of experts and the resistance of the timbers carefully noted. The third inspection, which has just been made, shows that all the hardwoods, except pyinkado, have been affected more or less severely in the two years' immersion, but the Douglas fir and the Scots pine are more or less intact.

The results confirm the verdict of the experts responsible for the Falmouth Harbour works, where creosoted Douglas fir has been used for the past ten years. In Canada it has been found that Douglas fir, when properly creosoted, will withstand attack indefinitely, while in San Francisco Harbour fir piling, which has been in place for twenty-nine years and was pulled up to make way for new harbour development, was in such excellent condition that the greater proportion of it was used again in the new constructions.

MILLIONS OF SEEDS

ADELAIDE GOES ALL FLORAL

Several millions of seeds, bulbs, slips, shoots, cuttings, and graftings are now being prepared, tended, and jealously guarded by the whole of the nurserymen, florists, business people and citizens of Adelaide, South Australia. The city, in honour of its centenary next year, intends, with a unanimity and singleness of purpose not always apparent in a metropolis of 326,000 people, to go more completely floral than any city has ever gone before. Even office boys, butcher boys, golf caddies, and daily maids are growing things in their little gardens for general use and decoration.

Every house, shop, factory, warehouse and building will have its window boxes. At the peak of the celebrations, the streets will be thickly festooned with flowers; flowers will bloom in little plots alongside the pavements, and even electric tram poles will be garlanded. Processions of flower-floats and battles of flowers will be held, and, in case the supply of blooms runs short, Adelaide is already busy making artificial ones.

Italians are forming a very large percentage of aliens in Australia, who, fearing international complications in the Abyssinian dispute, and to avoid liability for military service, have recently applied for British naturalisation. Sixty Italians have [illegible] in 25 days, and have paid £250 in fees, compared with the normal monthly average of 15 and £60. Many Italians are [illegible] in the Queensland cane-sugar growing areas, and are doing well.

AUSTRALIA'S HIGHEST PEAK

ITS POLISH DISCOVERER

CENTENARY OF MOUNT KOSCIUSZKO

THIS year marks the 100th anniversary of the discovery in 1835 by Count Edmund Strzelecki of Mount Kosciuszko, the highest peak in Australia. Count Strzelecki, a Polish patriot, explorer, geologist, philanthropist, writer and engineer, was born in the province of Poznan in 1796. He graduated from the University of Krakow before he was forced, for political reasons, to leave the then partitioned Poland for England.

He was a man with wanderlust, and his travels were extensive, for we find that they embraced North and South America, from Chile to California; China, the East Indies, Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, Oceania and Russia. He travelled with a scientific purpose, and wrote many scientific treatises which benefited English science no little. His first book, "The Physical Description of New South Wales and Van Diemensland," was published in London in 1845. It was hailed as the best description of Australia England has had up to that time. On the first page of his book, the author describes as the duty of the explorer "not to refute the experiments of others, nor to show that they are erroneous, but to discover the truth and that alone."

The book described the results of his surveys in Southern Australia. It touched upon the climate, geology, botany and zoology, as well as the physical, moral, and social state of the aborigines of this hitherto unknown land. It revealed facts that could be learned only in such a manner as he collected them, through a seven thousand mile trek on foot through the most dangerous wilds of Australia. For this work the Royal Geographical Society presented him with the Founders Gold Medal in 1846.

DISCOVERY OF GOLD

In 1839 Count Strzelecki found gold in large quantities in various parts of New South Wales. This discovery was kept secret from the rest of the world for some time, in deference to the views of Sir George Gipps, then Governor of New South Wales, who feared that a gold rush would cause havoc in the population made up largely of immigrants sent from England. Few encyclopedias recognise this fact and give credit for the discovery to Mr. E. Hargreaves, a gold miner from California. The Royal Geographical Society, however, recognises Count Strzelecki as the original discoverer, and states that "the maintenance of the secrecy which was imposed by the Governor of New South Wales was rigidly observed and highly honourable to Count Strzelecki." In 1853 the Legislative Council of New South Wales in a hearing decided that: "The discovery of gold near Wellington in the year 1839 by Count Strzelecki is indisputably established."

MOUNT KOSCIUSZKO

Count Strzelecki surveyed the Australian Alps in 1835, and during that year he discovered and named Mount Kosciuszko, the highest mountain in Australia. Although Poland was not an internationally recognised country, he always carried a Polish flag. On his ship he always had the Polish flag on the second mast, and when he named Mount Kosciuszko he planted a Polish flag in the soil. The feeling for his homeland can best be expressed by his own words, stated upon the naming of this mountain: "The particular configuration of this eminence struck me so forcibly by the similarity it bears to a tumulus erected at Krakow over the tomb of the patriot Kosciuszko, that although in a foreign country, on foreign ground, but among free people, who appreciate freedom and its votaries, I could not refrain from giving it the name of Mount Kosciuszko."

While exploring the Australian Alps, he also named another mountain "Adina" after his beloved fiancée, Miss Adina Turno (nee Turczess). He himself was honoured by a fellow-explorer, Captain King, who named a chain of mountains the "Strzelecki Range." There is also a creek which is named the "Strzelecki Creek."

A point of interest lies in the fact that Count Strzelecki always remained a Polish citizen. For his great works England gave him titles; these he accepted, but he never took out English citizenship papers. Because he was brought up in the Province of Posen, then a portion of the Prussian partition, even Prussia made claim of his labours as those of a Prussian.

COUNT STRZELECKI

Count Strzelecki had many prominent friends, among whom we find the Secretary of Colonies, Sir George Biyes; the Chief Justice of the High Court, Sir John Pedder. Even Queen Victoria interested herself in the valuable work of Count Strzelecki. Another great Pole, Joseph Conrad Korzeniowski, who was a very close friend of the Count's, used many stories of his adventures in his writings.

His later travels took him to Hawaii and New Zealand, and about these islands he wrote a treatise called "Geological Problems." The great-grand nephew and niece of Count Strzelecki have a trunk full of his maps, papers, sketches, manuscripts, etc. Though very wealthy, he cared little for riches, but always used it for some philanthropic work. It is an established fact that Count Strzelecki's explorations were entirely at his own expense. During the Irish famine of 1847-8 he donated huge sums for the relief of the stricken and rendered numerous personal services.

LATER YEARS

His later years brought him many honours: in 1849, a Fellowship of the Royal Geographical Society, a Commandership of Bath, a D.C.L. (Doctor of Civil Law) degree from Oxford University, and a Knight Commandership of the Order of Sts. Michael and George.

He never wrote any biography, or last will, yet when he died, a bachelor, on October 6, 1873, at 25 Saville Row, London, a John Lamb Sarwent filed in Her Majesty's Court a last will (?). Through this will he placed himself as sole administrator and executor of Count Strzelecki's vast estate. Count Arthur Erasm de Strzelecki, of Strzelce, as representative of the relations, went to London to protect the family's rights. He obtained an injunction and an investigation gation was ordered by the Court. When the Court decided in the family's favour, Sarwent appealed to a higher court. Before the case was renewed Count Arthur died in London. When the case did re-open the family was not notified of it, and it was undefended, and Sarwent won the decision. In the records of Somerset House is found: Fos. 10—L.O. K686 marked as the official will, and this will states: "The effects of the estate amounted to £10,000"! Such was the manner in which this great estate was disposed.

LINK WITH NAPOLEON

The nearest relative of the explorer was Count Rupert Isidor Strzelecki, a distinguished officer of Napoleon's army, who served from 1792-1815 in the first regiment lancers. Count Rupert, in 1814, was the recipient of the title and medal of "Cavalier of the Legion of Honor" from the hand of Napoleon, and in 1857 he received the Medal of St. Helene. These medals can be seen at the Strzelecki home in America. During the Napoleonic wars the Strzelecki estates suffered great losses. They were confiscated and then reparcelled by the Russians. But little remains of the original Strzelecki estates, and these are in the Lodz district, and are owned by Count Marjan Strzelecki. Count Rupert had loaned Napoleon 40,000 Polish ducats which France had never repaid to the family. For Count Rupert's twenty-three years of service in the French Army (not the Legion) not one cent was paid to him or to the family. These are historical facts which have never before been exposed.

The preceding biography of Count Strzelecki is supported by documents and proofs in libraries. With the above we come to a close, and remember that this year is the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery and naming of Mount Kosciuszko. The Polish people can take a pardonable pride in looking forward to the Centennial Jubilee of the discovery and naming of this mountain.

TWENTY-FIVE SHILLINGS WORTH OF GOLD

PROSPECTORS' WICKLOW FIND

MR. HEISER TO GIVE EVIDENCE

THE Select Committee appointed by the Dail to inquire into the demise of certain State mining rights in the County Wicklow sat yesterday at Leinster House. Mr. W. Norton, Chairman, was present; and also Messrs. T. P. Dowdall, J. Good, S. Moore, J. Coburn, and O. Traynor. The proceedings had not begun at 3.30 p.m. owing to lack of a quorum. At 3.40 Mr. James Geoghegan, T.D., arrived, and, a quorum then being present, the inquiry proceeded.

The Chairman (Mr. Norton) read a letter from Messrs. M. J. O'Connor and Co., solicitors, Arklow, dated 4th October, 1935, to the Secretary of the Select Committee, enclosing the only documents which, they said, had been handed to them by Mr. Norman. The letter stated:—"If he be correctly reported in the issue of the Irish Independent of the 3rd inst., he, in the course of his evidence before the Select Committee on the 2nd inst., stated that he had also handed us a letter which 'Mr. Briscoe wrote to him saying that he was letting the thing drop, and asking what nominal sum witness would accept.' No such letter was handed to us by anyone at any time. Further, we would draw the attention of the Select Committee to the following statement made by Mr. Norman in his evidence, as reported in the same newspaper, namely:—'His former partners got not only the assignment, but all the documents that he had handed to his solicitor, Mr. M. J. O'Connor, Arklow.' We at once take exception to any such statement by Mr. Norman, or by any other person, because, being untrue, it casts a reflection upon us in our professional capacity. There is absolutely no truth in such a statement, and it was made by Mr. Norman without having taken any steps to satisfy himself that there was the slightest foundation for same, and therefore it was made recklessly, and not caring whether it was true or false."

It must be obvious to any person that to accuse a solicitor of handing over documents belonging to a client to a third person without such client's consent is a very disparaging and serious accusation when it is not founded on fact. We would not for a moment entertain the idea of doing any such thing in this or any other matter.

In this particular instance we were never even asked by Mr. Briscoe or Senator Comyn, or by any person on behalf of them or either of them, to hand over to them or either of them any documents which had been handed to us by Mr. Norman.

MR. HEISER TO ATTEND

The Chairman also read a letter from Messrs. Allen, Fairfield, solicitors, London, on behalf of Mr. Maurice Heiser, stating that Mr. Heiser was ready and willing to attend sittings of the Committee at all reasonable times provided that "he would be accorded personal protection, and that his reasonable travelling and hotel expenses would be met." Mr. Heiser was prepared to give all assistance reasonably expected of him to facilitate the Select Committee in arriving at the truth in this matter.

The Chairman said that that letter had been written as a result of inquiries made by the Secretary as to Mr. Heiser's whereabouts. A reply had been sent stating that to-morrow (Wednesday) was the date fixed for Mr. Heiser's attendance.

Mr. G. Norman then resumed his evidence, and, replying to Mr. S. Moore, said that it was on his initiative that the nine townlands for which leases were to be applied for were selected. Messrs. Comyn and Briscoe, he said, had no definite knowledge of the best places to work, although, from inquiries made in the district, they had learned that gold had been found there

Asked by Mr. Moore to explain what he meant by stating that he had to act on occasions as a chauffeur for Mr. Briscoe and drive his car to political meetings, witness replied that there was no compulsion about it, but on occasions Mr. Briscoe had asked him to drive his car for him; he thought, once to Drogheda, and on some occasions around Dublin near York street and Grantham street, and once to a place called Power's court, off Mount street, where Mr. Briscoe passed the remark: "We will be lucky if we don't get hit by a bottle here." He did not attach undue importance to this driving; but, though he was willing to oblige, he did not like being made use of in this manner when he could have been otherwise engaged.

FRENCH MONEY

Mr. Moore—Was it in confidence that Mr. Briscoe told you about his arrangements with his French friends?

Witness—No; it was common property between Briscoe, Comyn and myself. Monsieur Fugerole came over, and was down once at Woodenbridge on business. He was down on other occasions as a friend of Mr. Briscoe.

Mr. Moore—Was it Mr. Briscoe who told you about this advance of money?—He did not tell me, but I heard Senator Comyn say to him in my presence: "Give the French back their money and tell them to go to hell."

Mr. Moore—You did not know it before?—I did not know that money had actually passed, but I knew that the French were to advance money to keep me going at Woodenbridge until they sent their own experts.

Did Mr. Briscoe tell you that the continuance of the work depended on French support?—Yes. There were several holds-up on the job. They were to send their own experts, which they did. I was waiting in Woodenbridge for them.

You just over-heard this?—I have no documents to prove it.

Your information now is that from an overheard conversation—— Witness—No, from a conversation which took place in my presence. If there are three people in a room and one man makes a remark openly to another, the third hears it, naturally.

Did Mr. Briscoe tell you that they advanced him 2,000 francs?—No, but he did tell me that they were to provide 2,000 francs to carry on my work until such time as they came over. When I heard Mr. Comyn tell Mr. Briscoe to give the French people back their money, I, naturally, assumed that they had got that money.

PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

Chairman—Have you any engineering qualifications?—Witness said he had no recognised qualifications, but he had practical experience in the manufacture of mining machinery, and four years with the British Thompson Heuston Company.

What precise complaint have you against Deputy Briscoe and Senator Comyn?—First of all, they refer to me as being nothing but a vocabulary. I would like to know where Mr. Briscoe got his vocabulary concerning mining, if not from me.

The Chairman said that he wanted to know what complaints witness had against them as regards the lease. Witness—I have no complaint. I take it I was summoned to the committee to give all the evidence I know and put all the facts before it. I personally am satisfied. I do not look back with regret when a thing is over. I take things as they come.

The Chairman—What was your authority for prospecting in this area for gold in 1933?—It was based on the goodwill of Senator Comyn and Mr. Briscoe.

Did you know if they had any lease entitling you to prospect in that area?—I knew they had no lease.

So that minerals were prospected for without any lease?—Yes.

Was any gold found during that period?—Yes; infinitely small pieces, only what would be sufficient for microscopic examination.

From your experience of mining did you not think it unusual to prospect without a lease? The witness replied that they had applied for a lease and that Deputy Briscoe had told an official of the Department that he was going to prospect in good faith and wanted to know what would be done about it.

The Chairman—Were you present when he told an official that you were going down to prospect without a lease?—Yes.

Can you give us the name of the official?—It was in Mr. Maguire's office. I think he was there.

Was any dissent expressed by the Department?—I would not say there was dissent, but I say they told Mr. Briscoe that if he did it they supposed he did it at his own risk, but I do not remember the exact details.

The Chairman—You know that the Mines and Minerals Act does not allow people to prospect without a lease?—I am aware of that.

A SHILLING IN GOLD

The Chairman—Have you any idea of the value of the gold found in this mine?—I suppose one shilling would cover it all.

The Chairman—Does that cover the whole period?—Up to the time the Department told us to prepare an application for a lease for three townlands. Afterwards we got more gold, which, I suppose, would be worth more than a shilling to-day.

From April, 1933, until the end of June have you any approximate idea of what gold was obtained?—I suppose it would not be more than a pennyweight—that would be about 7s. worth.

The Chairman—Was that because of the difficulty in finding it, or because you were not seriously prospecting?—No prospector goes out to get gold, he goes out to find where the gold is.

Were you satisfied with what you found?—Yes; it gave me a definite idea to work upon to form a report. Before I sold my interest to Senator Comyn and Mr. Briscoe I asked Mr. Briscoe would he think it advisable if I wrote my prospector's report on the thing and published it, but he did not think it was necessary.

Did they share your satisfaction with what you discovered in the area in 1933 generally?—Up to the period from March to June they showed their satisfaction to me, but in the period from November, 1933, to April, 1934, they were a little dissatisfied, and did not think there was any gold there worth bothering about. Frankly, my opinion was that they thought that when I would go down to Woodenbridge that I would come back with hunks of gold, but I think they were rather disappointed when they only saw little tiny specks.

A PROFIT

In reply to Mr. Dowdall, witness said that during the time that he and the man with him worked the place they got in all gold to the value of about 25s. That, however, was found in the first two or three days. If they had been allowed to carry on at that spot he believed that they would have found enough gold to have paid their expenses for the three weeks there, but they were sent by Senator Comyn to try out other places, and, as they were dependent on Senator Comyn for the money, they had to do what he asked.

Mr. Dowdall asked witness whether he believed if this £80,000 company were formed the mine could be worked at a profit.

Witness said he believed that it could, but it would be a small profit—just a border line. He did not attach a great deal of importance to the gold-mining in County Wicklow. As minerals went in Wicklow, the gold only ranked third, commercially.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Dowdall, witness said that if Messrs. Briscoe and Comyn had really meant to drop the whole matter he would not have considered he was badly treated in getting £25 for his interest. He was sorry that the letter from Mr. Briscoe saying they were dropping the matter had been misplaced. He thought he had handed it to the solicitor. Mr. Briscoe had stated to witness's father and mother that they were dropping the matter.

Witness went on to say that Senator Comyn knew Heiser before meeting him at the Gresham Hotel, and had a photograph of him panning gravel. To all intents and purposes, said witness, they kept the whole thing from him, and in that way he thought he had been badly treated

The Committee adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Norman's evidence will be completed, and Mr. Breen and Mr. Heiser will be examined.

AN IRISH SCHOOL OF PAINTING

BROADCAST DEBATE IN DUBLIN

It was agreed by Mr. Sean Keating, the well-known Irish artist, and Mr. Frank O'Connor, the novelist, in the course of a debate on the question, "What is an Irish School of Painting?" broadcast from Dublin last night, that such a school did not exist, and if it did exist they did not quite know what it would be like.

They agreed also that the word "school," as applied to a crowd of painters, no matter what their nationality, was just a label. Mr. Keating observed that the people had a passion for abasing themselves before distinctions, and if the distinctions were not there they invented them. He held there was too much art education already, and not sufficient art. The Government, he suggested, should subsidise art as a sort of intellectual dynamite, just as other countries were paying for armies and aeroplanes. For the same gratuitous reason they should subsidise pictures and statues.

"It seems to be taken for granted abroad," said Mr. Keating, "that you must have an army to crack up your country and put the other fellows to shame. Let us have our art as well—give us a painters' tattoo." He did not think there was any use in crying out for money for pictures in a country where no one cared about pictures.

Mr. O'Connor thought that the Church could do all that was wanted, and more, without asking for anyone's money, and give the people the first taste of a real art education. Was it not possible, he asked, that their school of painting would be a school of religious painting?

Mr. Keating expressed the view that the only thing the Church could do for art was to provide the artists with increased space for decoration. The Church could scrape down the walls of every religious building in Ireland and employ painters to decorate them again.

DUBLIN WEDDING

THE O'DONOGHUE OF THE GLENS AND MISS K. FINNEGAN

At St. Andrew's Church, Westland row, Dublin, yesterday morning, The O'Donoghue of the Glens (Mr. Geoffrey O'Donoghue), of Moate, Co. Westmeath, son of the late The O'Donoghue of the Glens (Mr. Geoffrey O'Donoghue), Ballinahowen House, Co. Westmeath, was married to Miss Kathleen Finnegan, daughter of the late Mr. Patrick Finnegan, Rathvilly, Co. Carlow, and Mrs. Finnegan, 79 Merrion square, Dublin.

The Very Rev. Father P. Donnelly, P.P., Graiguenamanagh, uncle of the bride, officiated and celebrated the Nuptial Mass.

Miss M. Finnegan (sister of the bride) was the bridesmaid, and Mr. H. Quinn acted as best man.

After the wedding a reception was held in the Royal Hibernian Hotel, Dublin.

The honeymoon will be spent in England and on the Continent.

THE LATE MR. W. E. SHACKLETON

At a special meeting of the Council of the Irish Industrial Development Association (Incorporated), held yesterday at the offices, 102-3 Grafton street, Dublin, the following resolution was passed unanimously:—

"That the Council of the Irish Industrial Development Association (Incorporated) desire, on their own behalf and that of the members of the Association, to express their deep sorrow at the death of their beloved president, the late Mr. W. E. Shackleton, and to tender sincere sympathy to every member of his family in their great loss. From its foundation Mr. Shackleton was one of the outstanding members of the Association, and was untiring in his devotion to its affairs and interests and to the furtherance of the objects of the Irish industrial movement generally. The Council find themselves unable to express all that the Association owes to his wise and disinterested guidance, the loss of which in the future they so deeply deplore."

The meeting then adjourned.

BOOT AND SHOE INDUSTRY

MORE WORKERS EMPLOYED

BIG DROP IN IMPORTED GOODS

THE home boot and shoe industry, states the current issue of the "Irish Trade Journal," has undergone a remarkable degree of development since the establishment of the Free State in 1922. The growth of production since 1926 is shown in the following table:—

	Gross output (dozen pairs.)	Net selling Value. £
1926	41,820	317,700
1931	55,034	400,966
1933	132,447	755,521
1934	159,300	(not available)

A shortage of skilled labour was one of the difficulties with which newly-established firms—which are of the most efficient and highly developed type—were faced; but this has been met by, in some cases (perhaps, only one), sending national workers to England for training; bringing in some trained key workers; by affording instruction in classes carried on under the auspices of local Vocational Educational Committees. The step taken to permit the free importation under licence of limited quantities of cut parts, especially uppers, not only facilitated the manufacturers, but also helped to train the workers by gradual process. In December, 1934, the number of persons engaged in the industry was 2,999, while that for the preceding five years was 2,524, 1,714, 1,125, 1,125 and 999, respectively.

BIG DROP IN IMPORTS

Leather footwear is still an important Free State import, but the value of imports from 1924 to 1935 has decreased from £1,907,652 to £255,568. Since 1931 the decline has been very marked, the quantity of imports has fallen from 325,388 dozen pairs to 196,965 dozen pairs in 1934.

Imports constituted 55 per cent. of total consumption of leather footwear in 1934, compared with 89 per cent. in 1926. For this decrease in imports of boots and shoes the application of protective tariffs is primarily responsible, continues the article, which then enumerates the various protective tariffs imposed on this class of article.

The manufacture of boots and shoes, concludes the "Irish Trade Journal," is an industry for the development of which Irish conditions are suitable. Nevertheless, only a very small proportion of the country's requirements was being supplied by Free State factories in 1922, when the Irish Free State came into being.

£4,000,000 A YEAR

During the last quarter of the nineteenth century the organisation of the English boot-making industry had been transformed to a mass production basis, and the consequent competition of cheap machine-made boots gradually "ousted" the hand-made product of the Irish craftsman shoemaker. A small number of Irish boot-making factories was in existence before the end of the century, one in Dublin being established as early as 1856. These factories were well equipped, and kept pace with the many changes in machinery, but conditions were not then favourable to further growth. In 1921 imports of footwear into Ireland were valued at nearly £4,000,000, almost all of which came from Great Britain. Factories are now distributed throughout the country.

WHEAT-GROWING IN DUBLIN

A HUGE CROP REPORTED

A wheat test carried out under the County Dublin Committee of Agriculture, which gave a yield of a little over eighteen barrels to the statute acre, was spoken of by the Instructor to the Committee (Mr. M. O'Connell) at their meeting yesterday in Dublin.

The Chairman (Mr. R. Blake) said that extensive trials had been carried out in the County Dublin to discover what types of wheat and other cereals were the most profitable, both from the point of view of the miller and of the grower. He considered that the Secretary should be instructed to have the results of these trials published in the Press, in order that farmers could tell, without time-wasting experiment, which type of wheat would be most likely to give the highest yield, which would be the strongest to stand up to the weather, etc.

When the Instructor gave the example quoted above, which was the only result available, Mr. J. Richardson remarked: "I think you could take that result with caution."

The Instructor explained that the trial had been conducted on land of a particularly rich quality.

The Committee decided to leave the matter over until full results of all the trials were available

It was also decided, on the recommendation of a sub-committee, to purchase an Irish draught horse for stud use in the county.

A resolution was ordered to be sent to the County Council from the sub-committee advising that a closer supervision should be maintained, so that undipped sheep would not be sent into the County Dublin from other counties. The sub-committee, in a report, stated that several cases of such movement had recently been brought to their notice.

THREW INKPOT AT CRUCIFIX

PRISONERS FIGHT WITH KNIVES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WARSAW, Tuesday.

Prisoners convicted of organising demonstrations during a Catholic procession broke loose from their guards in court to-day, and attacked a seventh prisoner, who had been acquitted, as soon as the verdict was read out. He had betrayed them, they shouted.

A fierce fight with daggers and knives, which the prisoners had hidden in their pockets, followed, and the acquitted man was badly wounded.

Soon the mêlee spread outside the court-house, and a wild crowd was only subdued after the police had made a number of arrests.

It had been alleged that the prisoners, who were Nationalist anti-Semites, had profaned a Catholic procession by throwing an inkpot at a crucifix.

SAORSTAT ALUMINIUM FOR BAGHDAD

A very high compliment has just been paid to the quality of the aluminium ware produced by the Irish Aluminium Company, Ltd., at Nenagh, and to the keen marketing organisation of this new Irish industry. A large consignment of aluminium military water bottles has already been sent to Baghdad, and two further substantial orders have been received for the same market, and will be filled during October. Consignments of domestic aluminium holloware have also been shipped to New Zealand.

ST. MICHAN'S AND ST. PAUL'S DEBATING SOCIETY

The opening meeting of St. Michan's and St. Paul's Literary and Debating Society was held on Monday last, at 8 p.m., in St. Michan's Schoolroom, the President, Canon E. J. Young, B.D., in the chair. The Rev. G. D. Hobson, M.A., proposed:—"That the League of Nations is worthy of support," and was followed in the affirmative by Messrs. R. Luke and W. D. Maslin. The rejection of the motion was moved by Mr. W. Kennedy, Miss A. Nolan, and Messrs. A. Murphy and J. Wilson also spoke against the motion, and it was lost by four votes.

MR. CHURCHILL'S DESIRE

EARLY ELECTION IN BRITAIN

FRANCE'S TORTURING DILEMMA

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL urged the need for an early general election when he addressed his constituents at Chingford last night.

The time was coming, he said, when the Government should throw itself boldy on the nation and demand a renewal of confidence.

"Every enemy of Britain is hoping that the Socialists will come into power, and it is part of their propaganda to say: 'Wait a bit; these British will soon be humbled again like they were in 1931.'"

APPEAL NOT IN VAIN

The Government, he added, should consider if it was not their duty to remove this factor of uncertainty from British trade, while from the constitutional viewpoint a Ministry faced in the last year of its life with such large issues should submit to the judgment of the country.

"I have no doubt that they will not appeal in vain."

Mr. Churchill spoke of the "painful, and even torturing," dilemma facing France at Geneva.

"They see the Germans arming night and day, spending at least 700 or 800 millions in borrowed money in a single year on warlike preparations.

"They know that Germany has nearly twice their man-power, and that this enormous martial population is being organised and equipped at a speed and at a cost never yet equalled in time of peace.

"In fact, Germany is, at this moment, living and working under war conditions, except that there is no actual fighting going on.

FRANCE AND BRITAIN

"If relations became strained between France and Italy the French would either have to bring their defensive force back from the north, or else call up more men from civil life to fill the gap. I hope that whatever happens there will be no recriminations between Britain and France.

"On the contrary, I hope this ordeal through which we are now passing will strengthen the ties, interests and comradeship which unite the two powerful British and French democracies, whose heart's desire is to be left in peace."

He concluded: "These are the times when we must stand together. We cannot afford at this juncture any divisions among those who wish to see peace preserved and the British Empire endure."

TO-DAY'S CABINET MEETING

SANCTIONS MAY BE DISCUSSED

The British Cabinet at its meeting to-day will consider domestic affairs, as well as the international situation. Most politicians feel that the course of events at Geneva is almost certain to require a meeting of Parliament before October 29, and the Parliamentary Labour Party (the official Opposition) has decided that a need for a speedy reassembly of the House already exists. In authoritative circles it is felt that the present circumstances do not call for an earlier meeting of Parliament. This view, however, does not exclude the possibility of such a change in the international situation as would require a revision of the parliamentary arrangements. Indeed, it is regarded as highly probable that events at Geneva in the next few days may make an emergency summons inevitable. The Cabinet will discuss the matter to-day.

Many of the Government's supporters hope that consideration will be given to the question of the next general election. There is a good deal of pressure in favour of a November election, which would be made all the more practicable by a reassembly of Parliament a week or a fortnight in advance of October 29. So far the Government leads have come to no decision on the subject, but they can have no doubts about the strength of the belief among their supporters that given the opportunity, the election should be held in November.

Another matter likely to receive attention is the possibility of sanctions being applied by the League against Italy. Much detailed examination of this problem already has been undertaken by the Government. Hitherto it has been assumed that hostile action by Italy in Abyssinia would lead to the immediate lifting of the arms embargo imposed by the British Government. Now, however, it is thought that this question is more likely to be left to the decision of the League's co-ordinating committee.

IRISH DRAUGHT HORSES

SUITABLE FOR ALL-ROUND WORK

EVIDENCE BEFORE COMMISSION

THE Irish draught horse was principally discussed by the witnesses who gave evidence yesterday before the Commission of Inquiry into the Free State's horse-breeding industry

A great deal of the evidence indicated that there had been too much unconsidered crossing of heavy horses of the Clydesdale and Shire with Irish mares. One witness mentioned that these crosses, being too violent, gave progeny that were unbalanced and unsuitable for any definite purpose.

The stamina of the Irish draught breed was emphasised, though one witness urged that the heavier horses would be more useful.

An interesting point raised was the necessity for riding ponies for the younger generation, so as to encourage a love of sport and create a continuing demand for riding horses.

The Commission met at 24 Upper Merrion street, Dublin, under the chairmanship of Mr. Justice Wylie, the other members present being Captain Gerald Martin, Mr. Maxwell Arnott, Senator J. J. Parkinson, Mr. Roderic More O'Ferrall, Mr. James Clarke, Mr. Sean Hyde, M.R.C.V.S.; Colonel Liam Hayes and Mr. Michael V. McKevitt.

Mr. P. J. Howard, M.R.C.V.S., of Ennis, was the first witness. He said that one heard occasionally, and some of them knew, of the great Irish horses that had made history. The Irish weight-carrying hunter and the Irish 'chaser were remarkable for spreading the fame of Irish horses. Racehorses were bred, however, for the purposes of racing only, and it did not matter whether they were crooked or straight if there was a possibility of their getting their heads first past the post. The breeding of hunters was an entirely different matter. The hunter, to be an economic or saleable proposition, must be bred on such lines that it would be as near as possible to perfection in appearance and performance. Since the foreign cart horse blood was allowed to penetrate into the best breeding districts in Ireland these horses had deteriorated, and the results were seen to-day in the dearth of good mares in the country. The British realised the importance of this when in 1911 they gave a special grant to foster the old Irish horse. It was a pity, he thought, that there was not an annual parade of Irish draught horses. Thoroughbred horses of the best and Irish draught horses should be encouraged. As a practical man farming 200 acres he knew that the Irish draught horse was suitable for any class of work on the farm. Such a horse would take a load of two tons as well as any other horse, and certainly it would take it up a hill when others would be left behind.

JUDGING MARES

Mares awarded premiums or selected for free nominations under the Irish Draught Horses Scheme should be branded, so that they could be identified, to eliminate any possible chance of substitution or fraud. Agricultural shows should be encouraged, as they were a practical demonstration to the people of what was considered the best. There should be an agricultural show in every county.

The Chairman—Do you think that the best horses are selected for the prizes?—Witness—I would rather not go into that. Sometimes the men sent down are incapable of selecting the best.

He agreed that a panel of judges should be established. It should be pointed out to the people who did the work that it was no joke and ought to be taken seriously. The man walking around with his mare was often as good a judge as the man making the awards, and would criticise the whole thing afterwards when it was improperly conducted. The people in charge of racing ought to see to it that the country meetings were supported. Long ago such meetings were the means of bringing forward the best horses in the world, and it was the only opportunity for small breeders to show their own animals. If State funds were to be used for the provision of high-class horses to breed racehorses, the fees ought to be reasonable for the small man. Unless they were up to a high standard of conformation and soundness, horses should not be on the register. If there was sufficient evidence that a horse on the register was producing unsaleable and unsuitable horses he should be destroyed. A decent attempt should be made to supervise further those mares that were awarded free nomination. Mares had been awarded nominations, and the owner had gone and made a bargain with the stallion owner not to send them at all, but to divide the money between themselves. Where a man was found contravening the rules he should be debarred from further participation in the horse-breeding schemes. Non-registered horses should not be allowed in the same premises as registered animals, as that led to abuses.

Horse-breeding, which was of such importance, should not be subservient to the other live-stock schemes. Good hunters were much scarcer now than they were a couple of years ago. It would be splendid if the Commission recommended that a grant be given to the Veterinary College to take up research work in regard to sterility and abortion. It would be of tremendous importance to the students and a considerable benefit to the country and the veterinary profession. The College might even attract post-graduate students from other countries.

WEIGHT NECESSARY

The second witness, Mr. Percy Nelson, Ferns, County Wexford, said that his experience of Irish draught horses was that they were all right for light work on a farm. Where heavy work was concerned weight should be put against weight, and consequently they were not as fit for a heavy job as the Clydesdale or Shire. They were also hotter in temperament and needed a better man at their head. He did not think that they could produce a pure blood hunter by crossing an Irish draught mare with a thoroughbred. The Irish draught would need a couple of crosses with a thoroughbred before they would get a class hunter. He believed, however, that the Irish draught had a place in hunter breeding, and was necessary to strengthen the thoroughbred blood.

Mr. B. S. O'Reilly, Cavan, said that he considered that the Irish draught should be encouraged, especially in counties like Cavan, where the holdings were small. The breed was more suitable for work on those holdings than the heavier type of imported horses. He knew that in recent years there was a prejudice against the breed because the sires introduced when the British administration set out to save the breed by improving it were not of a desirable type. It was doubtful if they were draught sires at all; they were rather a poor type of sire, bred on hunter lines. The prejudice against them remained, and some County Committees of Agriculture refused to touch the breed. The Department should have compulsory powers and use them to insist on a proportion of the nominations allotted to mares being made available for draught sires only; or a special scheme should be introduced dealing only with the breed. There were sires in the thoroughbred register, whose presence did not help to improve the breed of Irish hunters, and there were sires off it that were getting good class stock. Their services were not available for nominated mares; but the sire owner and the owner of the mare generally found a way out.

MORE STAMINA

He disagreed with the suggestion of the previous witness that for heavy farm work they should have weight for weight. He had an Irish draught and a Clydesdale, and his experience was that at the end of a heavy day the Irish draught was going strong when the Clydesdale was not able to pull his legs after him. The Irish draught should be encouraged with the ultimate aim of establishing him as the draught horse of this country. He thought that Shires should be denied registration. His experience was that an Irish draught mare mated to a thoroughbred produced a first-class hunter, and he had even experience of an excellent hunter being produced from Irish draught blood only. There should be something done to encourage the breeding of ponies, as there was a great dearth of riding ponies in some parts of Ireland. They had to look to the rising generation for support for the horse, and the best way to give the young men and women of the future an interest in the horse was to have an adequate supply of riding ponies all over the country. He knew that this would be a difficult task, because the hackney pony had destroyed the native riding pony years ago.

VIOLENT CROSSES

Mr. Michael McNelis, Ardara, County Donegal, said that in parts of Donegal, especially on Arranmore Island, there had been a good type of pony up to about fifteen years ago. These ponies were said to have come there originally from the wreck of the Spanish Armada. Connemara and Welsh ponies were introduced, and a good type of animal resulted. Now, however, the Clydesdale had made its appearance, and it was almost cruel to see an animal with the large body of a Clydesdale and the legs of a half-thoroughbred. The Irish draught horse was most suitable, and was better for that part of the country than the Clydesdale, which had been a failure. The ordinary small farmer bred without any regard for the type of animal, so long as it was of a big size and could be sold easily to another farmer.

The Commission adjourned until Friday week, the 18th inst.

Backache banished. Woman joyfully asserts: "I am free from those dreadful pains." Read her grateful tribute to Kruschen:

"I feel I must tell you of the benefit I have derived from Kruschen Salts. For about four months I had agonising pains in my back, and could not turn in bed. During that time I tried various remedies, but obtained no relief, and was seriously considering going into hospital. However, seeing a case similar to mine described in an advertisement for Kruschen, I thought I would try it, and was more than surprised to find the pain getting less. I have been taking Kruschen for four months and would not be without it for anything. I must say I am free from those dreadful pains. I might also mention I persuaded a neighbour to take them, and she said she feels better than she has done for a long time." Mrs. B. C., London, N.W.9.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Crab Apple Jelly : The Irish Cesarewitch : Trinity's Law Course : Plank Bridges : A Great Cyclist

Viscount Portman

Viscount Portman will arrive in Ireland this morning, and will go on to the Curragh to see his horse, Dunkery, run in the Irish Cesarewitch. Claud Berkley Portman is the fifth Viscount, and is now nearing the forty mark. He succeeded his father in 1929. A lieutenant in the Life Guards, Lord Portman served in the European War, although he must have been an extremely young Guardsman at that period. Some years ago he married the Hon. Sybil Douglas-Pennant, a daughter of Lord Penrhyn. The family seat is in Somerset.

Lord Portman is a very great pillar of sport in England, and is a late joint Master of the Warwickshire. He is a prominent patron of the Turf and a good buyer of Irish-bred horses. He trains with "Paddy" Beary, whose brother, Michael, will have the mount to-day on Dunkery.

A Great Cyclist

I was interested to learn that a presentation is to be made to Mr. Bert Donnelly, the doyen of Irish cyclists, on the occasion of his retirement from the track, and that a committee of prominent Irish sportsmen has been formed with this object in view. Not since the days of Mecredy and Reynolds has anyone to equal Bert Donnelly been seen on road or track. A few months ago, at the age of 41, he won the five miles English open championship at Bristol—an event in which no Irishman has been successful since 1887. Mr. Donnelly has no less than fifty-eight Irish championships to his credit, ranging from the quarter-mile to fifty miles. In 1932, 1933 and 1934 he won the five miles open Coventry Hospitals' Challenge Cup. In the Tailteann Games in 1924, 1928 and 1932 he was first in the 1,000 metres. At the Olympian Games in 1928, at Amsterdam, he was fourth in a similar race with the excellent time of 1 min. 18 secs. In the five miles Leinster championship at Kilkenny, in 1924, he rode the final two laps on a front flat tyre to win by a wheel.

Mr. Donnelly, whose house at Lucan resembles a jeweller's shop from the numerous trophies which he has acquired from time to time, is one of the most genial and unassuming of men. When I asked him what was the greatest thrill which he had experienced as a cyclist, he told me that it occurred when he rode round the track at Bristol with the championship brassard on his arm to the applause of 18,000 spectators. It might be imagined that the prizes which Mr. Donnelly and other distinguished athletes have won on foreign soil would be admitted to Ireland free of duty. There is, however, apparently, no reward for spoiling the Egyptians, and Mr. Donnelly and others have been forced to leave their prizes on the other side of the Channel on account of the prohibitive import duties imposed by the Irish Free State.

Putting Back the Clock

Putting back the clock seems to have been effected (writes a correspondent) more expeditiously on the present occasion than ever I remember before. I have not seen any erratic clocks on Sunday or Monday morning, with one or two exceptions, which seem to have been unequal to the change required of them. The alteration of the clock was in many instances made very much sooner than the time officially prescribed or recommended. This was owing, no doubt, to the number of establishments closing on Saturday last before or in the early afternoon, with the result that many persons received what looked like disagreeable surprises. I was interrogated in one instance by a man looking perplexedly at a public timepiece which was now registering G.M.T., if that clock was really correct, when the explanation occurred to me that the apparent irregularity was due to a too early alteration from summer to winter time. The comment made was reasonable enough: "That wouldn't do for the train." On Saturday night most of the clocks in Grafton street and elsewhere showed the new time, which made the evening appear unusually long to those who had been regulating their movements during the day by summer time, and thus found themselves unexpectedly with an hour to spare.

Sailors Don't Care

Picturesque or striking figures in our streets seem to have become very rare, and as they disappear they do not seem, as it were, to be replaced. I noticed one, however, the other day. He reminded me at once of that immortal and winning scoundrel, Long John Silver. Tall, rawny, and wearing a sailor's jersey, he had only one leg, and was using a crutch in place of the missing one. He was singing, or purporting to sing, in a kind of threatening and very harsh voice, and looked somehow as if he was quite capable of laying about him with the crutch if he saw fit. As I always admire a bold and independent demeanour in a beggar, I stood for a few moments and engaged him in conversation when he had concluded a verse of his song. In a very strong Scottish accent he told me that he had been a seaman in the Navy, and while on shore leave from his ship in China he had got caught between Chinese and Japanese forces and had his leg blown off by a shell. Then came the strange part. He was not entitled to a pension, but applied to the Chinese authorities for compensation. A sum of money was awarded to him, but before it could be paid the Chinese retreated, and all the papers in the case were lost. So he received nothing and was sent home.

Plank Bridges

Except in some of the mountainous districts in Ireland, most of the plank bridges, once almost universal as crossing places from one bank of a river to the other, have been replaced by much more imposing structures. If there should be any doubt as to the existence of such bridges, Gaelic place-names will successfully remove it; for Clár, meaning a plank, still forms part of many names in every part of the country. In the days of Brian Boru we read of a plank bridge across the Shannon near Kincora, and the Bishop's house at Killaloe was named Claresford—the ford of the plank—in the mixture of Gaelic and of English, so often found. In Wexford, however, another ford of the planks gets its full Gaelic name of Aughnaglaur. There are many place-names that contain clár or glaur, and the County of Clare itself is supposed to have been named after a wide board placed across the River Fergus. Sometimes the plank was a small one, and so a diminutive was used, clareen being the favourite. A little village in Galway is called Drehidaclareen—the bridge of the little plank or board.

The Law Course

My legal readers will be interested to hear of the arrangements made for the new course in Legal Studies at Trinity College, which a friend sends me. The course will extend over four years, instead of the two years hitherto allotted, and will include several extra subjects—in particular, Public Administration and Conflict of Laws (Private International Law). In the first year the subjects will be: Roman Law, Constitutional Law and History, and Legal History; in the second year, Roman Law (of a more advanced nature), Public International Law, Criminal Law and Law of Evidence; in the third year, Law of Property, Law of Contract, Jurisprudence and Public Administration: in the fourth year, Law of Property, Equity, Torts, Jurisprudence and Conflict of Laws. For the LL.B. degree examination International Law has been removed from the course for the Intermediate examinations (Criminal Law and the Law of Evidence being transferred from the Final examination in substitution), and the subject of Contract and Tort in the Final is made into two separate courses, with higher marks allotted to each. I feel sure that under these new regulations Trinity College will soon be sending out many well-trained young lawyers to the service of the State.

Crab Apple Jelly

This has been a good season for crab apples, and thrifty rural housewives have now secured the free fruit from the trees growing along the country roads. Crabs make delicious jelly, but it is a piece of work which demands close attention to the preserving pan. Most country women make sufficient jelly to keep the home supplied until Easter. It is placed in the old-fashioned yellow earthenware jars, which hold 7lbs.; and these survivals of the age of hearty eaters make a great display on the wide shelves in provincial larders. Farmers who do not care if they "never saw jam" would consider they were very badly treated if the good woman omitted to make crab apple jelly every autumn. This is something which must be done by every country woman who values her reputation as a capable housewife.

FOR NIGHTWORKERS

For the benefit of night workers and others who cannot attend evening devotions, an afternoon section of the Third Order of St. Francis (Brothers) will meet at 4 p.m. to-day in the Tertiary Chapel, St. Mary of the Angels, Church street.

"IM WORRIED ABOUT WINNIE, NURSE. SHE FRETS FROM MORNING TILL NIGHT. WHAT DO YOU ADVISE?"

"Why, the poor little mite is constipated. No wonder she's fretful. That is the chief thing a mother has to guard against, Mrs. Grant.

Kiddies don't understand; they're so absorbed in their games, and often neglect nature's call. Then they get bilious, lose their appetite and become irritable.

Show me your tongue, Winnie. Yes, it is coated—a sure sign she's out of sorts. All she needs is 'California Syrup of Figs'; and she'll be as happy as a sandboy in the morning.

You'll find it keeps the bowels regular, purifies the system and saves stomach upsets and biliousness.

If children are to thrive and grow strong and keen witted, they must feed well and digest what they eat. There's no better way than the regular weekly dose of 'California Syrup of Figs.' All children love it.

If I were you, I would send for a bottle now and give Winnie a dose at once. There is a 1/3 size, but you will find the 2/6 size a great saving.

Be sure you insist on 'California Syrup of Figs' brand, Mrs. Grant. I am surprised that some mothers are ready to experiment with cheap and drastic preparations. It's such a pity they don't realise that 'California Syrup of Figs' is a perfectly safe children's laxative. I know myself how carefully and scientifically it is prepared."

MANNEQUIN PARADE

MESSRS. TODD, BURNS AND CO., LTD.

The first of the autumn mannequin parades took place yesterday in the showrooms of Todd, Burns and Co., Ltd., when a large number of women viewed with interest the trend of fashion for the coming season. Knitwear for all sizes formed a special feature, and here longer jumpers are indicated, with a belted waist-line. Smart tweed ensembles, comprising cardigan and swagger suits, or long coats, with skirts to match, will be most useful for sports wear; while for chilly days plain weave coats have collars of fur. A good range of fur coats includes Persian, musquash, broadtail, and the inexpensive antelope.

The new fashionable cloque-striped taffetas and diamanté-studded crêpes are used for many charmingly designed evening, dinner and bridge gowns. Several of these gowns are trimmed with applique lace on net, while the cellophane materials also show to advantage. Larger women's sizes are especially catered for, both for day and evening wear, at very tempting prices.

Dainty suits of lingerie in the latest shapes, with dressing-gowns in chilprufe satin and padded silk, should suit all requirements.

For children, a big selection of both coats and dresses was seen. The four-piece Irish knitted suit of a coat and skirt, with cap to match, and waistcoat of contrasting shades, is useful; while for school wear "Teddy Bear" or tweed coats are worn with practical woollen frocks. Party frockks in figured silks, white net ballet frocks, and a pretty bridesmaid's dress in apricot taffeta in Empire style, with lace panel in front and frilled caps, are some of the examples shown for juvenile wear.

FESTIVITIES AT ENNISKERRY

POWERSCOURT ESTATE EMPLOYES ENTERTAINED

The employés on the Powerscourt Estate, Enniskerry, County Wicklow, were entertained to luncheon yesterday to celebrate the birth of the son of the Hon. Mervyn Patrick Wingfield and Mrs. Wingfield, and grandson of Viscount and Viscountess Powerscourt.

This was the culmination of celebrations which began over the past week-end by the lighting of huge bonfires on different parts of the estate by the tenants and employés.

Yesterday's luncheon was held in the Farm House, which was decorated with bunting and flags. Each of the guests was received personally by Lord Powerscourt, and the health of the infant, who was five weeks old yesterday, was drunk, after which Lord Powerscourt addressed the gathering.

The company included:—Viscount and Viscountess Powerscourt, the Hon. Mervyn Patrick Wingfield and Mrs. Wingfield, Mr. H. D. Pack-Beresford, Mr. A. Chatterton, and the stewards of the estate.

A Sportsman's Review

Ireland's Boxing Triumphs : Heavy-Weight Hope : Squash Rackets Season Opens

BY PAUL DENIS

Ireland's Great Boxing Season

I have just been looking through the current number of the "Amateur Boxing Monthly," which is the official organ of the I.A.B.A., and I wonder how many people realise the really astonishing successes gained by our amateurs during the last season. We engaged in six international team contests, in five of which we were successful, our only defeat being sustained in Norway, where the Irish team was not fully represented. Two of our victories were gained at England's expense, the principal one, in Dublin, by a wide margin. We also sent teams to Boston and Paris for international competition, dividing with U.S.A. in the first and taking second place to Italy in Paris. Had the referee in Flood's contest not written down his opponent's name by mistake as the winner we would have taken first place over Italy. The Irishmen dominated the British Universities and European Police Championships, winning the majority of the titles in both events, and lastly, two A.B.A. titles fell to us in the persons of J. Magill and R. Hearns, with C. Evenden runner-up in the light-weight. Never have we had a more successful campaign, and it will be nothing short of a tragedy if we cannot send a team to Berlin next summer for the Olympic Games. So far amateur boxing here has steered remarkably clear of trouble, and it will be very unfortunate indeed, if difficulties should arise just when we have the best team we have ever been able to assemble.

Len Wickwar, contender for the welter-weight title of Great Britain, who will meet Tim Doyle at the professional boxing tournament, promoted by Mr. G. D. Egan, in the Rotunda, Dublin.

A Test for Lydon

No nation in the world, I would make so bold as to assert, can excel Ireland in the light-weights. P. Connolly, F. Kerr, E. Smith, C. Evenden, T. Byrne, M. Coffey and T. Kelly are men who could hold their own anywhere, but to bring the team up to standard in every division, a good heavy-weight is necessary, and our hopes at present rest on D. Lydon, the young Garda, who dealt so severely with all other novices last season. He made an early appearance this season, gaining a victory over Private Kerry at the Arbour Hill tournament on Monday night. He fought rather wildly, and as he is still in the novice stage that is only to be expected, but he has a punch and speed. He should be the man we are looking for, but we will know more about this before the end of the month, since he is to meet A. Luntz, a South African, who is studying at Liverpool University, in a tournament at Liverpool. Luntz should give Lydon a thorough testing; for he won the Lancashire and Cheshire cruiser-weight title and the British Universities heavy-weight championship last year. If Lydon can overcome the South African, the time will have come to put him up against good-class men

Proud Records

On the programmes for international boxing tournaments, held in the country, the records of the foreigners are nearly always printed, stating the number of fights each man has won and lost, but that information is seldom forthcoming about our own men. I was interested, therefore, to read some figures about them. Garda R. Hearns has fought no fewer than 80 times against foreigners, and has gained 58 victories—a record to be proud of. This, however, may yet be eclipsed by Constable Jim Magill, who has only lost two of his last 27 international bouts. I hear that the latter may have to move up from the middle to the cruiser-weight division this season, so no doubt we will see himself and Hearns in opposition more than once, and they should be fights worth going a long way to see.

L. W. Newman's Feat

Test and county cricket monopolises the space allotted to the game in most of the English, and all the Irish daily newspapers during the summer, and so the feat of L. W. Newman during the summer has passed almost unnoticed. Newman plays for three London clubs, Alexandra Park, Finchley and Barnet Wanderers, and he surpassed the records of all the great English batsmen in history by scoring a total of 4,032 runs in the course of the season. He played 62 innings, made 13 centuries and had an average of 71. In his career he has scored nearly 45,000 runs and made 155 centuries. There is a strange side to this story. He has lived all his life in the County of Middlesex, and yet the authorities at Lord's have never once invited him to play for the county, although he is now 44 years of age. His performances have not been confined to club cricket either, for he made 133 for the club cricket conference against the New Zealanders in 1927, and in 1928 he and T. G. Grinter put up 271 for the first wicket for the conference against the M.C.C. No wonder English test teams are so weak at present when a man like Newman is not even given a chance in first-class company.

Squash Rackets in Dublin

The squash rackets reason is just commencing, and I should imagine that we will see an increase in the popularity of this fast and exciting game in Dublin during the winter. The Fitzwilliam Club is to send a team to London to pay a return visit for that made by the Jesters, the famous English touring club, to Dublin last January. On that occasion Fitzwilliam put up an excellent showing. R. B. Cairn Duff won his match, while Sir Basil Goulding came within two points of a victory over J. A. Gillies, a semi-finalist for the British title. The members of the visiting team were quite surprised at the high standard achieved here in such a short time, and will certainly put out a strong side to meet Fitzwilliam in London. I see that an American team is coming to England in December for a tour. It would further popularise the game here if we secure a match with them in Dublin, and it would also provide valuable experience for our leading players. Our squash rackets' legislators ought not to let this opportunity pass.

SICK AND INDIGENT ROOMKEEPERS

The monthly meeting of the Executive Body of the Sick and Indigent Roomkeepers' Society was held last Friday evening at the offices, 2 Palace street. Mr. Thomas E. Brindley presided. RAINFALL, 1935

"A SEE-SAW YEAR"

Major H. Chavasse, of Seafield, Castle Townshend, Skibbereen, writes:—

"I wonder if any of your readers have noticed what a see-saw year this has been for rainfall. By a curious coincidence, the months which have 31 days, so far, have been all below the average for the last 21 years, and all the others have been above it. To exemplify this, I append the rainfall for each month, with the average for that month, and the amount either above or below the average. I may say that last month had the heaviest rainfall of any September I have ever recorded, and contained a 'rain spell' of 23 days, which was increased by the first two days of the present month.":

	Amount.	Average for 21 years.	Above or below average.
January	.57	5.20	−4.63

Regret was expressed at his resignation from office as hon. secretary, on account of press of business. The evening was devoted to the election of officers for the coming session, election of new members and presentation of prize for last season's "competitions," won by Mr. Wahlrab, after which Dr. O'Connor showed some of his Belgian stamps which won fame at the Brussels Exhibition in May. The following officers were elected:—President, Dr. J. P. O'Connor; vice-president, Dr. J. Stafford Johnson; committee, Messrs. F. J. Robinson, R. J. Dobbyn, P. Wahlrab, A. H. Davis, J. N. ON THE WIRELESS

Daily Programme Review

DUBLIN: Relay from Taibhdhearc na Gaillimhe—Drama "Aris."

NORTHERN IRELAND: Orchestral Concert, 8.35.

B.B.C. NATIONAL: Play, "The Circle" (Somerset Maugham), 8.

MIDLAND: "I Spy," a Melluish Burlesque, 9.15.

WEST: Torquay Musical Festival, 8.

MILAN: Opera, "La Sagredo," in four Acts (Vittadini), 7.50.

HILVERSUM: Orchestral Concert, 7.45.

IN a new series of readings in the Dublin programme, entitled: "Original Stories Read by their Authors," Mr. T. C. Murray, the well-known author and dramatist, will read "The Conflict." Many other distinguished Irish authors will take part in the series as it progresses. (Dublin, 9.)

Dr. E. Godfrey Brown is to conduct the B.B.C. Northern Ireland Orchestra in a programme of music in which Anne Gregory (soprano) will sing Senta's ballad from "The Flying Dutchman," and some Schubert and Richard Strauss songs. The orchestra will play "March of the Kitchen Utensils" (the Wasps), by Vaughan Williams; Haydn's Symphony No. 96 in D, and Dvorak's Slav Dance No. 8 in D minor.

"The Circle" is generally considered Somerset Maugham's best play. This witty comedy, with its undercurrent of pathos, will be played before the microphone to-night under the direction of Val Gielgud. Ronald Squire is to play the part of Clive Champion-Cheney. Sheila Borrett, who also is in the cast, will be remembered as the one-time only B.B.C. woman announcer. "The Circle" will be repeated to-morrow night in the Regional programme.

Various harvest festivals are taking place at home and abroad, and figuring conspicuously in the programmes. Hitherto they have been relays of the real thing. To-night, however, the B.B.C. Theatre Orchestra and Chorus will give another of their "Italian Wine Harvest" programmes. In the form of a word picture, written and spoken by Berthe Grossbard, of Roma-Bari-Napoli, to a musical accompaniment devised by Georgio Foa, and conducted by Mark Lubbock, "Italian Wine Harvest" will be heard in the National programme at 10.

In the concert of the B.B.C. Orchestra, conducted by Joseph Lewis at 8.35 in the Regional programme, a new work will receive its first performance. This is an English ballet by Thomas F. Dunhill, composer of "Tantivy Towers," which he calls "Dick Whittington." It is his latest composition. The first movement opens with the sound of Bow Bells, and in the finale, which depicts the Lord Mayor's Show, the bells are again introduced. Mr. Dunhill will conduct the work himself.

A burlesque by the Melluish Brothers will attract many listeners who enjoy the clever absurdity of these programmes. If "I Spy" is up to the Melluish standard, it will be good entertainment. It will be produced with a good cast by Martyn Webster.

The opening concert of the Torquay Musical Festival will be relayed to listeners in full from the Pavilion, Torquay. As the date of the concert is the centenary of the birth of Saint-Saëns, his Pianoforte Concerto No. 4 in C minor has been included in the programme. A new work by Reginald Redman, Music Director of the West Region, will be given its first performance. Entitled, "A West Country Suite," it has been specially written for the 1935 Festival, and is dedicated to Ernest W. Goss and the Torquay Municipal Orchestra. The composer will conduct the work. The concert will be given by the Torquay Municipal Orchestra, conducted by Ernest W. Goss, with Laelia Finneberg as vocalist and Frank Mannheimer as solo pianist.

The centenary of Saint-Saëns is being celebrated throughout the week not only by the French, but by numerous European stations. Among the transmissions for to-night, which is the actual date of this eminent French composer's birth, Kalundborg will broadcast a Saint-Saëns concert at 9.25.

TRIBUTE TO FREE STATE GOVERNMENT

THE Archdeacon of Armagh (the Venerable A. Lockett-Ford) presided at the annual meeting of the Armagh Diocesan Synod in the Alexander Synod Hall, Armagh, yesterday, in the absence of the Primate, who had been in Jerusalem conferring with the ecclesiastical authorities and patriarchs there, and is now detained in England.

The President appointed the Right Hon. Lord Justice Best, Chancellor of the Diocese, as his assessor.

The Earl of Belmore was re-elected a lay member of the Representative Body.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

In the course of his address, the President dwelt for some time on the subject of finance, and on factors that had led to the continued fall in investment income, mentioning the conversion of British War Loan, the trouble about income tax, the adverse rate of exchange in some foreign countries, and finally the Railway Act of 1933. From the outline that he gave, it would readily be gathered, he remarked, that heavy loss of capital and continued fall of income, coupled with the difficulty of re-investing redeemed stocks and new money had resulted in the reduction for this year, and probably for years to come, of the surplus income of former years, and consequently of the hitherto available grants from the Representative Body—£500 on widows' annuities, £500 on glebe grants, £1,000 on augmentation of stipends of poorer clergy, and an increased charge to meet the reduction in the £5,000 grant for superannuation. It was, however, gratifying to know that in spite of depression in trade and low prices in agriculture, the assessment had been fully met throughout the diocese, and that their people had not only learned to give, but had given generously, consistently and punctually. (Applause.)

Having briefly referred to the work of the Board of Missions, and of the Board of Religious Education, the President observed that in the Free State the effort to provide transport for the children in remote and scattered districts, in order to secure for them suitable religious teaching, had been sanctioned and aided by the Government. The same need, to the same extent, did not arise in the six counties, but there should be no necessity for any Government to hinder or prevent the holding of Bible classes or other religious teaching in schoolhouses, or to limit the circulation and study of the Sacred Scriptures. In this connection, he understood that the Association for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge was about to print in Ireland Bibles, prayer books and hymnals, and to continue to supply them.

"Personally," added the President, "as a resident and worker in the Free State, I desire to acknowledge the courtesy and consideration which I have experienced in this connection, and to recognise the efforts of the authorities to deal fairly and equably with all." (Hear, hear.)

COUNCIL'S REPORT

The report of the Diocesan Council showed that the total capital of the Diocesan Scheme on 31st December last was £175,236 4s. 6d. The estimated annual income, as on 1st January last, amounted to £6,785 9s. 9d., and the estimated expenditure to £6,406 5s. 1d., showing a balance of £379 4s. 8d. per annum to the credit of the scheme. This balance was chargeable with items amounting to £109 1s. 10d. The capital of the Supplemental Financial Scheme stood at £161,441 6s. 4d. The Augmentation Scheme showed a credit balance of £3,959 11s. 1d. The capital of the General Diocesan Fund was £10,769 4s. 3d. The capital of the Diocesan Superannuation Fund, as reported by the Representative Body, was £13,965 2s. 11d., the capital of the Widows' and Orphans' Auxiliary Fund £2,142 1s. 5d., and the total amount of endowments was £291,721 15s. 0d.

In moving that the report be taken into consideration, the Rev. T. F. Campbell, Diocesan Secretary, spoke of the need for each diocese to depend on itself for the provision of its necessary finances, and said that the diocese must conserve its finances in every way in order to meet any emergency.

Senator the Right Hon. H. B. Armstrong, H.M.L., who seconded the motion, said that the diocese, for the first time in his recollection, presented a clean sheet. (Applause.)

The motion was passed, and the report subsequently was adopted.

EDUCATION

In moving that the report of the Diocesan Board of Education be taken into consideration, Canon Nelson said that the Ministry of the Northern Government were withdrawing the right that the clergy always had had to enter and hold meetings in the vested schools. The Ministry were refusing to allow Bible classes to be held in those schools without their permission. Under the National Board their schools had been used as parochial halls, and the Synod should make it perfectly clear that they were of opinion that the clergy should have the right of entry into their schools. Any attempt to deny them that right was, he thought, an outrage.

The Rev. T. G. McEndoo, who seconded the motion, said that he thoroughly agreed with Canon Nelson.

The Rev. S. Mayes said that he did not think that the Government was making any change in regard to the control of vested schools. He did not remember the vested schools ever having been under the control of any Church, and if the Northern Ministry had stressed a rule that already was in existence he did not think that they had any grievance.

Canon Nelson suggested that the Synod should pass a resolution in relation to the matter, but the suggestion was ruled out, the subject not being dealt with in the report.

The report was adopted. It gave figures of attendances of members at the meetings of the Board, and stated that Kilmore P.E.S. had been transferred to the education authority of County Armagh.

The Rev. J. W. Auchmuty, proposing that the Board of Missions be taken into consideration, said that, compared with the amounts spent on luxuries, the sums given towards missions were trivial. A man would spend £30 a year on cigarettes, yet it was with difficulty that the same man could be persuaded to give £1 a year towards missions.

The results of the elections for the Diocesan Council were announced as follows:—

JOINT SYNODS' REPORTS

ASSETS NOW STAND AT £684,924

THE CLOSING OF SMALL SCHOOLS

THE present position, from every aspect, of the United Diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and Kildare, is described in three reports issued last night. They are the reports of the Diocesan Councils; of the Joint Diocesan Councils, and of the Diocesan Board of Education, which will be presented at the meeting of the Joint Synods in Dublin on October 22nd and 23rd.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

The results of the financial operations of the year are stated "to be of a favourable character," with the exception of the Poor Parishes Fund. The assets of the United Dioceses have increased by £886 15s. 1d. to £684,924 0s. 8d. The capital to credit of the Stipend Fund stands at £569,757 6s. 4d., and the stipends and other payments, amounting to £1,358 5s. 3d., were more than those paid in 1933.

The capital to credit of the Clergy Diocesan Superannuation Fund on 1st January, 1934, was £23,912 12s 10d., the income for the year amounted to £3,089 5s. 3d., and the payments made totalled £2,945 16s. 7d. The balance of £143 was transferred to the capital fund, which now stands at £24,056.

The arrears of parochial assessments at 1st January, 1935, were £2,171 12s. 9d., as compared with £2,526 15s. 5d. on the same date of 1934, and £1,427 3s. in 1933. At 1st September the arrears due were £380 1s. The rate of payment of stipends from 1st July last is fixed by the Councils at £30 per subscription.

The increase of the rate of assessment (made by the General Synod at its last meeting) from four to five per cent, has, it was stated, thrown an additional charge of £576 per annum on the Diocesan Superannuation Fund, of which £187 19s. will be payable by parishes; this charge cannot be met out of the present superannuation revenue, and a bill to make provision for the increased assessment will be submitted to the Joint Synods.

With regard to the Poor Parishes Fund and temporary augmentation of stipend, the report expresses gratification that the voluntary contributions from forty-one parishes amounted to £249 16s. 6d., as compared with £178 in 1933. A transfer of £300 from the Diocesan Stipend Fund met the excess, amounting to £51, of grants over revenue.

GLEBE LANDS

In regard to glebe lands the special attention of the clergy was directed "to the serious difficulties which have arisen in some parishes, through the good nature of clergymen who have permitted neighbours to come and go freely across glebe lands, or resort to glebe pumps or wells for water. This laxity has often continued till rights of way or of easement have grown up or have been alleged, to the annoyance, and, in some cases, the permanent injury of successors."

The total amount of the contributions raised in the dioceses for sustentation, church expenses, parochial and diocesan education, foreign missions, Protestant Orphan Society, etc., was £85,976 16s. 3d., or £50 18s. 5d. more than in 1933.

Credit balances are shown on the Diocesan Glebes Repair Fund, the See House Revenue Fund; and the Diocesan House Fund had been closed by the balance of £147 odd being charged to diocesan expenses.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

The report of the Board of Education states that the sum of £3,040 0s. 11d., which the committee in charge of the recent Diocesan Bazaar has placed to the Board's credit, has left it free of debt for the first time in many years. In addition, a sum of over £2,000 has been left available for its work. The heavy overdrafts on the Girls' School in Adelaide road and the Boys' School in Molesworth street have been cleared off.

"The most important work which engages the attention of the Board of Education for these United Dioceses is the inspection and direction of the religious education given in our primary schools, or in those attended by Church of Ireland children. The importance of this work is as great as ever. The Roman Catholic Church, keenly alive to the difficulties which confront their teachers in this matter, employs in the Diocese of Dublin two highly-skilled inspectors whose duty it is to visit and inspect their schools.

"Your Board regrets that it has not yet been able to consider its future policy in any detail, as the results of the bazaar have only recently been received. It is glad, however, to state its present policy and to outline in general terms where it might be altered."

TRANSPORT SCHEMES

The Board proceeds to report that "an effort should be made to induce the governors of some secondary schools in the United Diocese to improve the present inadequate religious instruction; that it aims to work in close connection with the Sunday School Society for Ireland, and that last year the Inspector prepared notes for over one hundred Sunday school teachers on the weekly lessons; that recognising the immense importance of the transport schemes, it aims to finance all such schemes without claiming any help from the central transport fund of the Church, and the Board recommends that the week beginning with 'Education Sunday' each year should become 'Education Week,' when special meetings and conferences would be held.

"A considerable change has taken place in the work of our inspector in recent years. In 1924 the number of schools visited by the inspector was 165, and the number of Church of Ireland children on the rolls was 7,705. In 1934 the figures were 132 schools and 5,837 children. The closing of the schools has created another problem—viz., the transport of the children to the central schools, which is now engaging a large amount of the time and energy of the Board and its inspector. It is of the utmost importance that our people should realise that our transport system cannot be maintained unless the children attend school regularly, since the Government will only pay on the average attendance, while the contracts are made for the total number of children available."

SMALL SCHOOLS

The report of the Organising Secretary and Diocesan Inspector mentions:—"The policy of the Government would seem to be the closing of small schools, solely, I imagine, on the grounds of economy. The danger to us of such a policy is that there will be fewer and fewer posts for our teachers. While the future of some of our schools gives occasion for anxiety, in other schools there have been gratifying increases in numbers."

He refers also to the value of the Board's annual Sunday School examinations (in which an increased number of parishes had taken part during the year) in arousing the interest of parents and children in religious instruction at home, and "in stopping that gradual drift away from religion in the home which is so much a product of these modern days, and which is so much deplored by social workers of all kinds."

The other reports mention that two new rectories for the Parishes of Kill (Dublin) and Rathmines are in course of building. Among the church improvements carried out during the year were:—Stonework of two clerestory windows of Christ Church Cathedral restored in plastic reconstructed stone, at a cost of £246, defrayed from Church Fabric Fund, and gifts from "friends of Christ Church"; interior of Booterstown Church painted and electric organ-blower and bellringer installed at a cost of £417; extensive improvements at Christ Church, Bray, at a cost of £480, voluntarily provided; improvements to interior of Castleknock Church at a cost of £205, given by local subscriptions, and new church furniture, etc., presented by Lord HolmPatrick and his sisters as a memorial to their mother, the late Dowager Lady HolmPatrick; Parochial Hall, Drumcondra, improved at a cost of £200; improvements to the three churches and parochial hall of St. George's Parish at a cost of £235; extensive improvements at Milltown at a cost of £380; improvements at St. John's, Monkstown, at a cost of £270.

Special workshops have been started in thirteen Moscow schools for the repair of pupils' boots and shoes.

WOMAN SENT TO PRISON

MIDNIGHT CATTLE SMUGGLING

REMARKABLE COURT STORY

From Our Correspondent.

DUNDALK Tuesday.

A REMARKABLE story of a midnight cattle-smuggling expedition was described at Dundalk Circuit Court to-day, before Judge Black, when a young and well-dressed woman, Josephine Moore, of Castletown, Dundalk, was charged in custody with stealing seven cattle, the property of Richard Magrath.

She pleaded "Not guilty," and was represented by Mr. Hugh C. McGahon.

John Martin, a resident of Northern Ireland, said that he had been asked in Northern Ireland to cross the border into the Free State and smuggle out some cattle. He and others came on bicycles, and, on the roadside at Castletown, they met Miss Moore. She brought them to a field in which there were seventeen cattle, and from these she picked out seven, which, she said, were her property. The cattle were driven for seven miles over roads and through fields and into Northern Ireland. The woman accompanied them on the expedition. When they got across, at 2 o'clock the next morning, the woman met a Northern contractor, who bought the cattle for £42. While the buyer went to a bank to get the money for the cattle the woman and the men who had smuggled the cattle remained in a quarry. Later the money was handed over, and the woman gave £3 to the men who assisted in taking the cattle over the border.

WOMAN'S EVIDENCE

Miss Moore stated that a great friend of hers named Sturgeon was in Belfast Jail for smuggling cattle and greyhounds, and he asked her to get from a man named Mullen in Dundalk £16 which was owing to him. She went to the man, who said that he could not give her the money, but would allow her to smuggle cattle and take half the profits. Later Mullen told her that he was buying 27 head of "Blueshirt" cattle, and that she could take seven of them out of the field. She made arrangements with a man named George Martin to take the cattle, believing they were those of Mullen, and that they were taken out of Mullen's field, which was the field Mullen had pointed out to her. She sold the cattle in Northern Ireland. She had no intention of crossing the border with them that night herself, as she was hatless, but the men would not go without her. She got paid for the cattle in Northern Ireland, and when questioned by the Guards handed back all the money she had—£30.

The Judge asked who had decided on the number of cattle to be smuggled, and witness replied that seven was the number of cattle that would go in a lorry and could be removed over the border easily.

Mr. McGahon said that not in the pages of Edgar Wallace was there anything better than this—midnight episodes. But actually what happened was that Miss Moore took seven cattle which she believed she had a right to take, and it turned out that she made a genuine and understandable mistake.

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and she was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour, from the date of her arrest. The Judge said it was distressing to find an attractive young woman like her on such a charge, but appearances were often deceptive.

MEMEL ELECTION

RESULT MAY BE KNOWN TO-DAY

From Reuter's Correspondent.

MEMEL, Tuesday.

The counting of the Memel election votes is not expected to be finished to-night, as had been hoped. To-morrow night is now named as the closing date. It is unofficially estimated that the Germans have secured their vital two-thirds majority.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN THE NORTH

"FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN ACROSS THE CHANNEL"

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

The Minister of Labour moved a resolution in the Northern Parliament to-day approving the regulations of the Ministry made on 31st December, 1934, prescribing the manner in which the need of an applicant for unemployment assistance should be determined and his means assessed.

Mr. Beattie (Labour) asked the Minister when the second appointed day under the Unemployment Act was coming into force?

The Minister said that it would come into force on the same day as in Great Britain. That was in accordance with their considered and definite decision that the workers in Northern Ireland would be kept in the same position as their fellow-countrymen across the Channel.

Mr. Beattie—That is the first time I have heard of "a fellow-countryman across the Channel."

The Minister—I like that expression.

Mr. Beattie—Yes, you like that expression, but it is not appropriate to the idea you have in mind. Proceeding, Mr. Beattie asked the Minister if he was aware that family life was being broken up in Northern Ireland, sons and daughters being driven out of their father's and mother's homes due to the conditions under which family incomes were calculated.

Mr. T. Henderson (Ind. U.) said that unemployment was likely to increase in Northern Ireland.

The Minister—That is not true.

Mr. Henderson said that it was a disgrace that there were over 70,000 people unemployed in a small country with a population of one and a half millions.

The resolution was adopted.

COST OF LIVING IN BELFAST

MILK AND BACON PRICES LOWER

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

"Belfast has the cheapest milk supply of any city in the United Kingdom," said Sir Basil Brooke, Minister of Agriculture, in reply to a question in the Northern Parliament to-day by Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Nat.), who asked if the Minister had read a statement by the chairman of the Public Health Committee of the Belfast Corporation to the effect that the working man had now to pay an excessive price for bacon and pork, and that he was further taxed by a system of levies on milk.

"The current price of Grade C milk in Belfast is 5d. per quart, delivered, and 4d. per quart if collected," said the Minister. "So far from milk being 50 per cent. cheaper two years ago than it is now, the ruling price of milk in Belfast was then 5½d. per quart, delivered. With regard to the retail price of bacon in Belfast, the average retail price for 1933 was 10½d. per pound, and the average minimum retail price during the expired portion of the present year was 8½d. per pound, a decrease of 2d. per pound."

The South Wales coalfield strike against non-unionists is at an end. The executive council of the Miners' Federation last night decided to recommend the 9,000 strikers at the Ocean group of collieries to resume work immediately in view of the success of the campaign against the non-unionists employed at those pits.

CARDINAL'S VISIT TO DUBLIN

THE ARCHBISHOP OF QUEBEC

GUEST OF THE OBLATE COMMUNITY

CARDINAL J. M. Rodrigue Villeneuve, O.M.I., Archbishop of Quebec, was received warmly by a large gathering of people when he arrived on a visit to Dublin yesterday evening.

His Eminence travelled by the mail boat to Dun Laoghaire in the company of the Right Rev. Monsignor la Flame, the rector of the Cathedral in Quebec; the Rev. E. Bourque, his secretary, and M. Begin, his chevalier. He was received by representatives of the Oblate Community, and was taken by car to the House of Retreat of the Oblate Fathers at Inchicore, where a large gathering waited to receive him, composed of members of the Confraternity of St. Mary Immaculate and altar boys.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

At the House of Retreat he was received by the Very Rev. M. Sweeney, O.M.I., Inchicore; the Rev. M. Clarke, O.M.I., Inchicore; the Rev. T. Dawson, O.M.I.; the Rev. J. Hardiman, O.M.I., and the Rev. C. Allen, O.M.I.

Preceded by acolytes and members of the Order and accompanied by members of his staff, His Eminence entered the church and knelt before the high altar. Afterwards he passed through the crowds, who sang "Faith of Our Fathers," to the Grotto, where he was received formally, and an address of welcome was read by the Rev. M. Sweeney.

In the course of his address Father Sweeney said that they were aware that the Cardinal desired to have his visit as private as possible, but an Oblate in any capacity coming to Inchicore was as a father coming to his children.

Nine years previously the Cardinal had visited them as a simple Oblate priest, and that day he came as a Prince of the Church, but no less an Oblate.

In reply His Eminence said that he was moved by such a demonstration of welcome. He had intended to come to Inchicore in a private manner in order to express with gratitude the faithfulness that bound him to the congregation. The demonstration showed the devotion of the people to their Church, and it would be one of his joys when he was at the feet of His Holiness to testify to the faith of the Irish people.

It was with great pleasure that he brought to them the homage of their brothers in Canada, not only the Irish people there, but also the French-Canadian Catholics. He hoped that he would have other occasions to repeat his gratitude.

ATTENDANCE AT DUN LAOGHAIRE

At the Pier in Dun Laoghaire, the Cardinal was met by the Rev. John Flynn, O.M.I.; the Rev. J. Danaher, O.M.I., Provincial; the Rev. E. J. Doherty, O.M.I.; the Rev. A. McIntyre, O.M.I.; the Rev. D. J. Long, O.M.I.; the Rev. J. Franche, O.M.I.; the Rev. J. Phair, O.M.I.; Monsignor J. Bearzotti, representing the Nuncio Apostolic, and Mr. Sean Murphy, representing Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, the Vice-President.

The Cardinal was too tired to meet newspaper representatives, but Monsignor la Flame said that His Eminence had felt great pleasure at the opportunity of visiting Ireland. He would remain in Dublin until Monday, and hoped to preside at Pontifical High Mass in the church next Sunday. His Eminence would then go to Paris, where a reception at the City Hall had been arranged, and would afterwards go to La Rochelle, where his ancestors had lived; where also he would receive civic and ecclesiastical welcomes.

Having spent some weeks at La Rochelle he would travel to Rome, where he hoped to arrive in the beginning of November.

While in London the Cardinal had been presented to the King

THE PIG TRADE

IMPROVEMENT WELL MAINTAINED

The improvement in the pig trade in the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland, noted during the last couple of months, is being steadily maintained. Last week the total numbers handled in the Free State exceeded those of the preceding week by over four hundred, but were some 2,000 less than those for the week ending September 21st. When compared with the corresponding week in 1933, and also in 1934, last week's total of 28,021 is considerably higher, the difference on the 1933 comparison being as much as 8,000. A similar satisfactory increase is noted in the figures for the nine months of the year up to the present, which were 860,834, while in 1934 they were 783,759, and in the previous year 669,265. Exports were up last week by about 1,300 on the previous week, and for the forty weeks of the year they showed an increase of 24,000.

In Northern Ireland the exports last week were slightly down, but they compared favourably with the figures for the corresponding weeks in the last two years. The number of pigs handled in the country as a whole during the present year has increased by 150,000 compared with last year's figures.

DANCING FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

DISTRICT JUSTICE'S VIEW

An application at Milford Court yesterday for a dancing class licence in respect of a local hall, under Fianna Fáil control, was opposed by Superintendent Desmond, who said that the hall was really a loft above a stable. Only one door was provided, and he questioned if the floor was sufficiently sound to support a big number of dancers. In the case of an outbreak of fire the result might turn out to be another Drumcollogher.

Justice Walsh—If a fire broke out in this court-house some day when a big crowd is present, the District Justice himself would be burned to death before he could get out.

He added that they could not expect the same conditions to obtain in Milford in such a matter as one would find in England or Dublin.

It was highly desirable, he said, to provide amusement for the young people in the small towns so long as proper conditions were observed. Young people were far better at a dancing class than wandering about without proper control. He granted permission for the holding of two short dances weekly.

MASKED AND ARMED MEN

RAID ON MONAGHAN HOUSE

From Our Correspondent.

BALLYBAY, Tuesday.

Two masked and armed men entered the house of James Ward, farm labourer, Kilkitt, Ballybay, County Monaghan, about 8.30 p.m. yesterday. Mrs. Ward attempted to pull the mask off one of the raiders. He decamped, discharging a shot in the air.

Returning later to the house, he inquired for a man called Peter McGinn. When McGinn appeared the raiders ordered him and the other occupants of the house to go down on their knees in the kitchen. They taunted McGinn with being a spy, and ordered him to clear out of the neighbourhood, otherwise they would "plug him." McGinn promised that he would leave, and the raiders then left. They warned the other occupants of the house not to move for an hour and a half. One of the occupants of the house looked through the window, and another shot was fired. The party in the house remained in the house for some hours afterwards.

The Guards, under Superintendent Glynn are investigating the outrage. No arrests have been made so far.

CHILD POPULATION DECLINING

A falling-off in the child population of Northern Ireland is indicated in the report of the Ministry of Education for 1934-35. The year has been marked by a decrease of nearly 5,000 pupils in the numbers enrolled in the schools, due to a falling-off in the child population; the pupils entering at six years of age are fewer, while those leaving at fourteen show an increase. In 1930 there were 1,414 schools, with an average attendance sufficient to justify the appointment of only one or two teachers; in 1934 this number had fallen to 1,317. In 1930 there were 54 schools with an average for the year sufficient for the appointment of nine or more teachers; in 1934 this number had grown to 77. It will thus be seen that there is a marked tendency towards larger school units.

DUBLIN MEDICAL APPOINTMENT

CONDITIONS CRITICISED

Correspondence which passed between the National University Graduates' Committee and the City Manager between March and September of this year deals with the conditions governing the appointment of a Resident Medical Superintendent at Crooksling.

On March 13th last the Graduates' Committee informed the City Manager that in their opinion the conditions of appointment restricted the number of candidates, and they did not understand why a diploma in Public Health should be considered a pre-requisite condition to appointment. In regard to a regulation requiring that the candidates should have acted as Medical Superintendent of a sanatorium of at least sixty beds, or as assistant medical superintendent of a sanitorium of equal size, the committee stated that they had yet to learn that there was in Ireland any sanitorium of that size in which the full modern treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis is carried out. Modern methods of diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis were carried out solely by the staffs of the general hospitals, but the qualifications prescribed precluded junior members of hospital staffs in Dublin from becoming candidates for the post.

In the course of a letter to the City Manager on September 27th, the Graduates' Committee expressed the view that the appointment was one in which the officials who drafted the conditions of appointment, did so in such a way that they excluded the best-qualified graduates of the Irish medical schools, thereby securing that an English graduate would be appointed. The committee understood that the regulations had been drafted by an official in the Local Government Department who was not accessible to public interrogation.

In another letter the Committee alleged that a number of Irish medical men with special experience in that particular branch of work, holding the degree of Doctor of Medicine of the National University, were precluded from becoming candidates for the position because of an entirely unreasonable insistence that a diploma in public health should form one of the necessary qualifications. Reputable public health authorities in the Free State were of the opinion that the insertion of that and other restrictive qualifications was unnecessary, and not in accordance with modern practice in Europe and America.

Water Supply Schemes for Meath.—A special meeting of the Meath County Council granted the Meath Board of Health permission to borrow £2,500 for a water supply scheme for Dunboyne, and £1,900 for a similar scheme for Moynalty.

NORTHERN PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

COMMITTEE'S REPORT

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

The report of the Northern Public Accounts Committee, issued to-day, again refers to the loan of £15,000 made to the Ulster Farmers' Produce Society in 1926, which was secured as to £5,000 by a joint and several guarantee of six persons prominently connected with it, and as to £10,000 by deposit of the title deeds of the property of the society.

After detailing the various transactions, the report states:—

"We take the earliest opportunity to express our extreme dissatisfaction at the action of the Ministry in allowing the funds of the society to be used to relieve the guarantors and to the statement made in Parliament during the debate on the Government Loans Bill, 1931, and we desire once more to express in the strongest possible terms our view that if the society is in a position to make any payments these should go to reduce the society's own debt to the Exchequer and not in relief of the guarantors."

The report also refers to a sum of £141, "spent during the year 1933-34 on a presentation of plate to Sir Ernest Clark, K.C.B., the first permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Finance, in recognition of distinguished services rendered to the Government after his retirement as our representative on the Joint Exchequer Board and in other ways."

The report declares:—"We do not for a moment question the value of the voluntary work done for the Government by this eminent public servant, nor that it was worthy of the fullest acknowledgment, and, as we understand that the form which that acknowledgment took arose naturally out of the exceptional circumstances, we make no comment. We feel bound to add, however, that in normal conditions we would take strong exception on principle to this method of recognition of services rendered."

Career of Crime.—At Nenagh Circuit Court Judge Sealy sentenced Michael Cunningham (26), of Peterwell, Gort, Co. Galway, to three years' penal servitude on nine charges of larceny and house-breaking in the Counties of Tipperary and Galway. Mr. J. O'Brien, State Solicitor, who prosecuted, said that the prisoner belonged to a respectable family, but had given way to a career of crime.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

In the Northern Parliament yesterday the Prime Minister, in reply to a question, stated that there was no necessity for a Commission of Inquiry into the Belfast riots in July last. The cause was, he said, connected with a certain section whose disloyalty to the Throne and Constitution was known.—(Page 8.)

Mr. Norman (junior) continued his evidence before the Select Committee of the Dail yesterday, and mentioned that in all about 25s. worth of gold had been found in Wicklow during the recent prospecting.—(Page 3.)

At Dundalk yesterday a young woman, Miss Josephine Moore, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour, charged with stealing seven cattle.—(Page 5.)

The Venerable A. Lockett Ford, presiding in the absence of the Primate, at the Armagh Diocesan Synod yesterday, said that in the Free State the effort to provide transport for the children in remote and scattered districts in order to secure for them suitable religious teaching had been sanctioned and aided by the Government. As a resident in the Free State, he desired to acknowledge the courtesy and consideration which he had received in this connection, and to recognise the efforts of the authorities to deal fairly and equally with all.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN

In an address to his constituents at Chingford last night Mr. Winston Churchill urged the need for an early general election in Great Britain.—(Page 3.)

Speaking at the Church Congress at Bournemouth yesterday, the Archbishop of Canterbury described Italy's invasion of the country of a fellow-member of the League as an act of unprovoked aggression.—(Page 7.)

Mr. George Lansbury, M.P., having refused to withdraw his resignation from the leadership of the British Parliamentary Labour Party, a special meeting of the party yesterday accepted it with regret, and appointed Major Attlee, M.P., as leader for the remainder of the parliamentary session.—(Page 8.)

ABROAD

Yesterday at Geneva was occupied with the preparations for the Assembly meeting to-day. There is reason to believe that the path of sanctions is not running smoothly. Some jurists hold that an unanimous vote of the Assembly is necessary, and that if it is not unanimous the application will not be binding.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Nottingham yesterday Pepino won the Trial Plate.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets displayed some hesitation yesterday, and the general advance of Monday was not maintained. There were several bright spots.—(Page 12.)

Quiet conditions ruled in Lombard street. Gold fell to 141s. 10d. [illegible] Silver was lower.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was steady. Guinness closed a few pence [illegible]. Land Bonds were strong and Great Southern issues improved.—(Page 12.)

The Butcher's Bill

After all the excitement of the first few days' fighting in Abyssinia a comparative lull seems to have fallen upon the campaign. Adowa, Adigrat, and the sacred city of Aksum have fallen into the hands of the Italians, who thus have established a line of about seventy miles, facing almost due south. In this area, apparently, they have three army corps, consisting of six divisions apiece, whereas in the southern area, where there has been skirmishing round Wal Wal, only one corps is in action. It is exceedingly difficult to form a comprehensive view of the fighting that already has taken place, because communications are so primitive that first-hand reports are almost impossible. There is only one telegraph office, for instance, in all Abyssinia, and that is situated at Addis Ababa, hundreds of miles from the front. Most of the war correspondents are compelled to take their information from official sources in the capital, and, since these sources are fed mainly on the wildest of rumours, all messages from Addis Ababa must be treated with great reserve. Similarly those correspondents who are with the Italian forces must depend very largely on native "runners" to carry their messages to the coast, and the terrain is so difficult that most of them are forced to remain at a long distance behind General de Bono's lines. It seems to be fairly certain, however, that the highly mechanised Italian Army has achieved the first of its territorial objectives with comparative ease; but it has not inflicted any very heavy losses on its wily and remarkably mobile enemy. When the Italians advanced to the assault on Adowa they hoped to stage a spectacular victory, almost on the model of Sédan. To that end they advanced in two encircling columns, intending to grip Adowa as if with a pair of pincers, and to capture Ras Seyoum, who was in command of the defending forces, with his entire army. Ras Seyoum, however, was far too clever to allow himself to be caught in such an obvious trap. His intelligence service seems to have been remarkably good; for when the Italians invested Adowa they found that it was almost empty, save for a handful of Danakil warriors. Ras Seyoum had withdrawn his main force to the hills south of the city, where he is awaiting the next Italian move with substantial reinforcements.

There can be no doubt concerning the efficiency of the Italian General Staff, and, in the long run, there can be only one outcome of the Italo-Abyssinian war. On the other hand, those who expected it to be a frisch-fröhlicher Krieg, sharing the German Crown Prince's illusion of 1914, are likely to suffer bitter disappointments. The difficulties that confront the Italians are truly appalling. Hitherto they have been operating in relatively easy country; but south of the Aksum-Adowa-Adigrat line they will be required to fight among huge mountains, rising to heights of sixteen thousand feet. These mountains are divided by deep savannahs, running at right angles to the Italians' line of advance, with the result that the use of tanks and armoured cars will be almost impossible. Indeed, the invaders already have discovered that a mechanised army is not infallible. The Abyssinians have been digging huge "booby-traps," such as those which they use for the trapping of elephants and other big game, and four tanks have succumbed to these primitive, but highly ingenious, methods of defence. Furthermore, although aeroplanes may terrorise women and children, they are of little avail against the Ethiopian warriors, who are masters in the fine art of camouflage, and are so rapid in their movements that they can take cover in an almost incredibly short space of time. Their strategy manifestly is to lure the Italians into the mountainy regions, never to offer a pitched battle, and then by those guerrilla tactics for which they are famous, so to harry the invading troops as eventually to wreck their moral. After the capture of Adowa, for instance, the Italian troops were very weary, having completed an exceedingly long march in awful conditions; but they were kept awake throughout the following night by Abyssinian snipers, who were determined that the enemy should have no rest. In addition to the effective opposition which they may expect from the Abyssinian defenders, Italy's soldiers must reckon with shortage of both food and water. Although they have probably the finest corps of engineers in the world at their disposal, the question of supplies presents one of the knottiest problems that ever faced a General Staff.

Italy's difficulties by no means end in North-East Africa; they are equally serious at home. For a long time now there has been a heavy deficit in the Italian Budget, and, although Signor Mussolini may be able to meet his domestic requirements by the simple process of the printing press, he still must obtain large supplies of coal and other minerals from abroad, and for these he must pay in gold. Even at present no outside nation will give Italy credits, and once "sanctions" have been applied against her the problem of financing the Abyssinian war will begin to assume alarming proportions. To-day the Assembly of the League of Nations will meet at Geneva to ratify the steps that have been taken already by the Council. Italy now has been branded publicly as an aggressor State, and, as such, liable to the penalties of Article XIV. of the Covenant. There no longer can be any doubt that "sanctions" of some kind will be employed; the precise form that they will take has yet to be decided. Nearly all the member-States that are represented on the Assembly are expected to support the attitude of the Council. Switzerland, Austria and Hungary, being neighbouring States, may abstain from voting for obvious reasons; but the others will pledge themselves to exert economic and financial pressure on Italy in fulfilment of their covenanted obligations. However slight this pressure may prove to be, it is certain to cause grave embarrassment to the Italians; and, if Signor Mussolini has not blinded himself to all reason, he will seize the earliest opportunity to extricate his country from the unprecedented mess in which he has embroiled it. All sorts of rumours are in circulation. Most of them may be discounted immediately; but there seems to be an element of truth in the story that "feelers" have been extended in Rome by some of the Great Powers to see whether or not the Duce is willing to pause in his mad career. A protracted campaign in Abyssinia, in the most favourable circumstances, probably would bankrupt Italy. With "sanctions" in operation, her plight must become desperate in a very few months; for, however successful General de Bono's army may be in Abyssinia, the butcher's bill must be paid.

Britain's Recovery

A steady decline in the numbers of the unemployed in Britain has been among the encouraging signs of economic recovery during this year. The increase of 10,000 in the figures for September, therefore, has come as an unpleasant reminder that reverses still must be expected from time to time, and that the remaining months of 1935 may be a period of unusual difficulty. Problems of employment, however, do not lend themselves to dogmatic assertion, and the increase in the figures, grave as it is, cannot be considered without reference to other aspects of the situation. September marks the end of the holiday season, and the end, consequently, of the work in which many hundreds have been employed during the summer. Again, while 10,000 have lost work, 11,000 have entered upon gainful employment. All the larger industries and more important trades employ more workers to-day than they employed in 1934, and the whole matter is seen in a more cheerful light when it is considered that the young man's prospect of finding work is very much better now than it was a year ago. The total of the unemployed has dropped in the twelve months by 123,000, but the number of registered workers has risen by 192,000, and is now the largest recorded in the fourteen years in which statistics have been kept. One point of some importance which is raised by the new figures is that Britain's comparative freedom from trade disputes in September contributed largely to the increase in the number of persons absorbed by the more important trades. If the gradual improvement of the first eight months of the year is to be maintained, it is essential that the newly-won confidence of employers shall not be disturbed by threats of industrial unrest in any part of the country. A strike, or even the prospect of a strike of any dimensions, has an immediate effect, not only upon the industry immediately concerned, but upon all the hundred-and-one traders and manufacturers who may find their markets curtailed in consequence of it. At the moment there are grave fears that a stoppage may result from the attitude taken up by those miners in South Wales who declare themselves ready to give up their jobs rather than work with men who do not belong to their union. Any leader who encourages his followers into a strike about which there is the least suspicion of frivolity takes a responsibility greater, perhaps, than he knows. The miners themselves will not feel the pinch alone; for men must be discharged by the firms that cater for the miners in normal times, and the work will be forthcoming for a smaller number of the young men who are thrown month by month upon the labour market. At the present time, too, there must be fears that industry will be affected in the near future by the international situation. The Italo-Abyssinian dispute cannot but have a depressing effect on British trade, and, while there is every reason to believe that the September relapse has a purely seasonal significance, it would be rash to prophesy that the two-million mark will not be touched again during the winter.

Street Traffic

The authorities in London and in other capitals constantly are experimenting to find the most expeditious method for the control of city traffic. They have realised that the point duty policeman no longer can hope to manage the mile-long queues of motor vehicles that burden the streets, and they are concentrating exclusively upon automatic control. It is essential that every line of traffic should be treated in the same way in urban areas, where side streets carry as heavy a flood of traffic as the main; but too often, under the direction of a single policeman, these side streets prove to be a cul de sac. The policeman naturally is anxious to keep the main traffic stream in motion, and thus he tends to disregard those who wish to break in upon it, however numerous they may be. He is not to blame—the nature of his task simply has become too complex—but a large amount of time is lost for those who have business in the smaller thoroughfares. Even in the main streets, however, much time also is lost by this method of individual control. The police endeavour to keep every line moving in regular rotation; but the spacing of the traffic inevitably leads them to favour one stream at the expense of the other, and a motorist who is unlucky in this respect may find himself held up for an unnecessary number of minutes. Automatic control, however, by excising the human element, overcomes all these disadvantages, and, by imparting a regular rhythm to the traffic circulation, speeds up the entire system. In the early days of automatic control it sometimes happened that a line of traffic was suspended unnecessarily, with nothing coming in the other direction; but an apparatus now has been devised that is sensitive to the comparative weight of traffic in each arm of the crossing, and allots a "go" period in the proper ratio. How long must we wait for such a system in Dublin? Other cities have borne the brunt of the experimental work—it only remains for us to select the method we deem the most satisfactory; and, while we are remodelling our control, would it not be possible to remove the centrally situated tram standards that are a source of confusion, and of danger, to every road user?

Flying in Britain

Aviation in Great Britain, as is shown by the annual report of the Air Ministry, continues to develop steadily and fairly quickly. Last year, for example, the Imperial Airways Company completed its first ten years of flying, and a comparison between its volume of traffic in 1924 and in 1934 shows how great the progress has been since the company began. In that period it has increased its mileage threefold and its "traffic ton-mileage" sevenfold, and a similar increase can be noted in all branches of civil aviation. More letters are being carried by air, more licences are being issued to pilots, and more machines are being bought by private owners. Last year, in particular, marked a great advance in the building of the larger machines. This development foreshadows an increase in the scope of commercial air-lines, and owes a great deal to the England-Australia race, which, with other things, demonstrated the speed and safety of large machines over long distances. As a result more attention is being given to the design of air liners, and the day when regular services will be established between Europe and America has come appreciably nearer. Ten years or more must pass, perhaps, before the direct flight across the Atlantic will have become safe enough for ordinary passenger transport, but the safer route via the Azores and the Bermudas is a possibility that may be realised very quickly. Already Imperial Airways—evidently with an eye to the future—are building flying boats for a weekly service between the Bermudas and New York which will come into operation next year, and the remaining links to Europe are bound to be set up shortly afterwards. Aviation still is "feeling its way," but there seem to be indications that it is advancing now with more confidence, and that the time is not very distant when, like the railway and the motor-car, it will become an essential part of all our lives.

WEATHER FORECAST

General Inference.—Pressure is lowest near Iceland, and small irregularities will continue to cross the British Isles. Another depression is developing about 800 miles west of South-West Ireland, and will move east. Showery weather, with bright intervals, will be general, but rain is expected to recommence later in the day in south-western districts.

North-West, South-East and South-West Ireland.—Wind west, fresh, strong locally on coast, in squalls at first, backing towards south, moderating temporarily; showers and bright intervals at first; rain spreading from south-west later; rather cool.

North-East Ireland.—Wind westerly, moderate or fresh inland, strong at times at first on the west coasts, with squalls; showers, heavy locally, with hail; bright intervals; cool or rather cool

Sea Passages.—Wind west, strong and squally at times, backing later in the southern part of the area; showery; visibility good; sea rather rough.

DECLINE OF DIPHTHERIA IN CORK

VALUE OF IMMUNISATION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.
CORK, Tuesday.

The big decline in the incidence of diphtheria in Cork was commented upon in both the secretary's report and the medical report read at to-day's annual meeting of the Cork Fever Hospital Committee, the Rev. J. O'Regan, P.P., Monkstown, presiding.

The secretary's report remarked that the number of diphtheria cases in 1934 was 62, as against 90 cases in 1933, 114 in 1932, and 412 in 1931. He attributed the fall to the immunisation scheme, coupled with improved housing conditions and the clearing of insanitary areas.

The report welcomed the project to establish a new modern fever hospital in the city. The medical report also discussed the improved position as regards diphtheria, the work of Dr. Saunders, City Medical Officer of Health; Dr. [illegible], County Medical Officer, and the staff of the fever hospital.

LONDON LETTER

GENEVA AND SANCTIONS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

IN the diplomatic world it is believed that when the Assembly of the League of Nations meets to-morrow it will have placed before it a draft relative to the application of economic sanctions, and will be asked to fix the date when these shall come into operation. Details probably will be left to a committee. The aim is to re-establish peace by economic pressure, and measures to bring this about may include a withdrawal of credit from the aggressor, restriction of all projects tending to assist in the conduct of a war, a ban on all exports to the aggressor, and measures tending to bring pressure on the civilian population of the aggressor country. These measures are being drafted by the Secretariat of the League, assisted by economic experts from a number of countries, including Great Britain. It is unlikely that all these sanctions will be put into operation at once, but, if the milder ones fail, more severe sanctions will replace them as the war continues. The suggestion that an economic blockade of the Italian coasts may be proposed is regarded with some concern as likely to provoke acts of war on the part of the blockaded country.

The Mediterranean Fleet

France's reply to Sir Samuel Hoare's request that she should state whether she would be prepared to give naval support in the Mediterranean if British ships had to meet unprovoked aggression has come too late to be of much importance. Now that Italy is branded as an aggressor, the British Navy in Mediterranean waters is no longer an independent entity, but becomes associated with all the other naval Powers of the League. A point sometimes overlooked is that, while under Article 16 of the Covenant economic sanctions must be applied by all League members, military and naval sanctions are open to any member or group of members determined to support the Covenant.

Difficult Country

Military experts who have studied the campaign in Abyssinia declare, without exception, that they would rather be on the side of Abyssinia than that of Italy. It seems that everything depends on whether the Italians advance rapidly or slowly. If they make a rapid advance, they will increase their difficulties enormously, and, even if they advance slowly, the pathway is beset with danger. British officers who know the type of country intimately point out that it was possible for the Afridis to get to Peshawar in 1931 and for the Mohmands to ambush a contingent of our troops last month, and similar events are likely to take place in Abyssinia. A large army, such as that of Italy, is an asset which carries its own liability, as it has to be provisioned and supplied from outside, and so its extensive lines of communications have to be protected. This makes a big army an awkward and risky instrument for a campaign which must largely consist of guerrilla fighting.

General Election Plans

In political circles it is asserted that a general election at the end of November may be regarded as a certainty, as all the Government party machinery is ready for an appeal to the country. It is the expectation of the Government that it will lose a number of seats, but, nevertheless, it thinks that it will have a satisfactory majority. The autumn is not regarded as altogether suitable for a general election, but it is the view of the Conservative Party advisers that it will be wiser to go to the country now than later on. Sir Robert Topping, the chief agent of the Conservative Party, told his agents at Bournemouth last week to be ready for an election in November, and it seems that a decision has been reached to that effect, but nothing can be certain until Mr. Baldwin has given his sanction for an appeal to the electorate.

Possible Changes in the Government

The Government has been successful in obtaining the support of the Opposition for its policy of sanctions, and it is understood that, if any further international crisis develops, certain leaders of the Opposition will be invited to join the Government. The names of Sir Herbert Samuel and a member of the Labour Party have been mentioned as among those who would be asked to become Ministers without Portfolio. Although there may be no development to make such a step necessary, the Government evidently believes that it is best to be prepared for emergencies.

Mr. Lansbury Stands Aside

Mr. Lansbury has ceased to be leader of the Labour Opposition in the House of Commons, and for the few remaining weeks of the parliamentary session Major Attlee will take his place. As was expected, considerable pressure was brought to induce Mr. Lansbury to withdraw his resignation, but he persisted. The fact that the resolution asking him to reconsider his decision was not carried by a majority vote had much to do with the resignation, as it was known that Mr. Lansbury might have stayed on had he been assured of the support of the whole party. Mr. Lansbury's action has been brought about by his refusal to accept the official party policy on sanctions as laid down some weeks ago by the trade unions and endorsed at the Labour Conference last week.

The Royal Wedding

The wedding gown of Lady Alice Scott will be a thick English satin, specially woven, of a very delicate shade of pink with a faint silver sheen. This faintly-coloured material will reflect the lights in the Abbey better than a dead white material, and it has been chosen with a view to the background of the bridal procession, as all the bridesmaids, including the little Princesses, will wear gowns of the faint shell pink tint. Great preparations will be made at Westminster for the wedding, and several stands for hundreds of spectators will be erected along the route. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester will live at Buckingham Palace for a time at least, and will occupy a suite lent them by the King. The Duke has his own rooms on the second floor of the Palace overlooking Constitution Hill, and including accommodation for the members of his personal staff, but after his marriage he probably will be given other rooms until he finds a house of his own.

Art in the Provinces

The National Gallery of London has a number of old masters worth hundreds of thousands of pounds which it is willing to lend to any provincial art gallery, but there appears to be no demand for them. Mr. Kenneth Clark, the young and energetic director of the Gallery, is going on a tour to see what can be done to stimulate the taste of the provincials. The National Gallery of British Art is successful in lending modern paintings, as a taste for these pictures has developed in the provinces, and it is thought that something may be done with old masters if a scheme is properly organised. One of the difficulties in towns is that the local art galleries are too crowded with mediocre pictures, and it seems to be nobody's business to replace them with finer works.

HARRYING TACTICS BY ABYSSINIANS

GRADUAL RETREAT BEFORE ITALIAN FORCES

ARMY OF 80,000 MARCHES TOWARDS ERITREA

NON-LEAGUE STATES AND ECONOMIC SANCTIONS

AKSUM, the holy city of the Ethiopians, and once the capital of an Ethiopian kingdom, fell into Italian hands yesterday morning. The capture of Aksum, Adowa and Adigrat means that the Italians have established a line about 70 miles long facing almost due south.

Official circles in Addis Ababa emphasise with regard to this news that Abyssinian tactics at present consist in retreating gradually and harassing the invader in the meantime, tactics of which the Abyssinian is past master.

Three forces are said to be manœuvring against the Italian right flank in this sector, and an early success is claimed by Ras Seyoum, who telegraphs that he has captured an Italian colonel and thirty officers. Ras Kassa is co-operating with him with an army 80,000 strong. He is marching towards the River Setit on the Eritrean border. Dedjasmatch Ayelu with a third force is likewise moving steadily northwards.

Another report credits the Emperor's son-in-law, Dedjasmatch Haile Selassie, who commands the right wing of Ras Seyoum's army, with having actually penetrated Eritrean territory. This, however, is regarded as wild rumour, as it is pointed out that his force is only a small one.

The likely response of the Great Powers not in the League, if Geneva decides to impose economic sanctions on Italy, is still the subject of speculation. Indications received so far from Washington, New York, Tokyo and Berlin are indefinite.

The most favourable reaction comes from Washington. It is indicated there that, although the U.S.A. would probably refuse to participate in the League Sanctions Co-ordinating Committee, it would be unlikely to interfere with economic sanctions imposed by a League blockade of Italy. President Roosevelt's recent neutrality proclamation, specifically warning Americans that they deal with the belligerents at their own risk, is quoted in support of this view.

Berlin official circles refuse to make any statement regarding Germany's attitude. It is indicated that her first reaction would be to ask other non-League States what they propose to do.

In Tokyo it is predicted that although Japan would decline to participate in League action, she would ban the export of war material to Italy on general pacific principles. She hopes to recoup any loss in this field by expanding her general markets at Italy's expense.

IDEAL GROUND FOR GUERRILLA WARFARE

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL

ADDIS ABABA, Tuesday.

The Abyssinians believe that the Italians will stay their advance for a time while they consolidate their position and make safe their communications. The country immediately in front of them is more difficult than the area round Adowa, and the Abyssinians can be relied on to stage surprise attacks and the sniping of convoys.

The ground is ideal for guerilla warfare, with its rugged mountains, precipitous ravines and unbridged torrents. The tracks are practicable only for infantry and mules. Machine-gun and snipers' nests will be safe from the Italian tanks.

Against the admirable cover which nature provides for the mobile tribesmen, even aeroplanes will prove of little avail to the Italians, except, perhaps, for dropping supplies.

Raids on convoys and the ambushing of small parties of Italians are expected to keep the Abyssinians regularly equipped with arms and ammunition.

ERITREANS DESERT

Many Eritreans are reported to be deserting from the Italians, bringing with them rifles and machine-guns, particularly in the Makalle area, fifty miles south-east of Adowa.

Unconfirmed reports have reached here alleging that the Italians made use yesterday of gas bombs near Adowa. There is a good deal of hesitation at accepting these reports.

Another report that 6,000 Abyssinians have been killed or wounded near Adowa is ridiculed here. It is stated that so large a number of troops has not yet been involved at any one place.

It was learned here that the Abyssinian Government is about to ask the Italian Minister, Count Vinci, to leave the country. Already this morning forty members of the native staff of the Italian Legation and the Consulate at Debra Markos left by train for Djibuti.

TRAIN BOOKED UP

The fear that air raids will quickly follow the departure led to hundreds of foreigners besieging the railway station. There was a minor panic last night among the foreign colony. More than 120 stormed at the station, striving to book seats on the train. To-day hundreds were turned away disappointed, as the train was fully booked.

Scores of those departing were giving up businesses and professions which they had spent a lifetime building up. Among those who left were 20 Americans, 20 Germans and 37 Egyptians. The remainder were French, Greeks and Armenians, with many women and children among them.

FRENCH HOPES DASHED

AKSUM ATTACK UNEXPECTED

PARIS, Tuesday.

By attacking Aksum General de Bono has disappointed French hopes that Signor Mussolini would be willing to stop and talk after capturing Adowa.

Moderate opinion now hopes that the olive branch will come into evidence after the fall of Aksum. So, at any rate, says Le Temps to-night, arguing that the League's business is not "automatism of Covenant provisions," but rather the settlement of the dispute.

In support of this view the Temps reports from Geneva that unconfirmed, but persistent, rumours are circulating there that a diplomatic sounding is now taking place in Rome with the object of finding out Mussolini's intentions. The paper adds that proposals were actually made to Italy, with a reservation maintaining the Emperor's independence, but that they were not accepted.

Le Temps adds editorially: "Even if it is not easy to see at present how such solution could be prepared, such an attitude should not be discouraged if it really exists."

FREE CHOICE AT GENEVA

Le Journal des Débats says: "Legally, each member of the League has a free choice of the means whereby it participates in economic and financial sanctions. In fact, it may be hoped that no Power takes isolated action. If ever there was a case where nothing should be done without agreement it is this."

While there are distinct signs in the Press of a better understanding of the British viewpoint, the pro-Italian La Liberté to-night leads off with an article alleging that Britain's chief concern in Abyssinia is the safeguarding of the Alexandria-Cape air route, which is said to be "as necessary to-day as the sea route to India." The writer declares that if Italy occupied Abyssinia she could "cut the air line whenever she liked."

ITALIAN ACTION TO CONTINUE

LEAGUE "PRESERVING ABYSSINIA"

ROME, Tuesday.

Although Italy is prepared to leave the League should sanctions be voted against her, it is suggested here that Mussolini is still prepared to discuss the Ethiopian question by direct negotiation with England and France "on the basis of the 1906 Treaty."

Signor Gayda writes this evening: "Certain foreign circles have suggested that once Adowa was captured Italy would confine her action exclusively to the diplomatic sphere. This arbitrary forecast has not taken into consideration the elementary reason for the Italian action. It is not merely a question of prestige and national pride, but of putting an end to the continual and unprovoked aggression of Ethiopia.

"The capture of Adowa and other important strategic points is of a purely local importance. We must go further ahead."

ON ALL FRONTS

The writer gives as a reason for this the proceedings at Geneva, where, he says, the League is endeavouring to preserve Abyssinia at all costs and to encourage that country against Italy. At the same time other countries, he says, are not hesitating to supply the Abyssinian Army with weapons

For this reason "Italian military action will continue on all fronts, according to its objectives and the necessity imposed by the Abyssinian menace. This does not exclude Italy's preparedness to examine again the Ethiopian question with the two interested Powers, France and England, on the basis of Italian rights recognised by the 1906 Treaty."

Referring to the League decision that Italy is the aggressor, Signor Gayda writes: "The Committee of Six confined itself to the history of Italo-Abyssinian relations for three days, from the crossing of the Mareb River to the capture of Adowa, ignoring the previous forty years."

"ABSURD INTERPRETATION"

Signor Gayda deplores the action of the Committee of Thirteen in stating that the 1906 Treaty and the rights which it recognised in Ethiopia were incompatible with the Covenant and Ethiopia's membership of the League. In this way the League, he says, would deprive Italy of the rights already recognised by England which she had secured in the past.

"It is well to make clear that Italy will never accept this arbitrary and absurd interpretation of treaties. The whole action of the League in this way assumes a more than suspect significance. It would appear to be directed to deprive Italy of the very basis of her rights, so as to leave room in Ethiopia for some other nation who would better dominate the League.

"Everything at Geneva is being conducted with decreasing respect for international rights. For this reason more than ever Italian action must continue after Adowa."

MUSICAL AND SERVILE

THE ITALY THAT ENGLAND LOVES

Other journals have some unkind things to say about Britain. The people of Italy, writes the Lavoro Fascisto, are following with interest, but not with preoccupation, the phases of the polemics at Geneva.

"We know above everything that the cause of Italy finds in the Duce a great and iron strong defender, and we know that behind him stands a formidable army and a whole nation, armed with the proud will to victory and a complete readiness for sacrifice.

"The Duce's words should be meditated abroad, particularly in England—that England which has always loved a romantic, musical and servile Italy, and which unexpectedly finds itself faced with a hard-working, compact, military and warlike nation.

"Italy awaits with the calm foreseen by the Duce the sanctions which will not cause any grave hindrance to the normal rhythm of Italian life. Great Britain, however, should remember that she is putting her own prestige at the service of a barbarous people against that nation which can make the unique boast of being the mother of modern civilisation.

EGYPT TO BUY ARMS.

The Egyptian Cabinet has authorised a credit of £200,000 for the purchase of war material and munitions. It is understood that the purchases will be made in England.

"The action in Africa and Geneva," the paper concludes, "is a duel between the revolutionary civilisation of Fascism and barbarism, supported by a decadent and putrescent parliamentarianism associated with the subversive Communism of Moscow"

BRITAIN'S "INSOLENCE"

The Tribuna reproves Great Britain for "insolence" in its attitude towards the Ethiopian conflict as put forward by the "agitated Eden."

"The imperial error of Great Britain," the paper writes, "is not only the mistake of opposing Italy in the Mediterranean, but the error of opposing herself to herself against the history of the British Empire, its formation and its existence. But it is, above all, the error of opposing with Quakerish insolence the instincts and intelligence of a people by trying to make them believe in the disinterestedness of Great Britain's action at Geneva. This insolence is the greater since it is moral before it is political."

NOT LEAVING LEAGUE

An assurance that Italy would not leave the League, unless virtually driven out, was given in authoritative quarters this evening.

Asked whether Italy would leave if sanctions were invoked, the spokesman said: "That depends upon the nature of the sanctions. If they are of a grave nature Italy will be obliged to, but, otherwise, she will probably not."

Reuter was informed that Italy will listen to any proposals made at Geneva, but will make no proposals herself.

The Abyssinian Chargé d'Affaires, M. Afewtork, is still here, but it is expected that he will be recalled at any moment.

DIFFICULTIES AT GENEVA TO-DAY

SANCTIONS NOT SO SIMPLE

UNANIMITY MAY BE NECESSARY

POLAND MAY UPSET THE PLANS

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

GENEVA, Tuesday.

TO-DAY has been a day of private discussions, chiefly about procedure in the Assembly to-morrow, and also around the general question of sanctions. There is reason to believe that it is not going to be as simple a matter as was expected after the vote of the Council yesterday.

Certain jurists hold that the "automatic" application of Article 16 was abolished by the Assembly resolution of 1921, and that it will require a unanimous vote of the Assembly to make sanctions obligatory on member-States. Therefore, if the vote is not unanimous, they say, the application will not be binding.

It is understood that the question is being examined very thoroughly. There is already a huge dossier of legal opinion on the subject. Needless to say, if it is found that unanimity of the Assembly is an indispensable pre-requisite for sanctions, their application becomes much more difficult.

RESERVATIONS?

Considerable importance is attached to the arrival of Colonel Beck, the Polish Foreign Minister, who came by air to-day. He had a long talk with M. Laval this afternoon, and it is learned that he may make an important declaration in the Assembly to-morrow, making certain reservations regarding the attitude of Poland.

He is reported to have had an interview with the Italian Minister in Warsaw before his departure, and to have come to Geneva at the earnest solicitation of the latter.

Mr. Eden had a talk with Herr Pfluegl, the Austrian representative, and Lord Cranborne saw the Hungarian representative this evening. The attitude of both these countries, and of Switzerland, is very uncertain. Participation in any form of sanctions will be very difficult for them owing to their dependence on Italian trade.

1921 RESOLUTION

It is thought that the difficulty might be overcome by putting them on the coordinating committee, but it is probable that they will invoke the resolution of 1921, which provides that the Council may, in the case of particular members, postpone the coming into force of any given measure.

According to present arrangements, there will be a meeting of the Bureau of the Assembly at four o'clock to-morrow afternoon, followed by the full assembly at 5 p.m. Both Mr. Eden and M. Laval may speak, and any other member who may feel called upon to voice his view will have an opportunity of doing it.

It is not yet decided whether the members will be asked to accept or not the report of the Committee of Six. If this is done it will be by individual roll-call. Then the co-ordinating committee will be set up.

According to present ideas it will consist of certain members of the Council—not the parties to the dispute—representatives of neighbour States of Italy and of two or three other States in the order of importance of their trade with Italy.

There is reason to believe that Mr. Te Water, the South African representative, also will be asked to serve on the Committee.

FRENCH OPPOSITION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

The French delegation at Geneva is opposed to the British plan for an economic boycott of Italy owing to the fact that the measure is "more inconvenient than advantageous, on account of the economic crisis in Europe," according to the Geneva correspondent of the Havas Agency.

It is pointed out that Germany is not bound by the League's decisions, and this point, it is suggested, is likely to influence the League's decisions.

The League of Nations will probably lift the ban on the export of arms to Abyssinia, it is added.

JAPAN NOT TO CO-OPERATE

MAY BAN MUNITION EXPORTS

TOKYO, Tuesday.

Although it is not expected in well-informed circles that Japan will agree to co-operate with the League Sanctions Co-ordinating Committee, it is believed that she may ban exports of war supplies to Italy. The chief ground for this suggestion is the imperial rescript issued by the Emperor in 1933, after Japan's withdrawal from the League.

This says, inter alia; "the advancement of international peace is what is evermore we desire, and our attitude toward enterprises of peace shall sustain no change. By quitting the League, and embarking on a course of its own, our Empire does not mean that it will stand aloof in the extreme Orient, nor that it will isolate itself thereby from the fraternity of nations"

OTHER TRADE

It is presumed, however, that normal non-military commerce with Italy would be maintained. Any domestic opposition to Japan, following in the footsteps of the League of Nations, is expected to die down as a result of the anticipated increase of Japanese exports, especially silk rayon, to the rest of the world, due to Italy's preoccupation with the Abyssinian war.

So far as co-operation with the League is concerned, it is emphasised that Japan is determined to stand aloof from European complications and to watch developments.

It is announced that Mr. Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to Britain, who has been very busy enlightening Japanese leaders as to the basic motives of British policy, is returning to London before the end of the year.

NO CREDITS FOR ITALIAN TRADE

U.S. NOT TO BE EMBROILED

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The Government-sponsored Second Export-Import Bank, established last year to finance American trade with countries other than Russia, has announced its decision not to grant credits for the sale of goods to Italy or Ethiopia. Presumably to-day's announcement is partly a sequel to President Roosevelt's recent neutrality proclamation, in which he warned Americans that if they trade with belligerents they do so at their own risk.

It is generally believed that the United States will not co-operate in any way with the League of Nations in the imposition or working out of sanctions, and will not send any observer, official or unofficial, to the League Committee of Co-ordination on Sanctions.

The New York Evening Journal says: "United States policy, as dictated by the President himself and translated into action by Mr. Cordell Hull, is that the United States will not be embroiled in the situation in any way."

On the other hand, it is believed that the United States will not oppose any sanctions imposed by the League. Furthermore, she may recognise any blockade by the League as effective, and not insist on the rights of her nationals to trade with Italy.

In the event of the League applying sanctions against Italy the contract secured by South Africa to supply meat to the Italian troops would have to be cancelled, declared Mr. Havenga, the South African Finance Minister, speaking at a public meeting yesterday. South Africa earlier this year secured a contract to supply 5,000 tons of meat to the Italian troops over a period of three months. The export of the meat is being subsidised by the Union Government.

Rest of the War News

WITH the departure expected at any moment of the Italian Minister in Addis Ababa, the authorities are taking precautions against air raids. From dusk till dawn the capital will henceforth remain in complete darkness. Street lamps must not be lit and motor cars must not use their head lamps.

The Italian Minister in Addis Ababa yesterday protested to the Foreign Office against the arrest of his courier, Signor Bondi, in the neighbourhood of Diredawa.

A Royal decree published last evening in Rome makes it illegal for anyone entering the country to bring in Italian bank notes to the value of more than 2,000 lire.

The decree is aimed at "black bourses" abroad, at which Italian bank notes can be bought at exchange rates considerably higher than those officially quoted in Italy. The decree also states that Italian exporters in their invoices made out in lire and in the drafts for the payment of them must insert a clause regarding the way in which payment is to be made. The money must be paid not direct to the exporter, but to an approved account in an Italian bank abroad, or else by means of foreign exchange at the official exchange rate.

COAL WORKERS' CONDITIONS

PROPOSALS AT A DUBLIN MEETING

Far-reaching proposals for alterations in coal workers' conditions in the Dublin area were made at a meeting of banksmen, carters and motormen last night. The meeting was under the auspices of the Irish Seamen's and Port Workers' Union and the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union. Mr. Simon Carroll presided.

Minimum rates ranging from 65s. to 75s. per week were agreed upon for the drivers of motor trucks. It was also agreed that in future drivers would neither load nor unload coal. A rate of 15s. per day was fixed for casual drivers.

Supporting the proposals, Mr. P. Kelly, delegate, Irish Transport Workers' Union, said that these were the rates laid down by the Transport Trades Group in the Dublin Trade Union Council for motormen, and that they would tell the coal traders that not a lorry would move if these rates were not agreed to.

Mr. A. Byrne, delegate, Irish Seamen's Union, said that the rates were already in operation in the other trades. The merchants must employ helpers on their lorries in accordance with the manning scale laid down by the Union.

New rates were fixed for breasters employed on motor cartage, and rates were laid down for split deliveries of coal.

The meeting agreed that demands would be served on behalf of the stablemen.

One of the most drastic proposals adopted by the meeting was that all coal for delivery within a radius of thirty miles of Dublin must be delivered by the coal merchants, and could not be taken away by carriers or private lorries.

Special overtime rates were also fixed.

All these matters will be discussed at a conference with the coal merchants at an early date.

A TRANSPORT MERGER?

G.S.R. AND D.U.T. COMPANIES

FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

SOME weeks ago a suggestion was made in the Irish Times that some kind of working agreement between the Dublin United Tramways Company and the Great Southern Railways Company—who successfully operate omnibus services in the city and suburbs of Cork—might prove to be of benefit both to tramway shareholders and to the travelling public of Dublin. It was suggested that such a working agreement might either be limited to an arrangement under which the respective companies would have a common "reserve" of vehicles, and a joint use of garages and workshops; or, alternatively, that some more complete form of "merger" might be agreed upon.

There is now good reason to believe that these alternatives have been under serious consideration by the railway and tramway boards of directors, and that a well-known figure in the transport world has been actively engaged, in an advisory capacity, in efforts to find a formula which would benefit both shareholders and citizens, and prove acceptable to the Ministry of Industry and Commerce. While it is understood that the negotiations are yet in their preliminary stages, current rumours would appear to receive some degree of confirmation from the prolonged delays of the Tramways Company in replacing their obsolescent omnibus fleets with modern and efficient vehicles, and from the fact that two of the four members of the Tramways Company's board are also directors of the Great Southern Railways Company. There is also some reason to believe that the management of the Great Northern Railway Company — who operate several suburban omnibus services on the northern side of the city—are likely to be consulted by the Minister for Industry and Commerce before current negotiations enter on their definite, or final, stages. As a further indication that considerable changes are contemplated in the control of Dublin's system of public service transport, it may be noted that no appointment has yet been made to the office of General Manager of the Tramways Company, which was rendered vacant some months ago by the retirement of Mr. Marshall Harriss.

THE UNITED IRELAND PARTY

EXECUTIVE TO CONSIDER MR. MacDERMOT'S LETTER

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

There was a good deal of activity yesterday at the headquarters of the United Ireland Party, 3 Merrion square, Dublin, in preparation for the quarterly meeting of the National Executive, which is to take place to-morrow. Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, the leader of the party, and several prominent members were in attendance, but it was noticed that Mr. Frank MacDermot did not visit the offices during the day.

There have been no further developments in connection with Mr. MacDermot's letter to Mr. Cosgrave, published yesterday. It is generally believed that the whole matter will be raised at to-morrow's executive meeting.

Mr. MacDermot had no statement to make on the subject yesterday.

CONDEMNATION OF ITALY

PRIMATE AND HER CYNICAL CONTEMPT

CRITICAL DAYS IN WORLD'S HISTORY

A "SNATCH AND GRAB" POLICY

CONDEMNATION of Italy's invasion of Abyssinia was voiced yesterday by the Archbishop of Canterbury and other leaders of religious thought in Great Britain.

The Primate at the Church Congress at Bournemouth expressed indignation at Italy's "cynical contempt" for her solemn obligations.

The Archbishop said: "We meet at a most critical time in the history of the world. We meet in a mood of mingled distress and indignation.

"How can we fail to be indignant when we see a great European Power, which has signed the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Pact of Paris, treating these solemn obligations with cynical contempt and launching a fierce attack upon a fellow member of the League?

"If there was ever an act of unprovoked aggression surely it is this.

"Abyssinia may be a backward State. It may not yet have been able to liberate its slaves which our own country, after centuries of civilised rule, was able to do only a hundred years ago.

PITILESS MACHINE OF WAR

"But is it possible to think without resentment and a sickening of the heart of a proud and ancient people defending their own land with scanty military resources, with scarcely any hospitals, surgeons or nurses, being now mowed down by a vast and pitiless machine of war, equipped with all the powers which science has invented for the destruction of human life?

"We stand by our Government in its refusal to acquiesce in this assault upon the binding forces of those Treaty obligations on which the peace and the honour of nations depend, and in its determination to join with other members of the League of Nations in defending and upholding the Covenant of the League."

The Archbishop announced that this week he would issue an appeal for assistance to Red Cross work in Abyssinia. He asked for support on behalf of "a cause which must appeal to all the instincts of our common humanity."

Dr. Lang emphasised, however, that in the present dispute we were bound to give full weight to the need of Italy for expansion, and for some fuller access to the supplies of raw materials.

TIME FOR CONFERENCE

"The time has come," he said, "for an international conference, preferably originated by the League, to consider impartially and generously a more equitable distribution of the economic resources of the undeveloped parts of the world.

"With this ought to be resumed the endeavour to overcome that economic national selfishness which ignores the real facts of the modern world, which prevents the adjustment of production and consumption by the free flow of trade, and which is admittedly the root cause of strain and discontent among the peoples of the world."

"SNATCH AND GRAB"

The Bishop of Winchester (Dr. Garbett) described Italy's action as a policy of "snatch and grab," and asserted that if it were successful it was inevitable that within a few years we should be again "in a world governed by the law of the jungle, where might is the only right."

At the Congregational Union Autumn meeting at Brighton, the Chairman, Mr. Angus Watson, declared that Great Britain could not without national dishonour and humiliation fail to recognise her pledges.

The Bishop of Chichester, Dr. G. K. Bell, at the same meeting welcomed the firm and unanimous judgment of the Council of the League.

BISHOP'S SYMPATHY WITH THE POPE

The Bishop of Coventry, speaking at Leamington Spa last night, said that it was a little humiliating that the first nation to be judged by the Council of the League of Nations as an aggressor, and one which had broken its pledged word, was a nation wherein Christianity had been established from the beginning.

On the other hand, they knew how mighty had been the propaganda and influences to which the Italian people had been subjected. They also knew the great difficulties which confronted the Church of Rome in that country.

"Whatever our ecclesiastical opinions may be," added the Bishop, "our sympathy will be with His Holiness the Pope at this time. Please God there will be manifested there some power, and in a remarkable degree some real and penetrating Christian influence."

WORLD'S ECONOMIC ILLS

SPECIALISTS TO SEEK A REMEDY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

The decision to call in six specialists to examine the world's economic ills was taken to-day, when the International Conference on Financial Stabilisation met at the headquarters of the International Chamber of Commerce. The specialists include Professor T. E. Gregory (Britain) and M. Charles Rist (France).

In the words of the official statement, their job is "to answer the practical question: By what successive steps can the machine of world trade be restored?"

The inquiry is being organised by a Joint Committee, representing the Chamber of Commerce and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. The experts are expected to give special attention to monetary factors, including the prospects of exchange stabilisation.

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

MAYOR OF DROGHEDA'S APOLOGY

"PLACED IN FALSE POSITION"

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DROGHEDA, Tuesday.

At the meeting of the Drogheda Harbour Board to-day, Alderman L. J. Walsh, Mayor of Drogheda, who presided, said:—

"At the last meeting of the Board I made a statement concerning the failure of the Great Northern Railway Company in not providing adequate transport facilities in the discharge of a boat, and I requested that the matter be brought to the notice of the Minister for Industry and Commerce. I made that statement in all good faith on the representations of a public representative who deals with the discharge of boats. After the meeting I personally investigated the complaint, and was astounded to discover that there were no grounds whatever for the complaint which was made, and I immediately took steps to see that no letter of complaint was sent to the Department of Industry and Commerce.

"As Chairman of your Board, during my term of office as Mayor, I feel keenly the position I have been placed in in making an unfounded public statement concerning one of the largest carrying companies in this country, and I consider it most unjust and unfair to me that any public representative should have placed me in such a false position. I can assure you I will never again be placed in a similar position while I am acting in public life.

"I now take this opportunity of unreservedly withdrawing the statement I made at last meeting concerning the railway company, and I tender to the company a public apology."

The Mayor then read the letter from Mr. J. B. Stephens, General Manager of the Great Northern Railway Company and his (the Mayor's) reply.

That morning, the Mayor added, he had received the following acknowledgment from Mr. Stephens:—"I have to thank you for your letter of the 5th instant, and for the measures you are so kindly taking to remove any misapprehension there may have been in connection with the supply of lorries for the discharge of vessels at Drogheda port."

POLICE FIGHT IN PARIS COURT

BLOWS EXCHANGED IN COURT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Tuesday.

A fight between two French Scotland Yard Inspectors standing side by side in the dock caused a sensation in a Paris police court to-day during the hearing of a case arising out of the famous Stavisky scandal.

The case was one in which Mlle. Cotillon, a pretty brunette, alleged that she had been blackmailed, following the theft of her photograph from the police archives. Among those accused were Inspector Bony, who figured in the Stavisky case, and Chief Inspector Bouscatel. "I have never stolen photographs. It was Bouscatel. Look me in the face, Bouscatel, if you dare," shouted Inspector Bony during one outburst.

In an instant fists were flying. Republican Guards fell in a heap during the fight. After order was restored the Court adjourned for a week with still nearly thirty witnesses waiting to be heard.

BANDITS KILL POLICEMEN

TRAIL ACROSS TWO STATES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CUNMORE, ALBERTA, Tuesday.

Three gunmen, said to be members of the Doukhobor Russian religious sect, have killed three Canadian mounted policemen in gun battles during the last four days. A fourth policeman has been wounded.

One of the gunmen has been shot dead by the police, and two men, believed to be those wanted, were captured to-day, after a night-long hunt in which bloodhounds were used in the mountainous timberlands east of Banff, Alberta. Both were wounded.

The bandits had blazed a 600-mile trail across two States in a car commandeered from police after the first encounter. The three gunmen were first encountered by two policemen—Constables Shaw and Wainwright—near Benito, Manitoba, during the week-end. Subsequently the badly battered bodies of the policemen were found in a ditch by a farmer.

The bandits dashed westward across the prairies into Alberta in their victims' car, and encountered mounted police, who had been called out in Alberta, following the "hold-up" of a Calgary motorist.

The police were met with a hail of bullets, and in the fight that followed two mounted policemen—Wallace and Harrison—were wounded, and a 21-year-old bandit, Joseph Posnikoff, was killed. Constable Wallace subsequently died in a Calgary hospital. The other two bandits abandoned the car, and made for the timberlands. The two men, since arrested, are Pete Woykin and John Kalmakoff. The car abandoned by the bandits has been positively identified as that in which Constables Shaw and Wainwright were travelling near Benito on Friday.

The two captured men were found hiding behind some logs, seven miles from Banff, by a veteran game warden, William Neish, who fired three rifle shots, critically wounding both men in the stomach. They are Doukhobor farmers.

The bandits had three encounters with the police. After the killing of Constables Shaw and Wainwright they held up a motorist at Banff National Park. The police arrived, and Constables Wallace and Harrison were wounded, the former fatally. The bandits escaped by car and were again cornered twelve miles away, when Posnikoff was killed.

STORM-TROOPERS BEATEN

NEW YORK INCIDENT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Five men wearing Nazi Storm Troopers' uniforms, who paraded through the predominantly Jewish garment-workers' district in a lorry to-day to advertise a Nazi rally, were set upon and severely beaten. A crowd of some 3,000 stormed the lorry and dragged the men out. The arrival of the police, who made three arrests, quelled the outbreak.

THE BELFAST RIOTS

PRIME MINISTER'S VIEW OF CAUSE

"SECTION DISLOYAL TO THRONE"

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Tuesday.

THERE was an echo of the recent disturbances in Belfast when the Northern Parliament resumed to-day after the summer recess. Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C. (Nationalist) asked the Prime Minister whether he would consult the Government of the United Kingdom with a view to there being set up a Court of Inquiry in Belfast, authorised and directed to inquire into the origin and circumstances of the recent riots and disturbances in Belfast, and into the steps that ought to be taken for the better preservation of the public peace and the prevention or prompt suppression of riot and disorder, and the giving to such Court the powers the High Court of Justice vested in the Riot Commission appointed under the Belfast Commission Act, 1886.

Viscount Craigavon—No, sir. The answer is in the negative. Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, the responsibility for the maintenance of law and order in this part of the United Kingdom is a matter which falls within the sole competence of the Ulster Government, and the necessity for any consultation with the authorities in Great Britain does not arise. There is no need for any special Court of Inquiry, as the origin and all the circumstances surrounding the recent unfortunate disturbances in the City of Belfast are fully known and cannot be disputed. They are found deep-rooted among a certain section in our national life who are disloyal to the Throne and Constitution of these realms. My colleagues and I are fully satisfied with the tact, forbearance and efficiency of our police force, including the "B" Special Constabulary, from the Inspector-General down through the various ranks, and I feel sure that this House will be ready to congratulate the Minister of Home Affairs on his handling of a most difficult situation at a time of very grave anxiety, and desire to bear testimony to many public-spirited citizens, who by their influence were largely instrumental in allaying the high tension then existing.

PEACE AND GOODWILL

I am particularly anxious that no word shall be uttered in this House which might again arouse public feeling. Peace and goodwill cannot be fostered and preserved unless there is a whole-hearted determination among the citizens of all classes to promote good feeling and to support lawful authority.

Mr. W. Grant (Unionist) asked if the Government had considered the advisability of holding an inquiry into the circumstances of the attack on the Orange procession in Belfast on the 12th July.

The Prime Minister—As I stated in the answer to the previous question, the facts are well known. We know that an attack was made upon a peaceful procession. We know that a man was captured by one of our very gallant Royal Ulster Constabulary. We know that the miscreant is now undergoing a period of five years in jail. What further facts could an inquiry bring out than those I have just mentioned?

"SHOOTING OF A PUBLICAN"

Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C., asked the Minister of Home Affairs if he could state, with reference to the shooting of John McKiernan in his licensed premises in Great George's street, Belfast, on the night of 21st September, whether an intimation was conveyed to the police barracks in York street that afternoon that this man was in danger, and a request made for his protection, and, if so, what steps were taken to protect him.

Sir Dawson Bates, in reply, said that it was not a fact that an intimation was conveyed to the police in York street that Mr. McKiernan was in danger, nor was any request made to the police for his protection. It was a fact, however, that a communication was received at 9.45 p.m. by the police authorities requesting that a policeman should be sent to the public-house in question. Three constables were immediately despatched to the premises, and on arrival there at 9.50 they were requested by the publican to wait in York street until he would be ready to go home. The police moved away, as requested, and a few minutes later, hearing the sound of shooting, they immediately rushed round the corner to the public-house, only to find that the murder had been committed. He added that every effort was being made to render the guilty party amenable.

FLAX PRICES IN THE NORTH

FARMERS SUGGEST LEVY SCHEME

Flax-growers in Northern Ireland want a levy and bounty scheme. The Ulster Farmers' Union yesterday passed a resolution suggesting that the Northern Ireland Government should place a moderate levy on all imports of flax, to be used as a fund from which home flax-growers should be paid the difference between the market price of flax and a guaranteed minimum price.

It was stated that many growers at present did not receive prices that met even the cost of production.

ARRESTS IN MALTA

ESPIONAGE ALLEGED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MALTA, Tuesday.

Four men—one British subject, son of an Italian father, and three Italians—were arrested by the police here to-day in connection with alleged espionage activities.

The men, none of whom is at all prominent locally, are still being examined by the police.

The British subject is an employé of the shipping agency owned by Commendatore Luigi Mazzone, the prominent Italian business man in Malta, whose two sons were deported from Malta a week ago.

The police to-day raided the offices of several shipping companies which have been doing business with Italian lines.

One such raid had a tragic sequel. A prominent Maltese shipping agent who was taken to police headquarters for cross-examination was apparently so upset by the occurrence that he died of a seizure shortly afterwards.

BRITISH FORCES IN ALEXANDRIA

GRAND MARCH PAST ON FRIDAY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ALEXANDRIA, Tuesday.

A march past of some ten thousand British bluejackets, marines and soldiers will take place through the streets of the town on Friday morning.

The Egyptian Premier, Nessim Pasha; the British High Commissioner, Sir Miles Lampson; the Inspector-General of the Egyptian Army, Major-General Sir Charlton Spinks; Admiral Sir William Fisher, Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Fleet, and other high officers will watch the march past from a grandstand.

PROTECTING U.S. PROPERTY

STARS AND STRIPES IN ADDIS ABABA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.

The United States has furnished the Italian Government with data concerning American establishments in Addis Ababa, in the hope that invading 'planes will not bomb property protected by the U.S. flag.

No specific request to Italy to refrain from bombing buildings flying the American flag has been made, but Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, informed newspapermen to-day that details had been transmitted to Rome in the hope that they would be relayed to the Commanders-in-Chief of the Italian armies.

Mr. Hull added that Mr. Van Engert, the U.S. Chargé d'Affaires in Addis Ababa, had informed the State Department that he had requested U.S. institutions there either to fly large American flags or to paint a large flag on the roof of the building. The U.S. Legation has already done so.

Mr. Hull said further that he had received a report from Mr. Van Engert to the effect that the Diplomatic Corps and Consular Corps at Addis Ababa had agreed to ask their respective Governments to obtain assurances from Italy that Addis Ababa and Diredawa would not be attacked from the air.

The Secretary of State declined to say whether the United States would join in such a request.

FRENCH TROOPS IN ABYSSINIA

RAIL PROTECTION DUTY

Two hundred French colonial soldiers armed with machine-guns arrived at Diredawa from Djibuti yesterday in order to give protection to French employés of the railway.

Two Italian 'planes flew over the railway line between Afdem and Awash, and it is learned that two other Italian 'planes collided while bombarding Gerlogubi in Ogaden province. No details are yet known.

So calm is Addis Ababa that sporting clubs have re-opened their doors and the Italian Military Attaché was seen walking without an escort in the streets yesterday. Horse trainers continue to prepare mounts for the races. Two new dance halls have announced their forthcoming opening with a gala night.

"ENCROACHMENT ON LOCARNO"

GERMAN VIEW OF FRENCH REPLY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Tuesday.

The French reply to Great Britain has surprised German political circles. It is, in their view, an attempt to exploit international political tensions for France's own political purposes and to entangle Great Britain in the network of France's policy of collective alliances.

In an inspired article the Boersen Zeitung remarks: "In practice France demands to be authorised to mobilise on the German frontier without conceding to Germany the right to interpret this as a threat and provocation. The French demand is not compatible with the Covenant of the League, and is an attempt to paralyse the Locarno Treaty."

"Germany," the paper adds, "must protest against such an encroachment on the Locarno Treaty, because the value of Locarno lies in the impartial reciprocity of the German people. We cannot imagine Great Britain will support such a policy as the French suggest."

ITALIAN CAFE DISTURBANCES

MISSILES THROWN BY CROWD

An Italian café in Shoe lane, London, was the centre of several disturbances late last night.

After two posters announcing "Abyssinian counter-attack on Adowa" had been posted on the windows of the café missiles were thrown.

Customers entering and leaving the premises were booed by a large crowd which gathered in the lane.

PRIZE-WINNING PLAYS

Lord Longford, in the course of a short speech last night at the Gate Theatre, announced the result of the competition for one-act plays which was held recently by the directors. The first prize, he said, had been awarded to Mr. M. Eamon Dubhagan for his farce, "The Dancer's Dilemma." "The Diarists,' by Ulick Burke, won the second prize, and "The Strange Guest," by John C. Boyne, the third prize. He hoped, he said, that one or more of these plays would be presented by the theatre during the coming season.

TOWN HALL FOR HOWTH

DISCUSSION AT URBAN COUNCIL

THE RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION

THE purchasing of a building to be used as a Howth Town Hall was discussed at a meeting of the Howth Urban District Council last night.

The Chairman (Mr. W. G. Mulvin) said that their suggestion for acquiring a town hall had been scoffed at by many people in Howth. But he had had to listen to complaints from the Town Clerk and others about the matter, and there was also the attitude of the Department of Justice to be considered. They were only in their present premises (the local Courthouse) on sufferance. Apart from that, the present premises were totally unsuitable, and they had a particularly tempting offer of what amounted to two self-contained partially furnished flats for the sum of £70 a year. He thought that they should close the bargain without delay.

Mr. E. Reid—Surely this is a matter for a notice of motion?

Mr. T. Mullin said that from one point of view alone it would be a good plan; it would mean that the surveyor would have his documents at hand, and not in Clare street, Dublin. Time after time this had delayed them.

When they got away from the present premises they should also get away from the present influences. "We are going into the house of the man who is now Town Clerk," he said, "and people are already talking about it, and you are giving some grounds for talk. There are other suitable premises in the town; I could suggest others, one of them where we could also house the fire engine. I am definitely against rushing this matter. This thing must be open and above board."

Mr. Reid—Why not buy outright, instead of spending £70 a year.

The Chairman said that, in view of their present position and the question of their abolition, that course would not be advisable.

Mr. Reid—Why all this secrecy? Why did not this come before the Financial Committees?

It was decided to postpone the matter and give notice of motion: "That premises suitable for a town hall are required."

RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION

Members of the Council then discussed the formation of a ratepayers' association in Howth. Mr. T. Mullen said that it had been extensively and insiduously suggested that the Council was meeting behind closed doors, that the ratepayers were being mulcted, and that the Council were doing nothing. A general attempt was being made to create disaffection in the area, and, at the present juncture, when important issues were facing the township, the Council should call a public meeting to discover whether or not they still had the confidence of the people. At the meeting in the St. Lawrence Hotel, he continued, at which an association was formed, insidious statements were made. It was a peculiar thing that whenever there was anything being done for Howth there was always an element of that kind to come forward and stop it.

The Chairman said that he agreed with Mr. Mullen, and he saw no necessity for a meeting, as the bulk of the ratepayers were behind the Council.

Mr. E. Reid said that as a result of the meeting of ratepayers the Greater Dublin Tribunal might think that the ratepayers as a whole were opposed to the Council. He believed that if they held a meeting that they would get the full support of the ratepayers, but if the ratepayers did not want them they could resign in a body, and have another Council elected.

The Chairman said that he was not opposed to a ratepayers' association. He only hoped that it would help them with some of their problems.

Mr. Mullen—There is not a chance of that they will only hinder us.

Mr. Reid—I am not against a ratepayers' association, but I am against a section of the people forming an association as a countermove to the efforts of the Council.

The Chairman said that it would be unwise to take any further action at the moment.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

THE ASSEMBLY MEETS

The Times remarks in a leading article to-day:—The business of the League moves forward another stage with to-day's meeting of the Assembly. On Monday the whole Council, unanimous but for the voice of Italy, one by one declared it proven that Abyssinia had been the victim of aggression and invasion. What other declaration was possible? Step by step the Duce has brought into operation one measure after another in the defensive system with which the Covenant aims at surrounding the peace and security of its signatories, Italy included. War has been his aim, and war is his achievement—with, without or against the League. Nor has he troubled to mask his design. The sophistries which it has been Baron Aloisi's unenviable task—even while Italian troops were pouring over the Abyssinian border—to offer to his colleagues on the Council can hardly have been intended to convince them. Words and deeds together have compelled the Council to bring one part of its endeavour to an end—to summon the Assembly and to turn from the prevention of war to the restoration of peace.

All that need or will be contemplated at this stage is what was described in these columns the other day as a common determination to refrain from all actions or dealings which are calculated to facilitate or prolong the war. The smaller States have the opportunity to-day of showing that their determination in no way lags behind that of the larger States represented in the Council. It is for the Assembly to reinforce the Council with further and, indeed, final proof, that the League of to-day has such cohesion and vigour as will make the League of to-morrow a still more respected, more effective, and more representative protector of the peace. They have their chance now upon the simplest issue which could have been presented to them.

Let no one, adds The Times, count upon swift or sensational results. The process must of its nature be slow, both in inception and in effect. The Assembly itself has yet to complete its session. A co-ordinating committee has to be set up, a plan to be devised and accepted, a date for its inception to be fixed. It is not unnatural, while Abyssinians are dying for the sole offence of resistance to an invader, that some should think patience only another word for complacency. Already there have been complaints that the League has been slow. Actually the Council—and Mr. Eden has played a firm and honourable part in this—has shown itself in these last days fully capable of speed and decision. Such complaints can do the main cause no service. The Council itself is not a Cabinet, nor the Assembly a Parliament. Some forty countries have still to consider and declare their policy. The first aims are that they should reach agreement, and that they should make their unanimity effective for the termination of war. This country will, and must, be content for the present to look confidently and patiently, though not complacently, for this accomplishment.

Shrine of
St. Patrick's Bell

Here in this beautiful example of ancient Irish craftsmanship was enshrined not only the famous bell, but the glorious unchanging tradition that only the very best of technical skill, the cream of experienced labour, the choicest of materials, were worthy components of such an object.

To-day the same tradition is still carried on in the manufacture of the country's most popular cigarette in which only the finest quality tobaccos and paper are used.

BRITISH POLICY CRITICISED

MR. L. S. AMERY ON ABYSSINIA

NOT WORTH THE DEATH OF A SINGLE MAN

IN a speech delivered in the Sparkbrook Division, Birmingham, last night, Mr. L. S. Amery, M.P., a former Dominions Secretary, criticised the Government's policy in regard to Abyssinia. He said that it filled him with profound misgiving. They seemed to have drifted into a situation where almost the only alternative to the failure to achieve their purpose would be the infinitely more disastrous failure of a European War. He was not prepared to send a single Birmingham lad to his death for the sake of Abyssinia.

What had created the crisis had been the British Government's determination to make it a test case of the effectiveness of the League of Nations as an instrument for the forcible prevention of war. If the Government came to realise that their efforts to preserve peace could not now be carried further without incurring the risk of a world tragedy, they would be well advised to disentangle themselves as best they might, and with the least possible delay, from the difficult and dangerous position into which they had drifted.

The remedying of the inadequacy of Britain's defences should be the first issue to come before Parliament, and a Defence Loan should be introduced as early as possible.

The people of the country and empire were not prepared to send their sons to die for a theoretical scheme of universal peace which could only be enforced at the risk of universal war.

ONLY ONE WAY

Purely economic sanctions were not going to stop the war. There is only one way, he continued, and that is by declaring war on Italy ourselves, or by taking such measures as blocade, or the seizure of ships, as will force Italy in desperation to make war on us. Is that what we want? Are we to go to war sooner than acknowledge the failure of our policy?

As for the League, I see its only hope of continued usefulness in a return by all concerned to the policy of conciliation, and to the definite jettisoning of those clauses of the Covenant which suggest that the League exists for the purpose of maintaining peace by methods of war.

Mr. Amery added that the Italian attack, whatever might be thought of its morality or wisdom, seemed to him not essentially different from other wars of Colonial conquest. Whatever we may think of Mussolini's Abyssinian adventure, he said, we must in fairness recognise that no one in recent years has made a greater practical contribution to the peace of Europe than Signor Mussolini.

Does it mean that it is only the stubborn commonsense of M. Laval to which we can look to save us, in spite of ourselves, from a European war? I would bid the Government listen to the growing groundswell of misgiving and anxiety in the ranks of their most loyal supporters, in the world of business, and in the working-classes, that would bear the burden and agony of an unnecessary war.

TO COMBAT SPIRIT OF LAWLESSNESS

CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP COUNCIL

Representatives of the Protestant Churches in Belfast have decided, with a view to promoting a better feeling among all classes of citizens, to form a Christian Citizenship Council. The movement is an outcome of the recent rioting in the city, and the call of the Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, the Right Rev. Dr. MacNeice, for active work upon the part of the christian communities to combat the spirit of lawlessness and intolerance now prevalent among parts of the community.

The decision to form the Council was taken at a meeting of clergy and laity convened by the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church, and presided over by the Bishop. Speeches were delivered emphasising the need for such a council, and the following resolutions were passed:—

"This meeting recommends the immediate formation for Belfast of a United Council of Christian Churches, to be designated 'The Belfast Christian Citizenship Council.'"

"That the Council shall consist of representatives of the christian communities in Belfast willing to join in united efforts to promote woodwill in the community; to seek to ensure that the fundamental rights of civil and religious liberty and personal safety shall be assured to all citizens, and to deal with matters of public interest from the religious point of view as these may from time to time arise."

An executive committee was appointed to suggest a practical programme.

WOMAN'S STORY OF A BURGLARY

PECULIAR CORK CASE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Tuesday.

At Cork Circuit Court to-day Mrs. Agnes McGillicuddy, of 1 Roche's Buildings, Cork, pleaded guilty to creating a public mischief at her own house by causing the impression that a burglary had taken place on May 29 last.

Prosecuting counsel said that the accused woman's husband, James McGillicuddy, reported that £11 he had in a box had been stolen. On investigating, the Guards found the house dog locked up in the back yard, a staple missing from the back door, and chairs placed against the door to create the impression of a burglary. Subsequently the Guards suspected the accused woman.

The husband stated that his wife was industrious and provided for himself and four children for a considerable time while he was out of work.

It was stated on behalf of the accused woman that she had posted a £10 note to the Civic Guards, and the remaining £1 she had spent on a Confirmation suit for the youngest child.

At Judge O'Donnell's request the husband consented to have the £10 note handed to the woman, and having received it in the dock she was released on her own recognisances.

HOME ASSISTANCE OFFICER SUSPENDED

SWORN INQUIRY TO BE HELD

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MULLINGAR, Tuesday.

At Westmeath Board of Health meeting to-day, before Mr. P. J. Bartley, Commissioner, the secretary read an order of the Commissioner suspending Mr. Laurence Ginnell, home assistance officer, for alleged misconduct in the discharge of his duties as home assistance officer.

A letter was read from the Minister for Local Government stating, in regard to the Commissioner's order suspending Mr. Ginnell, that he had instructed the Local Government Department inspector, Mr. Seamus MacLysaght, to hold a sworn inquiry into the circumstances connected with Mr. Ginnell's suspension.

OBITUARY

THE EARL OF MORTON

The Earl of Morton died yesterday at his residence, Conaglen, Ardgour, Argyllshire, in his ninety-first year. He was the son of the nineteenth Earl. In 1877 he married the Honourable Helen Geraldine Maria, daughter of the second Baron de Manley, and in 1884 he succeeded his father in the title. He had been a Representative Peer for Scotland since 1886, was a Justice of the Peace for Argyll and Midlothian, a Deputy-Lieutenant for the County of Argyll, and from 1914 to 1916 was Head Coast Watcher, R.N. Lord Morton's sports were deer-stalking and yachting; he was a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron, Cowes. He is succeeded in the Earldom by his grandson, Lord Aberdour, who was born in 1907.

MR. JOHN A. BALDWIN

The death took place at his residence, Ballinacurra, Limerick, on Monday last of Mr. John A. Baldwin, editor of the Limerick Chronicle. Mr. Baldwin had been connected with journalism for half a century, and since 1908 had edited the Limerick Chronicle. In his earlier years he visited many parts of the country in the course of duty; he made many friends and was popular with all. Mr. Baldwin is survived by his wife and one daughter.

MRS. JAMES MITCHELL

The death has taken place at her residence, Lisdoogan, Monaghan, of Mrs. Mitchell, widow of Mr. James Mitchell, who was in his day a well-known figure in the county. She was in her 93rd year, and until a few months ago was in excellent health. Mrs. Mitchell was daughter of Mr. Thomas Hugh Adams, Ashville, Antrim, and a sister of Dr. J. J. Adams, Antrim. She was deeply interested in the welfare of Monaghan and district, especially in all philanthropic and religious work. She is survived by her four daughters—Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. Haire, Mrs. Wright, and Miss Mitchell. Her second daughter, Mrs. Swan, predeceased her ten years ago.

DUBLIN FIRE

About a dozen families hurriedly left their rooms in a tenement at 41 Poolbeg street, Dublin, this morning at 2.45, following a fire alarm. One of the occupants, an aged invalid named Catherine Doolan, was carried to an adjoining house. The Fire Brigade discovered that a fibre mattress lying in a hallway at the rear of the house had taken fire and the rooms on the ground and first floors were choked with smoke. The outbreak was extinguished without difficulty.

BRITISH LABOUR LEADERSHIP

MR. G. LANSBURY'S RESIGNATION

APPOINTMENT OF MAJOR ATTLEE

AT a special meeting of the British Parliamentary Labour Party in London yesterday, Mr. George Lansbury, M.P., resigned the leadership of the party, which he has held for four years, and Major C. R. Attlee, deputy leader, was appointed to act as chairman for the remainder of the present session.

After a lengthy discussion on Mr. Lansbury's tendered resignation, he withdrew from the meeting, and it passed, by 38 votes to 7, a resolution asking him to reconsider his decision. Mr. Lansbury, however, declined to do so, and his resignation was acceped with profound regret.

The choice of Major Attlee for the leadership was unanimous, no other name being submitted.

The meeting decided to ask Sir Stafford Cripps—who was not present—to reconsider his resignation from the executive, and also to send a request to the Government "for the speedy re-assembly of Parliament, and that arrangements be made for a debate on the international situation on the day the House meets."

The meeting had been summoned by Mr. Lansbury, and was attended by about fifty members, out of a total party strength of fifty-eight.

Mr. Lansbury made a speech of about an hour's duration. His disagreement with the official policy of his party over the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, and his own uncompromising pacifist attitude, had been brought to a head by the overwhelming vote in favour of sanctions passed at the recent Labour Party Conference.

Major Attlee, who is M.P. for the Limehouse Division, also takes over the leadership of the official Opposition in the House of Commons. He has already had experience in this capacity; for during Mr. Lansbury's long illness he deputised for him in the House. He was Postmaster-General in the late Labour Government, and was Under-Secretary of State for War in 1924.

The only other person who was considered a likely successor to the leadership was Mr. Arthur Greenwood, who was Minister of Health in the late Labour Government.

In an interview last night Mr. Lansbury said: I would like to appeal to my colleagues in the Labour movement to bear with me in these days of stress and difficulty, and to just remember not the past—that does not matter—but to-morrow, and to pin their faith not in poison gas or armaments, but in love and good-will.

Major Attlee, in an interview with a reporter, said that he and Mr. Lansbury would be working together on all the main lines of the Labour programme; for it was only on the one issue—of sanctions—that there was any difference.

WORLD'S LARGEST NEWS CLEARING HOUSE

SCIENCE AS AN AID TO SPEED

The most comprehensive and scientifically equipped news clearing house in the world is to be built in Fleet street, London, to accommodate Reuter's and the Press Association, as well as the numerous Empire and foreign news organisations allied to Reuter's, and the newspaper organisations in more direct touch with the Press Association. The elevations in Portland stone are being designed by Sir Edwin Lutyens.

For some time past the policy of the directorates of the two concerns has been to consolidate their joint working to the utmost extent compatible with their respective spheres of activity and consistent with their separate identities, that of Reuter's as an Imperial and foreign news organisations and that of the Press Association as the authoritative and main gatherer of home news.

The building will consist of nine floors, and will have frontages on to Fleet street, Salisbury square, Salisbury Court and St. Bride's avenue. Sir Edwin has designed a beautifully-shaped central entrance and hall, and the whole structure will be a dignified acquisition to the newspaper quarter.

The interior will be fitted with the most modern telegraphic and other devices for the swift collection and distribution of news, and will include certain inventions which have been under observation for a considerable period.

The building will be a mass of sensory nerves, which will keep not only Reuters, but also the Empire and foreign representatives accredited to Reuters in momentary touch with the intelligence that concerns each territory, and will reduce to a minimum the time required for the sifting and diffusion of the intelligence to every part of the world.

In short an order and method of working will be established that will mark the beginning of a new stage in the co-operative interchange of world information.

DUBLIN SEWERAGE

EVIDENCE BEFORE TRIBUNAL

The capacity of Dublin sewers to take the drainage of rural areas at present being developed was dealt with by Mr. H. Nicholls, Assistant Engineer in charge of drainage in the Dublin Corporation, when the Local Government (Dublin) Tribunal sat at the Four Courts, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. G. Gavan Duffy, K.C. (Chairman), presiding.

In reply to Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., T.D., Mr. Nicholls said that from 1925 to 1929 the Crumlin area was drained at a cost of £61,271. From 1870 to 1881 a drainage scheme was carried out in the Rathmines and Pembroke area at a capital cost of £100,000.

Mr. James Geoghegan, K.C., T.D., who appeared for the Dublin County Council, asked if, in view of the ambition of the Dublin Corporation to incorporate Rathmines and Rathgar, would it be reasonable to expect that the main sewer leading to the outfall works would be so constructed as to deal with the drainage from these two places when the occasion arose?

Mr. Nicholls replied that it would.

Mr. Geoghegan—How is it that during the five years that you have been in undisputed control the Corporation is discharging still the Rathmines and Pembroke sewage at a separate outfall? Has it been purely a financial consideration?

Mr. Nichols—It is not a thing that can be done in a day. It would involve cost and planning. There are four or five ways in which it can be done.

Mr. Geoghegan—Can you venture any forecast as to the length of time that will elapse before the sewage from Rathmines and Pembroke is taken into the main sewer?—I could not give a definite answer to that.

Mr. Nicholls said that the capacity of the sewer to Chapelizod was by no means fully taxed at present. As for the Artane area the capacity of the sewer on Malahide road was over-worked.

Mr. Geoghegan—One sees along Collins avenue a great deal of land quite undeveloped. Will this sewer on Malahide road be able to cope with all the houses that will be built there? A large portion of that land is Church property, and institutions, such as St. Mary's College and St. Mary's Asylum, have a large portion of the land.

Referring to the Greater Dublin Commission of Inquiry held ten years ago, at which evidence was given by Corporation drainage experts that there was a gross pollution at Seapoint, Bullock Harbour and Killiney, the Chairman asked if that pollution still continued.

Mr. Nicholls said that he could not say.

Chairman—You are aware that the effect of their evidence was that the raw sewage was discharged by Pembroke and Rathmines into the Liffey at a time when the Corporation was spending thousands of pounds on treating sewage properly?—Yes.

Is that the position to-day?—I think not to such a great extent. The hours of discharge from Rathmines and Pembroke have been watched carefully.

Is it not true that Merrion Strand, where so many children play, and the foreshore at Clontarf still are polluted?—That is not a thing I should like to swear to.

The Commission adjourned until to-day at 11 a.m.

The following public bodies were represented:—Dublin Corporation—Messrs. A. E. Wood, K.C.; V. Rice, K.C., T.D.; and Mr. T. G. Burke (instructed by Mr. I. J. Rice, Law Agent). Dun Laoghaire Borough Council—Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C.; Mr. F. Monks (instructed by Messrs. Sheridan and Kenny). Dublin County Council—Mr. J. Geoghegan, K.C., T.D., and Mr. W. G. Fallon (instructed by Mr. T. Early).

FOUR YEARS' DRIFT THROUGH ICE

A drift through the dense ice of the North Polar regions, which may last for four years, is to be undertaken by an expedition of Russian explorers and scientists.

In a small wooden ship specially built for the purpose, they will be frozen fast in the icefields somewhere between the New Siberian Islands and Wrangel Island; then, following Nansen's famous feat in the "Fram," they will allow themselves to drift with the Arctic currents.

The aim of the expedition, which will consist of ten officers and men and five scientific observers, is to collect far-reaching data of the North Polar ice regions. It will carry the most modern scientific equipment available.

Field of Twenty-Three for Irish Cesarewitch

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

CALL-OVER POINTERS

Pepino's Narrow Victory at Nottingham

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Tuesday Night.

THE great game of permutations was continued when the card was called over in London to-day on the Cesarewitch, and the process of ringing the changes went on when Mr. Loel Guinness's three-year-old, Woodstock, was made favourite.

Every day a new favourite is the order on the Cesarewitch, and has been for some weeks past. What will actually start favourite on the day of the race I hesitate to predict.

It might not be Woodstock, although he is likely to be the only runner from the stable of Captain Boyd-Rochfort, as Enfield, Alcazar and the others may disappear at the final forfeit, which has to be declared to-night.

More likely that it will be Shining Cloud, who finished second last year, and has excellent claims, both on the point of stamina and on public performance. She was restored in the market to-day and was joint second favourite with Doreen Jane, who was deposed from the first place to which she was exalted a week ago. Both the mare and the filly were offered at 100 to 9 to-day.

A Come-back

Tommack made a comeback in the market, being backed at 20's and at 18 to 1. There are people who predict that on the day he may even start favourite, though I am inclined to doubt this.

Gordon Richards is still standing down, and it is likely now that he will not ride before this week-end, if then. Polly Stephens came in for mild support, and her defeat at Nottingham yesterday was not taken too seriously, as she had not had a race since June, and the course at Colwick Park is sharp enough for a long-striding mare like her.

In spite of the passion for Doreen Jane, her stable companion, Hoplite, keeps his place in the market and was again backed to-day. It was on the strength of a gallop with him that Doreen Jane was first made favourite, but Hoplite does not show much at home.

Game and Consistent

The Oaks winner, Quashed, was quoted at 25 to 1. She is one whose chance I could like very much, because she is game and consistent, and, although the three-year-old fillies do seem below an ordinary year this time, she has undoubted class to recommend her chance.

One of the many former favourites, Chrysler II., was knocked out to 50 to 1, and then 40's were taken.

For the Cambridgeshire the four-year-old Pegasus and the three-year-old Law Court were joint favourites at 10 to 1, and Finalist, who is to run at Haydock Park this week-end, and has been aforetime favourite, was at 17 to 1.

On the strength of what he did at Newmarket last Friday the price of Pegasus seems a fair one. No Cambridgeshire candidate has run such a good public trial.

Badruddin was banged in the market, and the Duke of York Handicap winner, British Quota, did not go too well. Gunboat was introduced at 28 to 1, and on the strength of his running at Goodwood with Pegasus, and on what I hear of him this is a likeable candidate.

Ran Well in Paris

Corrida, who ran well in Paris on Sunday and finished in front of Brantomé, was supported a little at 35 to 1, while Knighted was offered at 40 to 1.

Two Cambridgeshire horses, Pepino and Inflation, thrust themselves into a little prominence this afternoon at Nottingham, when they finished first and second in the Trial Handicap, there being only a head between them. Pepino got up in the last few strides to win after the other had made all the running.

There was a Cesarewitch horse at Nottingham, the Brazilian champion, Mossoro, who was backed a little at the call-over. He finished third in the Bentinck Plate, in which Alcazar only just landed the odds laid on him by a head from Glentrigo, the other being three lengths off.

Selections

The Rockingham Handicap will not be an informative event regarding either the Cesarewitch or the Cambridgeshire to-morrow afternoon at York. It is an open event, which may be won by the well-handicapped FREE FARE, to whom the danger may be Cyrus.

The Malton Plate for two-year-olds should be won by BARRA SAHIB, and in the last race, the Derwent Plate, COSMO LASS, for whom the ground has come right now, may be the best.

GALTEE MORE.

FREE FARE'S CHANCE

Barra Sahib Gets Confident Vote for Malton Plate

PAUL BEG, who won the Gimcrack Stakes for Lord Milton, will revisit the scene of that notable triumph, the Knavesmire, to-day. He is engaged in the chief event, the £1,000 Malton Plate, and in the Middleham Nursery. It is probable that he will contest the latter event, for, although he has top-weight of 9st. 2lb., he will be better suited by the six furlongs of the handicap than by the shorter distance of the other race. He has always given the impression that he is a stayer, and only one of his three victories in nine outings was over five furlongs.

In any case, I should prefer Barra Sahib in the Malton Plate. This son of Blenheim had been second three times before he won the Hopeful Stakes at Newmarket last week. He scored comfortably, and I understand that the improvement has been maintained. The Aga Khan's colours will also be carried by Bahuddin, who will be all the better for a race in public. The pick of Newmarket is expected to be Flares, from Boyd-Rochfort's stable, who usually does so well at this particular fixture. Patball, who has a consistent record, is certain to be prominent with his pull in the weights, and, as he will be receiving 10lb., I think he represents the chief danger to

BARRA SAHIB.

The Rockingham Handicap will not attract any of the prominent Cesarewitch candidates which appear among the entries. Red Horizon, who won the race last year, has a stone less to carry, and it may be significant that he gives way to his stable companion, Winastep. This four-year old won over the distance, twelve furlongs, at Doncaster, having made all the running, and is right at the top of his form.

FREE FARE

appears to have been leniently treated with 8st. At this time last year he was about a 7lb. better horse than Disarmament, who has to give him 3lb. here. I do not think that he has deteriorated to the same extent as this handicapping suggests, and as I hear that he has been well galloped of late I shall give him my vote.

If reserved I shall expect to see Paul Beg go close for the Middleham Nursery, despite the usefulness of the opposition, but for my selection I turn to who since the going became soft has shown a return to her useful early-season form. She showed her ability to get the distance when second to Joyous filly at Doncaster.

VOLCANIUS

has been specially reserved for the Chesterfield Handicap, which I expect to see him win. His Majesty's with T. Lowrey in the saddle, runs in the Derwent Plate instead of the Malton Plate, and she may be worth each-way support. She was badly hampered when fifth of 32 to Concordat at Newbury.

CURRAGH PROGRAMME

AFRICAN LILY MAY WIN

Dunkery and Golden Rock Likely to Gain Places

Trains—Kingsbridge, 12.20, 1.15.

TWENTY-THREE runners have been declared for the Irish Cesarewitch, to be run at the Curragh this afternoon, including three English-trained candidates—Lord Portman's Dunkery, who will be ridden by M. Beary, Portugal (M. Wing), and Distort (J. Taylor). Of these, Dunkery, who is said to be very much fancied, has the best form to recommend him.

Tote Double on Third and Fourth Races.

African Lily, one of the best three years old in Ireland, is top of the handicap. The son of Spion Kop won the Baldoyle Derby after overcoming numerous difficulties, and last month at the Curragh finished second to his stable companion, Museum, in the Irish St. Leger. He represents the best class in the race, and will take a lot of beating.

Careful Prince showed a surprising turn of speed in a six furlongs race at Naas last Saturday, and as he has won over a distance of a mile and a half his 5lb. penalty may not prevent him winning this valuable prize. Others with distinct chances are Kildonan's Hope and Golden Rock. It is a very open race, and, while naming as the likely winner, Dunkery and Golden Rock are named for places. Selections:—

October Plate—Golden Toff.
Scurry Plate—Yang-tse-Kiang.
Irish Cesarewitch — African Lily, win; Dunkery and Golden Rock, places.
Probationers' Stakes—Flammarion.
Juvenile Plate—M.J.
Mountjoy Plate—Auchmor.

TOTE DOUBLE.

African Lily and Flammarion.

LONDON BETTING

NEW CESAREWITCH FAVOURITE

WOODSTOCK BACKED TO WIN £18,000

Woodstock, who was beaten a head for first place by Cecil in the Newbury Autumn Cup yesterday, superseded Doreen Jane in the London betting call-over as favourite for the Cesarewitch. He was backed to win about £18,000 at prices varying from 1,000 to 80 to 10 to 1, leaving 19 to 2 the best offer.

The revised decision of T. Weston to ride Shining Cloud instead of Sir Abe Bailey's other candidate, Doreen Jane, was reflected in the market. Shining Cloud advanced from 100 to 8 to 100 to 9, finishing on the same mark as Doreen Jane. Each was supported to win £3,000.

Lucky Patch and Near Relation were backed to win £6,000 each, and Polly Stephens and Mossoro £5,000 each.

Pegasus and Law Court wound up joint favourites for the Cambridgeshire at 10 to 1. Law Court was laid at £1,000 to £90, and then £1,000 to £95 was accepted six times, followed by £500 to £50. Pegasus was noticed in wagers to win £7,000.

Badruddin did not go well in the market. A bet of £1,000 to £40 was laid, and the price again freely offered.

The rest of the Cambridgeshire betting was uninspiring, only trifles going on those that were supported.

THE CESAREWITCH

We are informed that Woodstock will be Captain Boyd-Rochfort's only runner in the Cesarewitch. His other horses—Enfield, Black Devil, Alcazar and Autumn—have been taken out of the race. Woodstock's weight is 7st. 3lb., and he came into prominence in the betting when he failed by only a head to beat Cecil in the Newbury Autumn Cup. Three years ago Nitsichin was also narrowly beaten in the Newbury Cup before winning the Cesarewitch. J. Sirett, who rode Woodstock at Newbury, will have the mount at Newmarket.

Should Woodstock win the Cesarewitch, Captain Boyd-Rochfort will have trained the winner of the race for three successive years. He has a remarkable record in the autumn handicaps, and he won both the Duke of York Handicap and the Cambridgeshire with Double Life six years ago.

SOLITAIRE TO RUN

Other Cesarewitch news is that Coronetto, Bonny Brighteyes, and Lord Harewood's Piccadilly have not accepted, and Carpet Knight, who got cast in his box, also has been struck out.

Both the Hon. George Lambton's pair, Apple Peel and Damascus, have been taken out.

Solitaire runs for the Middleham stable controlled by Harry Peacock. He will be ridden by S. Wragg.

G. Digby has accepted with Hands Off in preference to Gainslaw and Watertight. His apprentice, V. Mitchell, has been engaged to ride Court Equerry, whom he rode so well in the Nottingham Handicap on Monday.

T. Lowrey, who rode Pepino, winner of the Trial Plate at Nottingham yesterday, will partner the colt in the Cambridgeshire. Pepino is trained by the Hon. G. Lambton, who has a strong hand in the Cambridgeshire. In addition to Pepino, he has Negundo, Boethius, Water Marten and Precious Pearl engaged. Pepino won yesterday by a head from Inflation, to whom he was conceding 14lb., whereas in the Cambridgeshire he has to concede him only 12lb.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Closing of Entries

The Irish classic races of 1937 close (second entry) to-day. Entries for the Leopardstown first November meeting also close to-day.

Two-year-olds to be Rested

Dent de Lion and Crayon, both two-year-olds, have left Lambourn for a rest at their owner's place.

WORK AT THE CURRAGH

THE CURRAGH, Tuesday.

The Lambourn-trained Distort, who has been sent to contest the Irish Cesarewitch, was given a nice five furlongs gallop. The gelding is very well, and I expect him to give a good display.

P. BEARY'S Dunkery had a sharp six furlongs spin.

COLLINS'S Joyeuse Garde galloped five furlongs in good style.

ROGERS'S African Lily and Ladytown were sharpened up for the Cesarewitch.

SELECTIONS FOR THE CURRAGH.

Irish Cesarewitch—Bay Ridge, 1; Distort, 2; Joyeuse Garde, 3

GAELIC GAMES

THE HURLING LEAGUE

An Auspicious Opening : Cavan and Tipperary Meet Again

(BY PAT'O.)

THE 1935-6 Hurling League had an auspicious opening on Sunday, when eight of the leading counties were engaged. As anticipated, the Thurles match between Tipperary and Dublin provided the closest finish. Tipperary were in front from the first ball. Their new grouping in attack proved very elusive, and the home team were seven points up before Dublin had a score.

Thenceforward Dublin hurled well. Treacy (Young Irelands), in a new position as full forward, narrowed the gap close to the interval. Murphy increased Tipperary's lead on the change of ends. Daniels, McMahon and Hegarty finished strongly for Dublin, but Tipperary seemed to have the game won when an unexpected ball deceived Butler in goal on the stroke of time. Dublin were lucky to share the points (3-2 each) against a vastly improved Tipperary side that should do well in League and Championship.

Limerick's promoted juniors behaved very well in the senior ranks against a strong visiting team from Laoighis. It was a stern test, as Laoighis were twice in the lead in the first half. M. Mackey was prominent for Limerick in the second half, and O'Sullivan (junior), of Elton, built up a winning score for the holders.

This result strengthens Limerick's hand for their final game against London-Irish next Sunday. The Munster men travel on Friday evening. So well have the London-Irish team been playing at home that their followers expect them to extend Limerick—considered the best junior team of many seasons.

PROMISING YOUTHS

Clare had quite a youthful side out against Waterford. They won as a result of a rapid opening, for Waterford were attacking resolutely near the end. The goal that would have changed defeat into victory did not come off—thanks to the fine defence of Clare's last line.

Kilkenny tried half-a-dozen new men against Galway. Of these only Minogue shone. He is a very skilful forward, who has come at an opportune time. The champions had been looking for a speedy one, and they have found a very adept finisher with pace.

Galway, too, discovered a brilliant newcomer in Healy, who played at right half-back. With Gill also playing well, his front line had many good openings. Greene, Loughnane and Quinn scored freely, and Kilkenny were six points in arrears at half-time.

Minogue's two fast goals put Kilkenny on terms. The last quarter was dourly fought, with Kilkenny all out to save their unbroken record. Dunne and Loughlin Byrne combined to good purpose and notched winning scores close on time. The game proved that Galway is not short of first-class hurlers.

Should the counties continue to send out good teams the success of the League is assured. On last Sunday's showing it is a very open competition, and some upsets in form are certain before Christmas.

LOUTH JUST FAILS

Kildare and Louth had another of their close finishes at Drogheda in the Arus na nGaedheal Tournament. Kildare tried five new players, with Athy strongly represented, and J. Fox proved a menace to Louth's defence throughout. Backs beat forwards as a rule, and the scoring was low. Louth again finished with greater fire. Callan, at centre-half, fed his forwards, and McManus made the score 4 to 5. Kildare's goal had a narrow escape at the end when Caffrey missed the equaliser from a good position.

The level talent of Leinster counties was again in evidence, adding fresh attraction to the Football League (Division I.), which opens next Sunday at four venues.

The entrance of Tipperary and Cavan is very interesting. They meet at Breffni Park in the second round, and the much disputed All-Ireland semi-final will be reproduced.

Dublin are engaged at Dundalk against Louth in their opening game. Rooney, of O'Dwyers, and McMahon, of Garda, are the only newcomers on the Dublin side, which will be chosen from:

McDonnell (goal), Brennan, Dowling, Kelly, Stack, O'Shea, Fitzgerald, Boland, Cavanagh (2), Banville, Whitty, Feeney, McLoughlin, Rooney, Russell, McMahon, Keating, O'Dowd, O'Donnell.

The suspension of the Dublin Junior Hurling Committee by the Senior Board has created a stir in Dublin circles. A scene at Killester was the cause. The teams were suspended by the Junior Board, but their decision was reversed on appeal to the Senior Executive. The Junior Board are accused of disobeying the Senior ruling and stand suspended.

NEWMARKET NOTES

Lucky Patch and Near Relation Please in Long Gallop

C. LEADER was one of the busiest trainers at Newmarket to-day. He sent Dimak, Sedgemoor and Gynerium six furlongs at half-speed. Gynerium is one of the unluckiest horses of the season, having been placed five times out of eight attempts. He put up a good race for the Great Eastern Handicap here last Tuesday, when beaten a head by Solenoid. He should pick up a sprinting event before the season closes.

Pink Topaz (H. Jelliss), Asbestos (F. Rickaby), Fascia, Rydal, Castel St. Angelo and St. Magnus (Perryman) were given a good six furlongs spin. St. Magnus was seen to advantage, and he should pay to follow. Leger Day, who ran well in the Norwich Handicap here last Friday, travelled one mile at half-speed with Christmas Fare.

The present going is suitable to Highlander and Bobsleigh. With Robber Chief, they covered nine furlongs at half-speed. Both moved freely, as did Guiscard, with Quashed (H. Jelliss), Fairhaven (Perryman), Organdie and Toscano, in a good mile and a half spin. If all goes well with Quashed I shall expect her to prove the best of the Stanley House representatives for the Cesarewitch next Wednesday.

Another good Cesarewitch gallop was that which Frank Butters gave Lucky Patch and Near Relation, who both moved well in a two miles at a good pace, Powerful Prince setting the pace for the first mile and a quarter. Niloufer, with Wordsworth, had a good seven furlongs spin. Wordsworth, a son of Bosworth, has failed in each of his races, but it is possible that he is a much better horse over the distance of this morning's spin, as he possesses stamina.

J. Cannon stripped Pharillon and sent him nine furlongs at three-parts speed. He is engaged in the Rockingham Handicap to-morrow, but he will wait for a later engagement.

Hogg gave Majola and Cresset a good stripped seven furlongs spin. Cresset went well, and it is obvious that soft going suits him. He is favourably weighted in the October Handicap at Haydock Park on Friday.

The Apprentices' Plate will begin proceedings at York to-morrow. I expect to win.

Flares, Inistore and Bahuddin will be running for the first time in the Malton Plate. I have no fancy for Feola and look to who won at our last fixture, to score again.

Lord Glanely won the Rockingham Handicap last year with Red Horizon. This year he will be represented by who has done well since his Doncaster success and will prove very difficult to beat.

I like the chances of Glowworm and better than that of Art Paper for the Middleham Nursery. I give Lord Derby's filly the preference. If doing her best will go close for the Chesterfield Welter Handicap. Sixtine is fancied for the Derwent Plate, but I take as the likely winner.

DIOSMA

BEATIT

WRESTLING

SAVOLDI EASILY DEFEATED

O'MAHONY TOO GOOD FOR THE ITALIAN

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

Dan O'Mahony, the Irish wrestler, beat "Jumping Joe" Savoldi at Madison square Garden last night with a body-hold, after a fight which lasted only 26 minutes 2 seconds. O'Mahony entered the ring weighing 15st. 10lb. against "Jumping Joe's" 14st. 4lb.

Showing a recently "cauliflowered" ear, O'Mahony was master from the start at close quarters. Savoldi was dangerous only when he was able to dash from side to side of the ring, rebounding from the ropes and threatening O'Mahony with at least high-speed collision. O'Mahony deftly dodged Savoldi's flying rushes, feinting falls so that the Italian footballer fell over him. Once at grips with Savoldi O'Mahony showed his mastery, putting the Italian out of action, and apparently causing him great pain in a series of arm and leg locks, till the footballer pleaded to the referee for mercy, crying out: "He's breaking my arm."

O'MAHONY'S STRENGTH

The crowd applauded O'Mahony throughout, but gasped for a moment when Savoldi, snorting, showing his teeth and shouting, appeared temporarily to endanger O'Mahony. The latter, however, succeeded in extricating himself, and, showing prodigious strength, threw Savoldi from the ring when the footballer held the Irish champion in a double toe-hold. In all Savoldi was twice thrown through the ropes, taking advantage of counts of three and five to regain his strength and allow the blood to flow again through his arms and legs.

The crowd applauded wildly when O'Mahony, replying to what he thought to have been punches from Savoldi, struck the Italian three right-handed blows on the neck and floored him. O'Mahony went on unperturbed to finish the job, threw Savoldi to the mat and pinned him there to win an easy victory, finishing fresh and unhurt.

SWIMMING

U.C.D. LADIES' S.C.

The 66 yards ladies' open race, fixed for the U.C.D. gala on Friday next, will be held instead on Saturday, at 7.30 p.m. On that night the U.C.D. Ladies' S.C. are holding a private "at home." This change is necessitated by the length of Friday's programme.

HAVE YOU A RELATIVE OR FRIEND ABROAD INTERESTED IN IRISH RUGBY?

If so he will appreciate a copy of

WATER POLO

LEINSTER PICKS A STRONG TEAM

AN "INTERNATIONAL" BACK DIVISION

The Leinster Branch Selection Committee met last evening and selected the following to play Ulster at the Templemore Baths, Belfast, on Saturday evening next:—

Goal—K. O'Grady (Clontarf).

Backs—J. P. Wallace (captain) (Pembroke), N. F. Judd (Sandycove).

Half-back—M. A. O'Mahony (Clontarf).

Forwards—R. N. Case (Clontarf), M. D. Fletcher (Dublin University), H. P. Dockrell (Dublin University).

The reserves selected are:—Goal—J. P. Shannon (Pembroke). Backs—G. F. Daly, H. A. Daniels, and B. G. Kearon (Dublin University). Forwards—L. O'Brien (Sandycove), F. Dowds (Dublin), G. F. Daly (Dublin University).

The team and officials will travel by the 3 p.m. train from Amiens street.

TWO NEWCOMERS

The team is strong in both departments, particularly in defence, which is of international calibre. The back division is a powerful one, and O'Grady, in goal, is the best in Ireland. R. N. Case, the Irish champion swimmer, will play in his first interprovincial water polo game. He earned his place by his brilliant play in the Irish Cup matches for Clontarf, and should make a successful debut against Ulster.

Percy Dockrell, another of the younger brigade, who also makes his debut in an interprovincial, is in fine form, and with M. D. Fletcher, the most successful Irish forward in this season's internationals, will make up a speedy and thrustful line of attack.

Ulster has a preponderance of victories over Leinster in indoor water polo, but the latest Leinster team looks good enough for a win on Saturday, although the Ulstermen will have a strong side on duty. Five of the Leinster team are international players.

Trainer's "Tenner" on Tote

Jack Jarvis, the trainer of Edgehill, winner of the Sherwood Forest Nursery at Nottingham yesterday, decided to invest a "tenner" on the tote instead of supporting the colt in the Ring. He was wise in doing so, as the tote dividend was £1 15s. 3d. to a 2s. stake, equivalent to more than double the starting price of 8 to 1. Jarvis thus won £166 5s., whereas at starting price he would have won £80.

GOLF

WOMEN'S AUTUMN FOURSOMES

350 PLAYERS BATTLE IN TORRENTIAL RAIN

Mrs. Garon, the English champion, was involved in an incident concerning the lost ball rule in the first round of the women's autumn foursomes at Ranelagh yesterday. She and her partner, Lady Alness, who gave four strokes to Miss Low and Miss Kittermaster, were so well held that even four successive 3's only enabled them to become dormy one.

Mrs. Garon pulled her last drive out of bounds, and Miss Low's ball finished in long grass. After a prolonged search Miss Kittermaster returned to play another from the tee. Subsequently Miss Low found the original ball and proceeded to play it, apparently ignorant of the fact that by driving again her side had considered the first one lost. Their attention was drawn to the breach, and they gave up the hole and the match.

Handicaps so effectively preserved the balance that comparatively few matches were one-sided, except one—Miss Morgan, the champion, and Miss Chambers winning by 6 and 4 from Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Poulton, who received four strokes.

Over 250 took part in the play, and 100 more competed in the "overflow" tournament at Roehampton for longer handicap players. The weather was bad, and throughout most of the day the players had to battle against torrential rain. Mackintosh clothing and trousers were, therefore, once again popular.

Ireland's only representatives—Miss Janet Jackson and Mrs. King (Island, Malahide)—from handicap 8, were beaten two holes by Miss Gibbons and Mrs. Gallatly (Sunningdale), also from handicap 8.

The back-markers, Miss Fishwick and Mrs. Martin, at scratch, had a walk-over, together with last year's winners, Mrs. G. H. Carbutt and Miss Newell, and Miss Wilson and Miss Perkin.

One of the best performances was accomplished by the Misses Diana and Lul Esmond. Conceding two strokes to Miss Carwell and Mrs. O. Jones, they were one down at the tenth, but they won the next five holes in 3 4 4 3 3 for the match by 4 and 3. Mrs. Rieben and Miss Isabella Rieben, the Welsh champion, reached the second round; but the girl champion, Miss P. Falkner, and Miss M. J. Couper were beaten. Other first round winners included Miss Winn and Miss S. Bailey and Miss A. Regnart and Miss Mervyn Barton.

BOXING

WENSTOB BEATEN

EDDIE PHILLIPS, of London, beat Eddie Wenstob, of Canada, on points over twelve rounds at Wembley last night, and Maurice Strickland, of New Zealand, was awarded his match against Ben Foord (South Africa), the referee stopping the fight at the end of the third round owing to an injury to Foord's eye.

There was not much between Phillips and Wenstob until the tenth round was reached, when Phillips, with a short right to the chin, dazed the Canadian, and from that point onwards he was the master. Until then the Canadian had done most of the forcing, but Phillips had a splendid defence, and his straight left kept Wenstob out, while it also secured the Londoner a number of points.

ROUND ONE.

Wenstob boxed with a crouch, and after a few moments of sparring he crashed in a right to the ribs. Phillips, boxing cooly, steadied the Canadian with a straight left and later measured him with a short right hook. Wenstob was the aggressor, and, forcing Phillips into a corner, opened out with both hands to the body. There was a good deal of sparring in the middle of the ring, and it was not until Phillips scored with a right that there was any promise of forceful hitting.

ROUND TWO.

Wenstob was quickly at work driving in lefts and rights to the body, but in some fast exchanges Phillips landed hard rights to the head. Phillips clipped his man with a left hook, and then for nearly twenty seconds they were fighting at close quarters. Both were mistiming their blows. On coming out of a clinch, Wenstob scored with a right uppercut and Phillips replied with two lefts.

ROUND THREE.

Phillips jumped in to score with the left, but once again Wenstob launched a two-handed attack to the body, which caused the Londoner to retreat. There was a good deal of defensive work, and neither seemed inclined to take a risk. Phillips's left hand scored many points, but Wenstob drove in a right to the heart, and he chased Phillips round the ring in an effort to deliver a decisive blow.

ROUND FOUR.

Phillips's long reach was an asset, for he found little trouble in keeping the Canadian at bay with his left, and each time Wenstob rushed in Phillips met him with the straightest of punches. Blow after blow reached Wenstob's face, but still the latter was full of fight. Boxing with plenty of confidence Phillips got in a right uppercut and shook his opponent with a right to the head.

ROUND FIVE.

The fighting improved considerably. Standing toe-to-toe they exchanged punches, and each in turn was shaken by hard swings. Phillips scored with a neat left hook to the jaw, and after some clever side-stepping by the Canadian he feinted with his left and sent in a strong right to the body.

ROUND SIX.

Still crouching and endeavouring to find an opening Wenstob forced the pace. Phillips's left, however, was still the dominating factor, and at times the Londoner scored points in easy fashion. Wenstob's rushing tactics failed to disturb Phillips, who stood upright and met heavy attacks with his left. Wenstob caught Phillips with a right swing and followed the punch with a left to the body. Phillips seemed glad to hold on for a few moments.

ROUND SEVEN.

Phillips did most of the scoring at long range. He pushed back Wenstob's head repeatedly with straight lefts, while Wenstob tried all he knew to land heavy blows. He went for the body, and was successful with a few punches.

ROUND EIGHT.

At close range the Canadian swung a right to the body, but Phillips maintained his superiority with straight lefts. Wenstob sent in a right uppercut, and then the proceedings were enlivened when each went in for body work. On the breakaway Wenstob was caught by a right to the head. Phillips missed badly with a right swing just before the end of the round.

ROUND NINE.

Phillips bore past his opponent's defence to score to the face and body. Neither could claim the advantage in clinches, and neither seemed anxious to box at close range. Phillips's left hand continued to do the scoring, but Wenstob was still strong and forcing the fight. A left swing hurt Phillips, but the Londoner got his left hand working, and retrieved the situation with clever punches.

ROUND TEN.

Wenstob opened with a furious attack and landed with two heavy punches, which just failed to reach the jaw. Phillips fought back and drove his man against the ropes. Phillips appealed for a blow which fell a little low, but after a couple of seconds they continued boxing. Phillips crashed in the best punch of the fight—a short right to the chin, and, following up, had the Canadian weak from a terrific onslaught. The Canadian was bleeding from the nose and mouth, but he kept on his feet. Wenstob was tired, and twice dropped his hands when Phillips smashed in punch after punch.

ROUND ELEVEN

Phillips immediately attacked, and strengthened his position with a series of blows to the face. Wenstob was plucky and stood his ground, but his left eye was almost closed, and Phillips went in to score freely with both hands.

ROUND TWELVE.

Wenstob made a final effort at the opening of the round by driving in a right to the jaw. It was almost a perfect punch; for Phillips went into a clinch, and it was several seconds before he recovered from the blow. The Canadian took a powerful punch on the point of the jaw, and in turn he was compelled to resort to defensive work. Phillips pushed his man off in a clinch to score with the left, and in the last second Phillips crashed in a right, but Wenstob would not fall.

TOURNAMENT AT THE ROTUNDA

T. DOYLE AND L. WICKWAR MATCHED

Mr. G. D. Egan, Irish-American promoter, who has heretofore held his tournaments at Dalymount Park, has secured the Rotunda, and is presenting an all-star programme on next Saturday, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The high standard of the contests that have been staged in Dublin in the past will be maintained; if anything, more attractive fights are assured. Five contests of ten rounds each will give the public two and a half or three hours of the best boxing.

The bill is topped with an international middle-weight contest between Tim Doyle (Bangor) and Len Wickwar. Doyle in fifteen months in the professional ring has fought twenty fights, losing only two. He has been training in Dublin for the contest on Saturday night. His opponent is contender for the welter-weight championship of Great Britain, and he has fought many first-class boxers in England, including Carl Peterson, Kid Farlo, Harry Mason (former champion of Great Britain), and Jackie Flynn, of Belfast. Wickwar last week fought Pat Healy, of Newcastle, who made a promising appearance with Doyle at Dalymount Park, and drew with Healy over fifteen rounds.

JIMMY WILDE TO REFEREE

George Kelly (Dublin), light-weight champion of Ireland, will meet Sol Severns, the London Jewish light-weight, who has fought many of the most promising English boxers, including Eddie Jones. This fight should provide plenty of fireworks. Mossy Condon, welter-weight champion of Ireland, who is leaving shortly for America, meets Frank Taylor, of Liverpool, an experienced hard hitter, who will provide Condon with the stiffest opposition he has come up against to date.

A fight that should supply thrills will be that between Dan Ryan, formerly of the St. Andrew's Club, Dublin, one of Ireland's most promising welter-weights, and Billy Sullivan, of London, who has a series of k.o.'s to his credit and is one of the fastest-hitting welter-weights. A good feather-weight contest will bring the programme to a conclusion. Jack Linehan, of Cork, ranked as leading feather-weight contender for the title, will meet Snowball Walsh, of Dublin, who always puts up a good show.

Jimmy Wilde, former champion of the world, will referee the contests. He is also interested in making a connection with Irish boxers, due to the formation of the Boxers' Union, of which he is president in Great Britain. Wilde is a first-class referee.

Tickets can be had at Elvery's, Crotty's and Coady's, and early booking is advisable owing to the limited capacity of the Rotunda.

FOORD FORCED TO RETIRE

REFEREE STOPS FIGHT AFTER THIRD ROUND

There were 10,000 people present at Wembley when the first of the big fights, that between Foord and Strickland, began. Foord started with some spirited fighting, and twice landed with swinging lefts to the body. Strickland concentrated on a straight left, and when he failed with a right swing Foord took him off his balance with stiff punches to the face. Strickland timed his blows well and, just before the bell, reached Foord's jaw with a smashing right.

Following a bout of clinching, Strickland scored with lefts in the second round, and Foord retaliated to the body. Both were cautious, and for a spell the boxing was at long range. Several times the referee, Captain E. Chandler, had to tell the men to break, and a little later he cautioned Foord for holding. At the end of the round Foord ran into a left hook.

FOORD'S EYE INJURED

When he came up for the third round Foord had a cut above his left eye, but he attacked and strove desperately to land a knock-out punch. Strickland showed good defence, and countered most of Foord's swinging blows. Foord was considerably handicapped by his eye injury, and Strickland was finding little difficulty in scoring. He drove in a hard right, which steadied Foord, and although the pace slackened there was plenty of hard hitting.

At the end of the round the referee looked at Foord's injury, and told him that he could not continue. Foord protested, but the referee insisted that he should retire.

MARRIMAN WINS BOUT

If there was no real discovery in the heavy-weight competitions at Wembley last night, two men at least brought forth wild cheers for their efforts. They were Pat Marriman, of Dublin, and Bill Roberts, a Cornishman. Toe-to-toe they fought, and so fast and furious were the exchanges that, when Roberts was against the ropes being heavily punished, the referee called a halt in the second round, and awarded the fight to Marriman.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

DUBLIN STEADY

LAND BONDS STRONG

GREAT SOUTHERNS HARDER

Trading on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday was not nearly so brisk, but despite the falling off in interest, prices held remarkably.

The chief feature amongst the Funds was the strong demand for Land Bonds, which resulted in a sharp rise of 1¼ points.

Banks were almost neglected.

Guinness Ord. eased the turn, but Distillers Ord. added a few pence.

In Rails, some Great Southern issues came in for support, and the Preference recovered a point.

Ranks (Ireland) Ord. improved to 14s., and May Roberts (Ireland) Ord. made fresh headway to 25s. A number of other local Industrials came to hand at steady levels.

British Industrials were, if anything, a shade harder. B.A.T. Ord. were 110s. 3d., and Imperials moved up to 134s. 6d. Coats Ord. recovered to 60s. 6d., and Courtaulds hardened slightly: Imperial Chemicals were better at 35s. Brockhouse Ord. and Vickers Ord. inclined to give way.

LONDON UNCERTAIN

GILT-EDGED LOWER

In view of the recent advance in values and talk of a general election before the end of the year, operators on the London Stock Markets yesterday were less inclined to increase their commitments, and consequently business in most sections was on a much smaller scale than on the preceding day. South African Gold shares were an active market, as the sharp rise in West Wits. on the latest cable encouraged extended speculation, and Rubber shares came into good demand, following the rise in the commodity price; but Industrials moved irregularly owing to realisation.

BRITISH FUNDS

As a result of general election talk, the steady demand which has prevailed for Gilt-edged securities of late did not continue, and with a little selling in progress the market became easier. Old Consols closed ⅝ down at 82¼, War Loan lost ½ at 103¼, and 3½ per cent. Conversions ½ at 102⅜, while others lost smaller amounts. India Stocks followed the trend of Gilt-edged, and where changes were ½ down.

FOREIGN BONDS

Movements in a quiet Foreign Bonds section were generally adverse. Germans, after tending to go better, closed undecided, while Brazilians failed to hold overnight gains. Greek issues also dropped back, but one or two other European descriptions hardened.

RAILS

Trading in British Rails quietened down, and several issues lost part of Monday's advance. Southern Prefd. eased ½ to 72½. Foreign Rails, although inactive, kept steady, but Colonials drooped. American Rails attracted more attention, and a number of issues added a point.

INDUSTRIALS

Trading in the Industrial Market contracted, but several good features were to be seen. Motors again received support, and moved to higher levels, while Cable stocks were active on hopes of improved traffics for the past month. Interest in Aircraft was reduced, but fresh rises were recorded in several issues, while Electrical Equipments also presented a firm appearance. On the other hand, the demand for Steel shares subsided, and prices weakened, owing to profit-taking. For a similar reason, lower rates were quoted for Rayon and Tobacco shares and a number of the leading issues.

MINES

Among Mines, buying of West Wits., in anticipation of the flotation of a Lisbanon subsidiary, was the feature of the Kaffir section. Despite speculative selling, the price again finished appreciably higher, while good rises were registered in many other issues. West Africans were somewhat irregular, but movements in other Gold shares were mostly favourable. Base Metal shares again attracted attention and displayed a firm front.

The Oil Share market opened easier, but with the appearance of buyers the tendency improved, and several issues finished higher on balance.

AMERICAN FINANCIAL NOTES

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

AMERICAN COTTON REPORT.

A further decline in the prospects for Texas of 192,000 bales and for Oklahoma of 10,000 bales are nearly offset by increases in Georgia, Alabama, Mississipi and Arkansas. Other States show only minor changes from the September report. In the South-Eastern States the heavy rain and storms of early September were about offset by favourable picking and ginning weather during the latter part of the month. In the Mississipi Valley States conditions were about average, and the prospects improved slightly. In Texas and Oklahoma the crop has shown little recovery from its late start, with an increasing menace of frost to small bolls before these can mature. In all the more Northern States of the belt the crop is late, and the percentage ginned is much behind what is usual for October 1.

CUBAN SUGAR.

According to Messrs. Willett and Gray, the total exports of sugar for the week ending October 5 from all Cuban ports and interior centres amounted to 31,100 tons, compared with 28,200 tons the previous week. Total stocks for the week ending October 5 were 1,044,800 tons, as against 1,075,000 the previous week and 1,741,000 tons in the corresponding week last year.

ACTIVITIES OF AMERICAN KEY COMPANIES.

The General Electric Company's orders during the third quarter amounted in value to 54,401,000 dollars, compared with 40,459,000 dollars during the corresponding period of 1934. Orders during the first nine months totalled 158,944,000 dollars, against 132,614,000 dollars during the first nine months of 1934. The sales of General Motors Corporation by dealers to purchasers in the United States during September totalled 66,550 cars, compared with 127,350 in August. Sales by the company to dealers in the United States reached 29,000, against 103,100; while the total sales to dealers, including Canadian sales and overseas shipments were 39,150 cars, compared with 124,680 cars during August. The sharp decline is due chiefly to preparations for new models earlier than usual.

GOLD MOVEMENTS TO NEW YORK.

Yesterday's engagements of gold for shipment to New York included 7,200,000 dollars from France, 3,000,000 dollars from England, and 1,100,000 dollars from Holland.

THE PROJECTED ITALIAN COPPER DEAL.

In connection with the Italian copper deal, the "Journal of Commerce" says that the Italian Buying Monopoly met in Rome yesterday in company with European producers, in order to arrange purchase for delivery in 1936 over regular intervals. The latest local reports on the subject do not mention the cancellation of the conferences, but say that the purchase will not be made in bulk and that shipments will be effected as need arises. Authoritative circles in London insisted yesterday that this copper conference had not taken place.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

TENDENCY BECOMES IRREGULAR

CABLE AND WIRELESS MAINTAINED

There was less doing in the Industrial market yesterday, and, although the general tone continued satisfactory, a little profit-taking caused some irregularity in price movements. After a steady opening the trans-Atlantic counters developed an easier tendency following afternoon advices from Wall street. "Emmies" closed on the dull side, but the Baird issues were steadier.

Cable and Wireless stocks continued in the ascendant on hopes of a satisfactory traffic index for September.

AIRCRAFT FEATURES.

Despite less activity Aircraft and kindred descriptions generally maintained a satisfactory tendency. Rolls-Royce, however, receded 1/16 to 7 11/16. The confirmation of the news that General Aircraft had received a big Air Ministry contract was responsible for firmness in the shares. Westland Aircraft were a good market and Bristol Aeroplane improved.

In the Motor group Standards continued prominent, being bought on dividend anticipations and the imminence of the publication of the report. After rising to 75s. the shares were finally 1s. 3d. up at 74s. 6d. Otherwise this section was quieter.

VICKERS UNCHANGED.

Business in Iron and Steel descriptions was generally on a small scale. John Browns further strengthened at one time, but reacted later to 19s. 3d., at which a small loss was recorded. Vickers left off unchanged. Whitehead Irons provided a firm spot, advancing 2s. 6d.

Although comparatively quiet, Electrical Equipments maintained a satisfactory tendency. Associated and Ever Ready improved.

Drapery and Departmental Stores moved within narrow limits.

There was some inquiry for Tate and Lyle around 80s. in the Provision and Catering section.

UNILEVER DULL.

Unilever were a dull market at 27s. 9d., while United Dairies gave way.

On the whole Textiles presented a fairly firm appearance. Coats put on 6d. to 60s. 7½d., while Sewing Cottons advanced to 42s. 3d. and Bradford Dyers to 8s. 3d.

Rayons were inclined to be easier. Courtaulds lost 6d., while American Celanese reacted to 5 5/16 and Canadian Celanese to 4.

Breweries made a rather mixed showing. Guinness, Mitchells and Butlers, Ohlssons, and South African Ord. all shed a few pence.

The Tobacco leaders were easier. Gallahers gave way to 6⅛, while "Bats" and "Imps" lost the turn. On the other hand, Carreras managed to hold at the previous level.

Among Newspaper shares, Daily Mail and General Trust further advanced, and Allied improved.

SHIPPING ATTRACTS.

Some of the Shipping shares came in for renewed attention, noticeably Furness Withy and Cairn Line, which improved to 15s. 6d. and 4s. 4½d. respectively.

The Miscellaneous section seemed rather neglected after the activity of the last few days, and finished with a somewhat irregular appearance. British Oxygens were again supported, closing fractionally higher, but Murex met with a little profit-taking. Imperial Chemicals were a shade lower. Aspros provided a firm feature with an advance to 16s. 7½d., while the Pref. were a few pence to the good at 20s. 7½d. Dunlop Rubbers receded to 35s. 9d. In other directions, British Aluminium gained ground.

RALLY IN OIL SHARES

Dull conditions prevailed in the Oil Share Market at the start yesterday, but the fall in prices was only of a temporary character, and with the appearance of buyers at lower levels prices responded. When the market turned dealers who had been offering stock in the early hours were prominent among those who bid for stock later in the day, and a sharp rally occurred, final prices generally being the best of the day. As regards Continental business, French operators sold a few Shell Bearer, but the shares were well taken here. They were also small sellers of Royal Dutch, which were taken by Amsterdam.

RUBBERS ACTIVE

Improved conditions in the commodity section, where trading was good with spot rubber selling at 6d. per lb.—the highest price since the beginning of July—were responsible for a marked expansion of interest in the Rubber Share Market yesterday. Conditions became active and the tendency firm, several of the leading issues encountering strong support. At the finish rises were frequent, with United Sua Betong, Rubber Trust, Pataling, Malacca, Kuala Lumpur, and Golden Hope showing to best advantage.

MINING REPORT

Commonwealth Mining and Finance—Yellowdine—The mine management report:—"50-foot Level—The north drive from east crosscut, off old north drive from No. 5 shaft, has advanced to 169ft.; average value from 0 to 162ft. assayed 17 dwt. 100-foot Level—Main east crosscut—The north drive has advanced to 81ft.; averaged value from 0 to 81ft. assayed 9 dwt. 8 grains. East crosscut off drive from a point 50ft. along the drive advanced to 21ft.; average value from 0-12ft. assayed 15 dwt. 20 grains. The south drive has advanced to 54ft.; average value from 0-49ft. assayed 1 oz. 5 dwt. 6 grains. Both drives and the east crosscut are still showing quartz over full width of face."

East Rand Consolidated.—A cable states:—"No. 2 vertical shaft on its Poortje property has intersected the Nigel reef at a depth of 370ft. Ten samples taken around the periphery of the shaft give an average value of 24 dwt. over 6 inches. Also that the north drive from No. 3 vertical shaft gives a value of 21.4 dwt. over 6 inches for 35ft. sampled; whilst in the south drive at the same level the value is 14.5 dwt. over 6 inches for 25ft. sampled."

LONDON MINING MARKET

GOLD SHARES REMAIN FIRM

After the activity of the preceding day, the Mining market yesterday opened on a subdued note. The tone was generally quiet and remained so until about mid-day, when a demand sprang up for several of the leaders, and final prices generally showed an improvement on those prevailing at the close on Monday. One or two counters stood out prominently, and West Wits were again a centre of keen interest. East Rand Consolidated were also well to the front on reports, subsequently confirmed, of developments on the Poortjie property, where good values have been met with at a comparatively shallow depth. As Johannesburg was inquiring for the shares, the price rose sharply. The regular producers were not neglected, and the finance descriptions, apart from Goldfields, which were on offer from Paris, were harder inclined. The market as a whole had a firm appearance at the close. Although the price of Tin was somewhat lower, the outlook for the metal was regarded favourably, and there was again a good demand for many of the leading shares. Other Base Metal shares were mostly easier on professional profit-taking. Closing prices:—

THE MONEY MARKET

QUIET CONDITIONS

Conditions were unchanged in Lombard street yesterday. Credit remained plentiful, and there was only a small inquiry for day-to-day advances at ½ p.c. Rates in the discount market were steady, fine three months' bills being quoted at ⅝-11/16 p.c., and the new Treasuries at 19/32 p.c.

Gold declined 2d. further to 141s. 10d. per fine ounce. There was no premium over the dollar, and the premium over the franc was slightly lower at 7½d. on a rate of 74 5/16. About £278,000 was available in the market.

Silver declined ⅛d. for spot and 1/16d. for forward delivery, to 29⅜d. and 29 5/16d. per ounce, respectively. China was again a seller, but some American buying took place at the lower price.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

The firmness of the pound in relation to all the principal currencies provided the outstanding feature of the Foreign Exchange market yesterday. The pronounced weakness of the dollar in New York overnight was reflected in a sharp movement in favour of London in the early dealings, sterling gaining ground against both the dollar and the European gold currencies. There were signs of a renewal of the flight of the capital to the United States later in the day, however, and the London authorities entered the market to peg sterling in terms of the franc. As the dollar-franc exchange was again almost at gold point to New York, a dollar-franc sterling triangle was established, which was maintained unbroken to the close. Speculative operations remained on a very small scale, and movements in forward rates were of little importance.

"THE TIMES" PROFITS

The twenty-eighth annual report of "The Times" Publishing Company was issued on 3rd October (and published in the Financial Times). The directors of the company are:—Major the Hon. John Jacob Astor, M.P.; Mr. John Walter, Sir Campbell Stuart, Mr. Ralph Walter, Sir John Pybus, Bart., M.P.; the Hon. Robert Henry Brand, and Sir Guy Granet, and their report to the shareholders reads:—

For the year ended 30th June, 1935, the profit was £132,855 7s. 10d. To this is added the sum of £126,614 1s. 9d. brought forward from the previous year, making a total balance of £259,469 9s. 7d.

The directors propose that this balance shall be appropriated:—In paying a dividend on the Preference shares at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum for the year ended 30th June, 1935, £16,000; in paying a further dividend on the Preference shares under Clause 116 of the Articles of Association—5 per cent. of the surplus profits for the year ended 30th June, 1935, £7,027; in paying a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum (less tax) to the holders of the Ordinary shares of the company, £64,500; to reserve for contingencies and rebuilding, £30,000; to reserve for supplementary pensions and grants, £10,000, leaving a balance to carry forward of £131,941.

The profit and loss account shows a profit on trading, after providing for depreciation of property and plant and for bad and doubtful debts, of £126,714 (against £51,616). To this falls to be added interest on investments and deposits and dividend from a subsidiary company, £34,778 (against £34,296), making £161,492 (against £85,912). Last year the sum of £34,296 included "dividends from subsidiary companies."

Deduction of £5,081 (same) for directors' fees and £23,556 for income tax (against £6,091), leaves a balance of £132,855 (against £74,741), which is disposed of as outlined above.

One subsidiary company made a profit, which is included in the accounts above, to the extent of the dividend declared by the subsidiary. A small loss was made by the other subsidiary, which is not included above, but has been met out of past accumulated profits of the subsidiary.

The following table shows the principal items of the current balance sheet, together with those from the report for the previous year:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

J. Brockhouse & Co. (Ireland), Ltd.

An attractive issue of Cumulative Participating Preference shares and Ordinary shares in connection with the above will be announced this week. The company, which will manufacture springs, axles and ironwork, etc., for road and rail vehicles, has acquired a site at Wexford, where a factory on the most up-to-date lines is at present in course of construction. The factory is adjacent to the harbour and railway on a site of about six acres, and the building is being erected by Messrs. Thomas Thompson and Sons, Ltd., of Carlow. Messrs. J. Brockhouse and Co. (Ireland), Ltd., will commence operations with the advantage of the technical knowledge and experience of Messrs. J. Brockhouse and Company, Ltd., of West Bromwich, which is the largest firm in this line of business in Great Britain. At the beginning at least 100 men will be employed, but the capacity of the factory will provide work when it is in full swing for 300. The company will have the advantage of substantial protective tariffs. The latest Government statistics show that the number of new motor vehicles registered in the Saorstat for the first time in the year 1934 was 6,402, while for the six months ending June last the number registered was 4,124—a considerable increase over the corresponding period of 1934. The directors are confident that the company will have no difficulty in securing the major portion of this trade for the articles which it manufactures, beside enjoying the replacement trade on vehicles actually in service, which are estimated at over 50,000. Careful estimates show that the turnover should be at least £50,000 from this trade alone, giving an anticipated net profit of at least £5,000, and on this basis the Preference dividend would be covered over four times, leaving substantial profits for distribution on the Ordinary shares. It is anticipated that, after the expenditure on premises, plant, machinery, etc., has been paid, £20,000 will be available for working capital, and this the directors consider is ample. All the present Irish business being done by Messrs. J. Brockhouse and Co., Ltd., will be handed over to this new concern. The board of directors is a strong one, being composed of Mr. J. T. Brockhouse, chairman and managing director of J. Brockhouse and Co., Ltd.; Mr. E. Burton, director of J. Brockhouse and Co., Ltd.; Mr. John O'Neill, managing director of John O'Neill, Ltd.; Mr. C. E. McConnell, managing director of McConnell's Advertising Service, Ltd.; and Seamus Moore, director of Vigzol Lubricants (I.F.S.), Ltd.

Legal Tender Note Fund

The amount of legal tender notes outstanding on October 5 was £7,868,942 10s., as compared with £7,690,296 10s. on September 28. The amount issued during the week was £268,248 and the amount redeemed £89,602.

Baird Television Scheme

The Shareholders' Protection Association in a circular to the Preferred Ordinary shareholders of Baird Television, Ltd., state that they are seeking to open discussions with the company with a view to securing an improvement in the terms of the scheme as affecting these shares. Shareholders are asked to refrain form sending in proxies in favour of the scheme until they hear further from the Association.

Netherlands Indies Estate Rubber

The Department for Economic Affairs has stipulated that estate rubber under Customs control on December 31, 1935, and exported during 1936 will be free of duty, as it will be regarded as having been exported during 1935. Estate rubber under Customs control on December 31, 1936, and exported in 1937 will be levied according to the 1936 tariff.

Rubber Control

Towards the end of last month the International Rubber Regulation Committee provided a surprise by reducing the export quota for rubber from 65 to 60 per cent. of standard, a reduction that came into force on October 1 and will apply to the last quarter of this year. This decision was regarded as showing a determination on the part of the committee to take every possible step to bring about the desired reduction in stocks, and consequent improvement in price. It had an immediate effect, both upon the commodity and rubber share prices. It is now announced that the chief of the Economic Department in the Dutch East Indies has been authorised by the Government to purchase licences up to 20,000 tons from rubber producers, with a view to reducing exports to the permissible quota. A few weeks ago licences were selling at 36 cents per kilogram, but owing to sales by Government estates the figure dropped to 25 cents. The latest announcement is expected to cause an improvement in the price of licences, which should react favourably upon the commodity. Yesterday rubber advanced to 6d. per lb., and an appreciable rise took place in the producing companies' shares.

Metropolitan Assented Stock

Glyn Mills and Co., the trustees and registrar under the trust deed relating to the Metropolitan Assented Stock constituted by the London Passenger Transport Act, announce a final dividend of 2¼ per cent., less tax, making, with the interim payment of 1 per cent., the full interest rate of 3¼ per cent. for the year ended June 30 last. Under the terms of exchange into London Passenger Transport Board Stock, holders of the Metropolitan Railway Consolidated Stock had alternative offers of £67 10s. "C" Transport Stock or £100 of Metropolitan Assented Stock in respect of each £100 of stock held. The Assented Stock carries interest at 3¼ per cent. per annum for the first fifteen years and 3 per cent. per annum for ten years thereafter.

WOOL

AUSTRALIAN SALES.—At the wool sale at Sydney yesterday competition was very strong and general, particularly from Yorkshire and Japan. Continental operators also gave the market good support. For best spinners wool suitable for Yorkshire the market was at par to five per cent. above last week's closing rates at Sydney. Prices for other descriptions were firm and unchanged. The catalogue, which was a good one, amounted to 12,967 bales, and 12,165 were sold. Private transactions accounted for 1,260 bales.

An excellent clearance was effected of the 8,000 bales offered, at yesterday's wool sales at Melbourne. Competition was keen and prices very firm, Bradford, Japan, France and Germany were all in the market.

COUNT McCORMACK IN DERRY

Among those who heard Count John McCormack singing in Londonderry Guildhall last night were the Marquess of Hamilton, Captain Martelli, A.D.C. to the Governor of Northern Ireland; Mrs. Martelli, the Mayor of Londonderry, Senator Captain J. M. Wilton, M.C., and Colonel J. K. McClintock, O.B.E., D.L.

At the conclusion the national anthem was omitted as at the previous McCormack concert in Londonderry.

Mr. McCormack, asked why the National Anthem was not sung, said that it was not customary at Harold Holt's concerts, even in London.

Mr. McCormack said that he considered at least one hundred of Dr. Petrie's collection of old Irish tunes would be more suitable for the Free State National Anthem than "The Soldier's Song," which was not what would be expected of a musical country like Ireland.

NEW CAPE FLIGHT

ATTEMPT POSTPONED UNTIL TO-MORROW

Undaunted by several postponements and a temporary mechanical defect that yesterday cut short their attempt to set up a new record for a flight to the Cape and back, Flying-Officer David Llewellyn and his pupil, Mrs. Jill Wyndham, are to make a fresh start to-morrow.

This was disclosed last night by Mr. John Mercer, a young London company director, by whom the flight is being sponsored.

"There is no question of the flight being abandoned," he told a reporter. "The whole trouble is that the oil filter became clogged. It might have led to some trouble, and for safety's sake they came back to have it cleared. It is only a matter of a few hours' work, and the flight will be resumed on Thursday morning.

"They would have had a long crossing over the Mediterranean last night, and it was not worth the risk. I do not blame Llewellyn for coming back. Naturally he and Mrs. Wyndham were very disappointed, but they are intent on trying again."

Mr. Llewellyn is a son of Sir William Llewellyn, President of the Royal Academy, and Mrs. Jill Wyndham is the wife of Commander R. G. D. Wyndham, of St. Mary, Abbot Court, Kensington.

Mr. Llewellyn, who is a flying instructor at Hanworth Airport, taught Mrs. Wyndham to fly, and she recently obtained her pilot's certificate.

Their desire is to beat Mrs. Amy Mollison's time of four days six hours to the Cape, and also to set up a new record for the return flight.

They set off from Hanworth Aerodrome yesterday, but were forced to give up at Marseilles, and returned to Hanworth. Their machine is a luxury black and gold Hendy-Heck, with a cruising speed of 160-165 m.p.h., and a landing speed of only 40 m.p.h.

They intend to reach the Cape by way of Marseilles, Brindisi, Mersa Matruh, Wadi Halfa, Malakal, Kisumu, Abercorn, Broken Hill, Bulawayo and Kimberley.

During the journey over that route they will have to pass near the scene of fighting between Italy and Abyssinia, but have been assured that there is no reason to cancel their attempt.

THIRTEEN YEARS OLD CHARGE

DIRECTOR ALLOWED £2,000 BAIL

Albert Ernest Woodward, aged 60, whose address was given as the Commodore Hotel, New York, appeared on remand at Liverpool Police Court yesterday charged with fraudulently applying to his own use and benefit seventeen 1,000 dollar bills, the money of Edward Young and Company, Limited, while he was a director in, or after, December, 1922.

He was further remanded until Tuesday, and allowed bail in the sum of £2,000.

AN UNSUNG HERO

THE STORY OF HENRY KELSEY

The story of how a boy saved Northern Canada for Britain is told in a new history of Hudson's Bay, which has just been prepared.

He was Henry Kelsey, who was one of a number of adventurers in Britain's fort at York on the shores of Hudson's Bay two hundred and fifty years ago. This and other communities were attacked by a valorous French nobleman, Chevalier de Troyes, who at the head of a party of veteran soldiers reduced all the forts to ashes in the name of the King of France and Navarre—all save York, which held out bravely. The stand which was made was due in large measure to young Kelsey, who showed sustained cheerfulness and conspicuous bravery, and was ultimately awarded £50 by the Governor and Committee of the Hudson's Bay Company.

The retention of York kept British influence alive, and every schoolboy knows what happened in Canada from that time onward.

Franz Polussny, a Communist, was sentenced to death and four others were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment on charges of hiding huge quantities of explosives for the perpetration of outrages against the Government, says a Vienna telegram.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

AWAITING SANCTIONS DECISION

Reuter's Telegrams.

NEW YORK, Tuesday.

The European situation was much discussed on Wall street to-day, and many operators held off from the Stock Exchange pending the League's decision as to the nature of the sanctions to be imposed against Italy.

The general trend of the market was rather lower, sales totalling 1,180,000 shares. Oils and Utilities displayed resistance, but, with a very disturbing influence being constituted in the backwardness of Rails in face of an expected sharp rebound in the figures of freight-car loadings, the undertone elsewhere was heavy. Copper shares encountered profit-taking despite the strength of the commodity. The market closed easy.

Call money remained at ¾ per cent. and the outside rate was unchanged at ¼ per cent. Prime paper was quoted at ¾ to 1 per cent. Open market discount rates were unaltered.

Sterling exchange opened ⅜c. down at 4.90¼, and fell during the morning to 4.90. The rate remained at this level in the afternoon, but finally closed ¼c. lower compared with the previous close at 4.90⅜.

Silver was unchanged at 65⅝c.

UNION-CASTLE LINE

JUSTICE ON "ROAD HOGGING"

MOTORIST'S LICENCE SUSPENDED

From Our Correspondent.

WATERFORD, Tuesday.

"This is the most scandalous piece of road hogging which has yet been before me," said District Justice MacCabe at Tramore Court to-day when suspending for three months the licence of John C. Greer for alleged dangerous driving and for failure to stop after an accident.

Greer is a well-known racing motorist and garage proprietor in Waterford.

He was also fined £5 on each count and £1 expenses.

Evidence was given by Patrick Bailey, New Ross, that on August 15 last, at midnight, he was driving a car from Tramore with passengers. After rounding the dangerous corner at the Metal Bridge, just outside the town, he saw a car travelling slowly in front of him. This car gave him the signal to pass out, and when abreast of it the defendant's car came on at a very fast pace, and tried to pass him out at a narrow part of the road. Witness was compelled to pull across towards the first motorist, and the defendant, in passing witness, hit his car, causing some slight damage. Defendant then turned up the side road, known as the old road to Waterford, and witness chased him. After many turns and twists the defendant emerged on the main road, where he was compelled to slow down, because of an approaching car, and witness was enabled to take his number.

The defendant denied the cars were travelling abreast when he struck witness's car. He had been driving cars for twelve years, and had never been prosecuted before. He saw nothing to indicate that the second car was about to pull out in front of the first one.

MARKETING OF PIGS

BOARD'S WARNING TO PRODUCERS

The following statement was issued yesterday on behalf of the Pigs Marketing Board:—

Pig producers are again warned of the necessity of marketing their pigs in an orderly manner. The rushing in of pigs in abnormally large numbers is entirely unwarranted, as the owners have the assurance of the fixed prices for the period from now to the end of November. The factories cannot handle more than their usual production, and, if pig feeders will co-operate, normal conditions will prevail.

While this applies to pigs sold alive, as well as to carcases, the position with regard to the latter is more serious, as curers in the Northern area, where the carcase trade prevails, have reached the limit allowed them for production, and no further storage accommodation whatever is available to relieve the markets of surplus carcases. The Pigs Marketing Board desires, therefore, to impress on pig producers that if pigs are offered in unusually large numbers they are likely to be refused, and if pigs are slaughtered and presented as carcases, without definite arrangements being made beforehand with curers, the owners run a grave risk of having the surplus carcases left on their hands. The Board, moreover, wishes it to be understood that if at any future date it finds it desirable to purchase surplus pigs or carcases it will do so at a price to be specially fixed for such surplus stock.

CRICKET

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

"England, for all her cricket deterioration, would have won the rubber if the Tests had been longer. Limiting them to three days made the whole thing a gamble," declared Mr. R. G. Menzies, the Federal Attorney-General, on his return here from a visit to England. "The vital difference between the teams was that the South Africans at all times played as though they enjoyed every moment," he continued.

"Among prominent cricket and other personalities in England I found a practically unanimous feeling that Australia's view on the body-line dispute was correct, and that the sooner the dispute was forgotten in both countries the better it would be for the future of international cricket."

Mr. Menzies added that, in spite of their victory in the Test matches, he did not think that South Africa were yet in Australia's class and that their bowling had been overrated. He declared that Hammond was still the world's best all-rounder.
